INDIANA UNIVERSITY BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA

A quarter of a century is a long time. Long enough for a man to go through college, raise a family, and even start his son or daughter through college. As a matter of fact, some of the members of President Wells' "last" freshman class have parents who were part of his "first" freshman class.

Within this span of time, a great many things have happened to Indiana University. Physically, academically, and culturally, I. U. has improved and expanded.

In June, 1937, a map of the whole University at Bloomington could be included with room to spare on one page of the University catalogue. Today, the Bloomington campus can not be completely shown even on a double page spread. Beginning with the present Business and Education Buildings and the Auditorium, and continuing through the recently completed Geology Building and the Fine Arts and Radio and Television Building, Indiana University has been engaged in a constant program of construction and renovation on the Bloomington campus. Similarly, the number, size, and distribution of I. U. extension centers has also expanded.

Under the guidance of President Wells, the University has made just as rapid strides in its academic aspects. Since 1937, many new departments and subjects have been added to the total curriculum. Comparative literature, library science, additional physical and applied sciences, and more languages have become an established part of the University. Coupled with this has been a shift in emphasis from a program of purely West European studies to one more world-wide in scope, making Indiana University truly international in scope.

Herman B Wells—A Quarter-Century at I. U.

The University's facilities and opportunities for research have become some of the best in the nation. Even more important has been the development of an atmosphere particularly favorable to research and innovation.

It is perhaps this special atmosphere which has induced so many outstanding professors to join the I. U. faculty. Since 1953 the most outstanding of these men have been given further recognition by the establishment of the Distinguished Service Professorship list. In the sciences, men such as Hermann J. Muller (a 1946 Nobel Prize winner and recipient in 1955 of the Kimber Genetics Award), Tracy Sonneborn, and Ralph Cleland have extended I. U.'s fame around the world.

In English and government, there have been outstanding professors like Herbert J. Muller, John Moore, William Parker, and C. S. Hyneman. Other Distinguished Service Professorships have been named in mathematics, economics, medicine, law, and speech and theatre.

But a university is not merely a place for faculty research; it also has a high obligation to prepare its students for their futures, both in their chosen professions and in their personal lives. To help both the student and the University in this great undertaking, President Wells led the development of the present system of counseling and guidance programs, other programs for student health and hospitalization, and still others for student employment.

The past 25 years have also seen the inauguration of the Auditorium and Celebrity Series, Little Theatre productions, Pop Concerts, special convocations, and increased presentations of operas, concerts, and recitals by the School of Music.

President Wells and his corps of many able assistants during the last 25 years have indeed built a great university. I. U. is fortunate that President Wells is not leaving the University entirely; but that as President of the I. U. Foundation, he will continue to serve and help lead the University towards ever greater achievement in the coming years.

Astronaut John Glenn made U. S. history with his orbital flight, but six "Shelternauts" made I. U. and civil defense history with their week's stay in a fallout shelter.

Local recording artists, a new "beat," and the drive to be uninhibited cultivated the "twist" craze.

1961-1962 . . . an orange class card . . . a foot- ball game . . . a dance . . . a grade report . . . a repeat second semester —and then, tassels proudly swaying in the breeze tacked on a mortar board. A year's history . . . history of a midwestern university so like other institutions of its size, yet so different in the story it has to tell.

WATER, two parts hydrogen, one part oxygen . . . it trickled green as someone celebrated St. Patrick's Day at the expense of the Jordan River . . . it gushed from fire hoses in the Auditorium as the curtains caught fire . . . it gurgled from dolphins as a man-made Venus came to life in the center of culture . . . and it splashed as the swimming team added victory after victory to its ever-expanding collection.

COMPETITION, an age-old gleam directing eyes toward a world of unfought wars and peaceless arbitrations . . . it sent the Peace Corps scurrying abroad . . . it called classmates into the service of their country . . . it followed an American astronaut into space, and it watched curiously as I. U.'s shelteronauts emerged from a week's confinement in a fallout shelter . . . it bounced along the highway as fraternity men dribbled a basketball to Purdue . . . and for a fleeting moment, it seemed rewarding—until the student realized his high cumulative average was based on the 4.0 system.

TRADITION, changeable as the weather, fell into decay as Alpha Hall bowed gracefully in the face of progress . . . it was altered as I. U. students realigned their political beliefs . . . only the future can tell what tradition has been built.

SADNESS, never wanted yet somehow always accepted . . . it covered the campus as Purdue returned to Lafayette with the Old Oaken Bucket . . . it was mixed with gay laughter as faculty members presented a boress play to honor a retiring president . . . it stood next to tragedy as a basketball player returned to school in a wheelchair—and as two spelunkers drowned in a cave in southern Indiana.

1961-1962 . . .

The story . . .

The hands shake...

*a battle to produce a champion,
But the battle is not won until the hands shake again.*

The AOPi Pirates pit themselves against the senior varsity athletes in a basketball game.

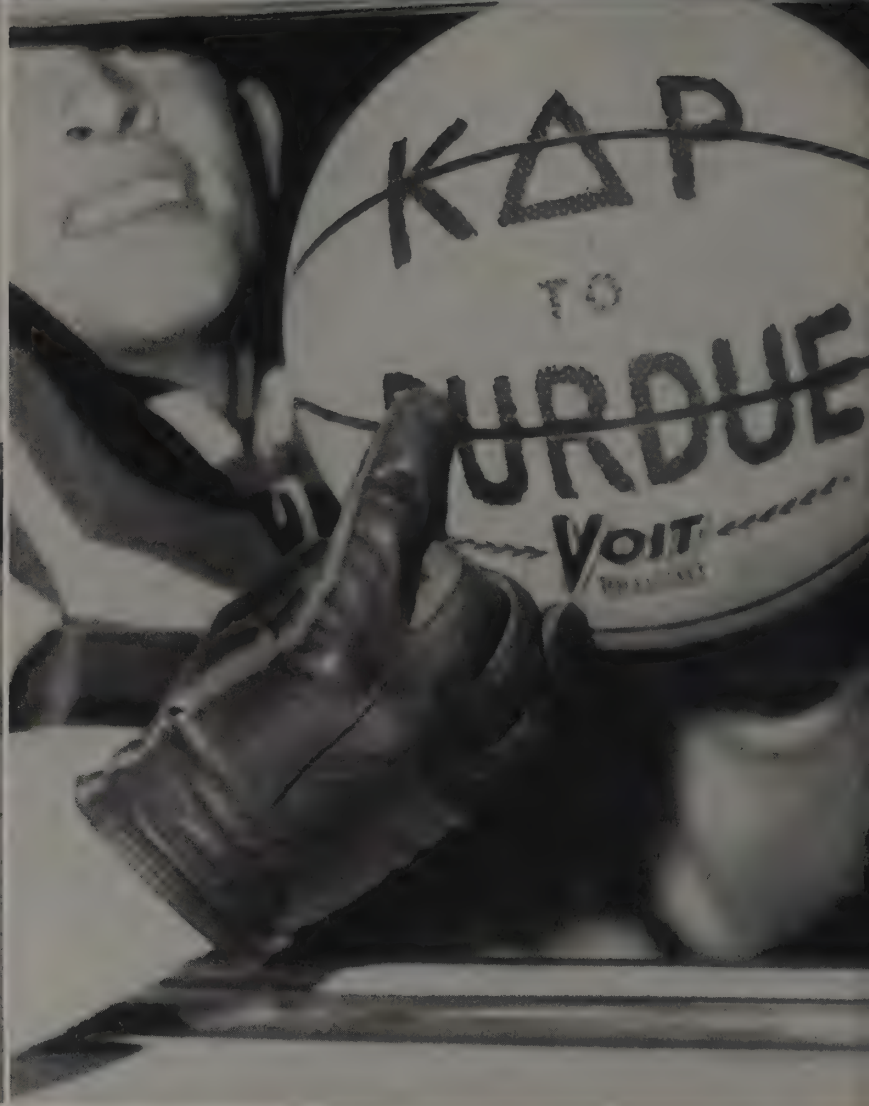

National Intercollegiate Coed Billiard Champ Ann Sidlauskas keeps up on her game at the IMU billiard room.

Lending his support to the Fightin' Hoosiers is mascot Ox.

A constructive channel for intellectual activity was the Campus Quiz Bowl.

I. U. KDR's braved the elements to promote school spirit as they dribbled a basketball to West Lafayette prior to the first I. U.-Purdue match.

With a mighty "Heave Ho," residents of MRC fought a tug of war across the Jordan.

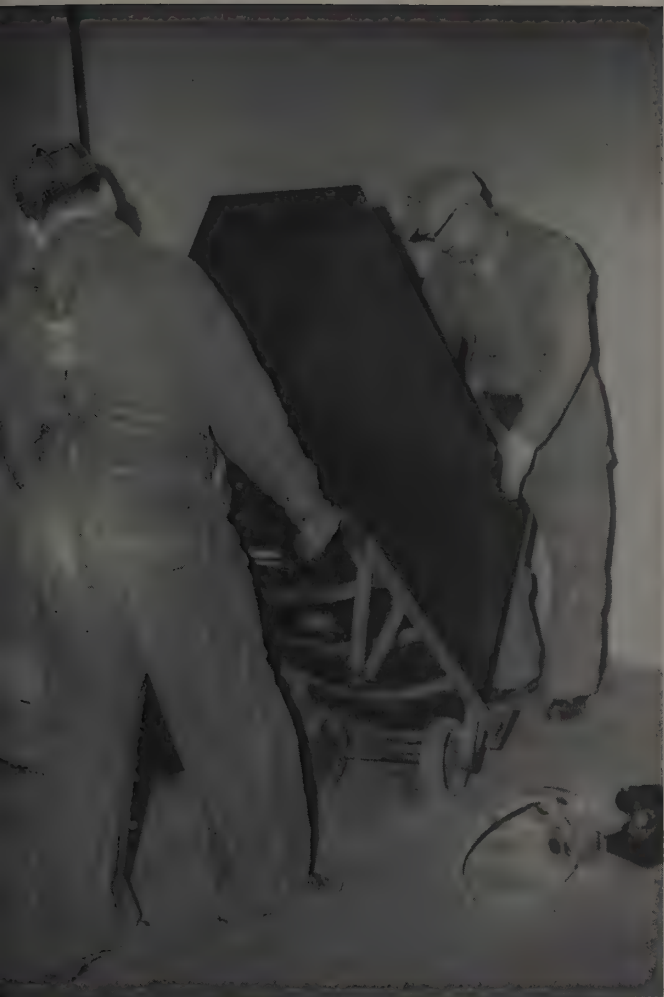

After many years of service first as the original women's dormitory and then as the office space for the HPER School, Alpha Hall gracefully bows in the face of progress.

*The old and the new—
an endless cycle
of altered traditions.*

Work on the new chemistry annex, a companion for Ballantine Hall, was begun.

It's nice to have new quarters, but oh that moving day.

New classrooms are accompanied by expanding dormitory facilities.

Dedicated this year, the new HPER building is now in full use.

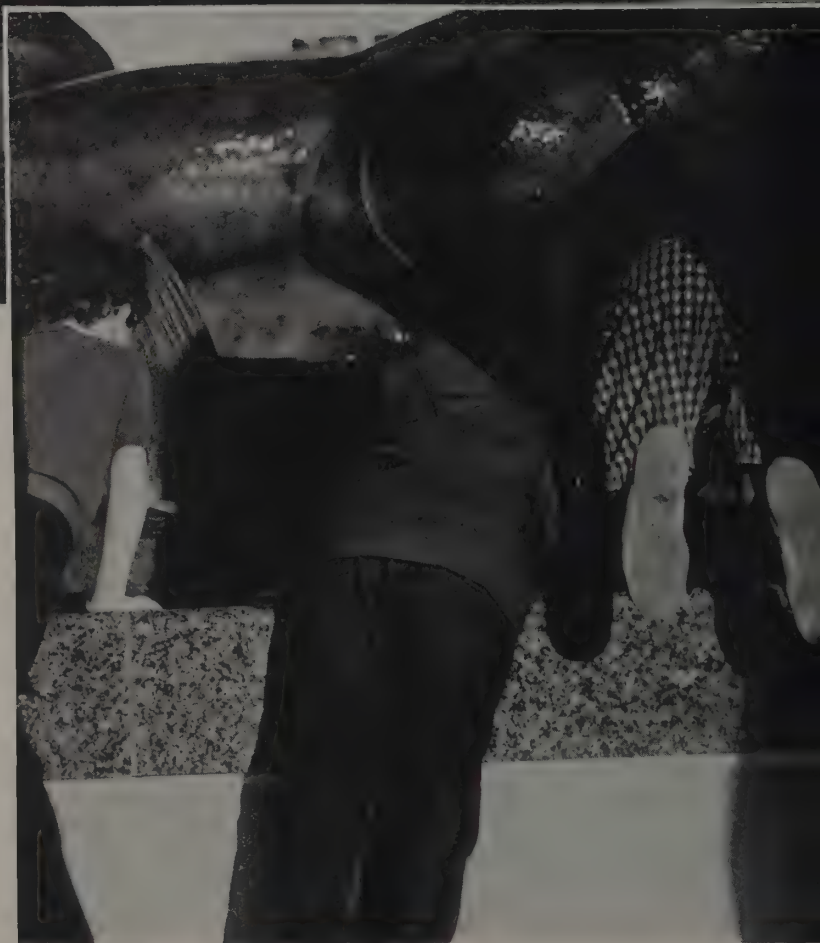

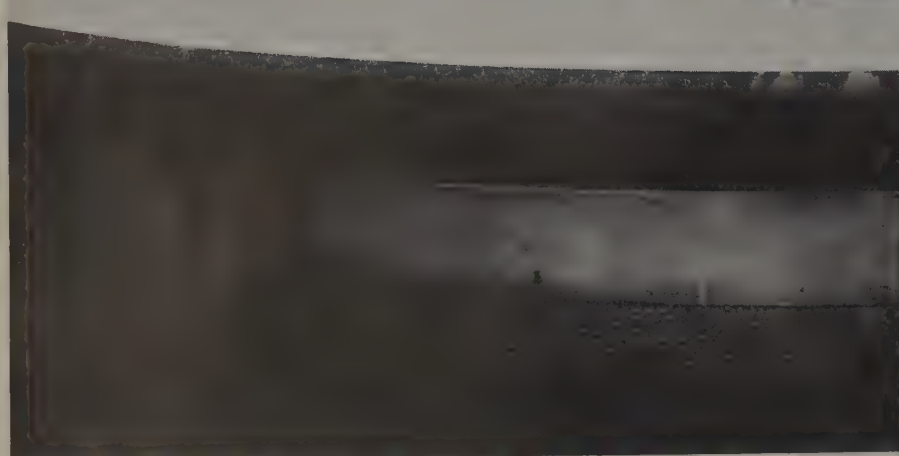

*These hands
hold the keys of survival—
for them the door to life is half unlocked.*

*And the blood of history
shall run diluted
through the veins of man today.*

*All will search the worth of life,
but who can count the falling snow?*

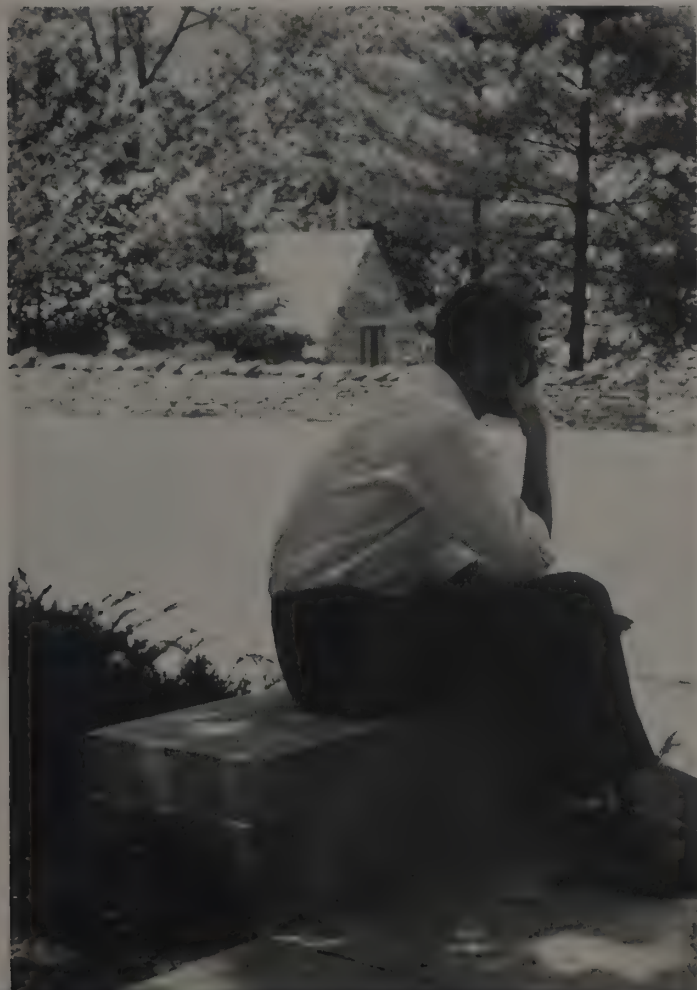

A magic hand touches the campus and one feels lost in the splendor of a winter world.

*Solitude walks softly
but leaves
the deepest footprint...*

In the middle of campus, a place to pause and think.

*A perfect memory here displayed;
thoughts unburdened;
notes in perfect pitch.*

Only the mind has the power to shake the world of dormancy

Nurses capping—an eventful step on the road to a life dedicated to working for others

And the cows roamed our campus one day.

New students learned why it's called the "Melon Mess."

*A cycle of dreams turned by perseverance:
every spoke will beat the rim;
each turn gets longer.*

*"If variety is the spice,
I'd rather be unseasoned!"*

The natives adapt to the "Monsoon season."

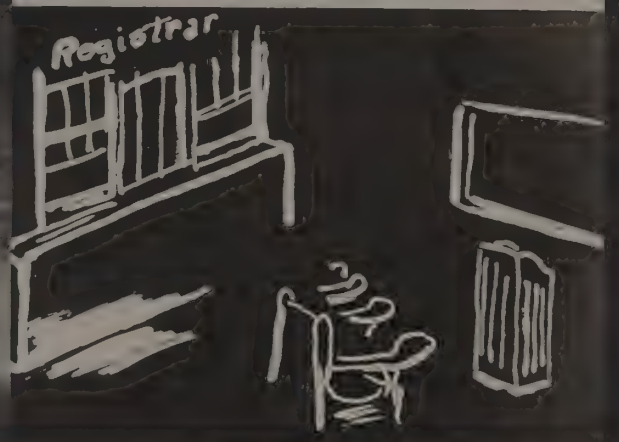

". . . and furthermore, my business law prof. said specifically that public usage of public streets is guaranteed to all citizens . . .

So that's what they call fine art!

In today's world

how could one operate without

The Machinery?

*to the click of the clock,
to the hum of an engine it goes round . . .
the never ceasing dum, dum, dum,
the constant thudding . . .*

The best working engine is not man made but made of man:

The Machinery . . .

Board of Trustees Buys, Sells I. U. Real Estate

As the chief governing body of Indiana University, the Board of Trustees has the responsibility of buying and selling real estate, making decisions on rules concerning student and faculty safety, and appointing non-academic personnel.

Under the leadership of Fenwick T. Reed, who was appointed as secretary of the board in 1951, the present concern of the board is in future planning for the expansion of the University.

Composed of eight members elected for three-year terms, the board was set up in a statute of the state legislature in 1852. By this act, the board was to consist of 11 members; it was amended to the present eight in 1855. Another stipulation was added in 1931, stating that the board should consist of three alumni members and five members elected from the State Board of Education, subject to the Governor's approval.

Faculty Council Studies Housing Situation

Non-University housing, University-sponsored activities, and civil defense preparations on campus were subjects studied extensively by the Faculty Council this year.

The council also reviewed the I. U. Bookstore and policy taken on students called into military service. Presently a council committee is studying loyalty oaths for foreign students studying at I. U.

President Wells, Vice-Presidents John W. Ashton and Ralph L. Collins, and the deans of the nine schools comprise the 13 permanent members of the council.

The remaining 20 members are elected for two-year terms by the entire faculty at Bloomington, the Medical Center, and other University Centers. Elections are staggered so that ten new members are admitted to the council each year. No faculty member may serve more than two terms on the council.

Soon to be "President Emeritus," Herman B Wells takes his place alongside other I. U. greats such as William Lowe Bryan.

President's Office

The President's Office will see some new faces next year, not only as a result of the retirement of President Herman B Wells, but also with the retirement of his assistant for the last several years, A. Peter Fraenkel. Mr. Fraenkel left in March to take a position with the Ford Foundation. One of several persons who worked to establish the Peace Corps on a national basis, Mr. Fraenkel also worked to create interest in the project among Indiana University students.

Through President Wells, the administrative head of the University, the policies of the Board of Trustees are put into effect. Under his leadership over the last 25 years, Indiana University has expanded both physically and academically. Many buildings have been constructed or enlarged, and the range of courses available to students has been greatly increased.

President Wells will assume the directorship of the I. U. Foundation when his retirement goes into effect in June, 1962.

Mrs. Catherine Royer, secretary to the president

A. Peter Fraenkel, assistant to the President, resigned in March to take a position with the Ford Foundation.

A chair and a desk . . . symbols of an era soon to be changed with the retirement of President Herman B Wells.

Who will occupy them in the future? At the time of this book's publication, the Indiana University Board of Trustees is still deliberating on the selection of a new president.

Perhaps by the time this is read, a new president will have been named. Should the next 25 years bring as much to the University as the last have, the new president may some day vacate his desk and chair with the same dignity and pride as our beloved Dr. Wells.

Dean Samuel E. Braden

Vice-President and Dean for Undergraduate Development

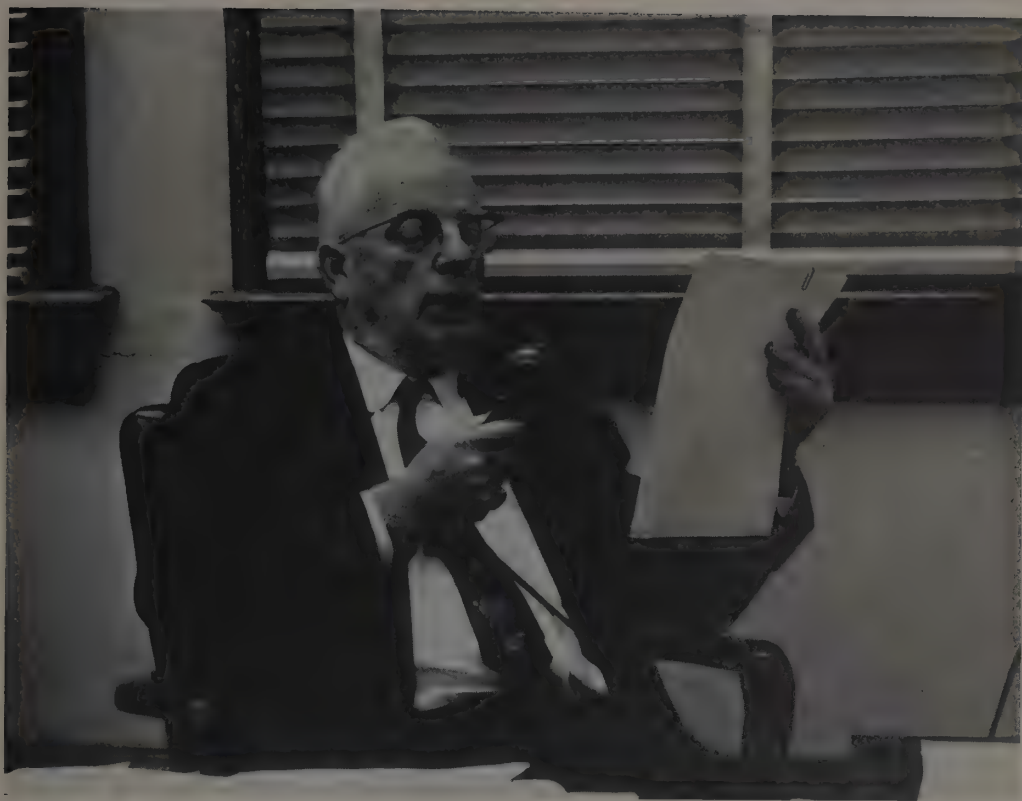

The Division of Undergraduate Development was established in 1959 under Samuel E. Braden, its first and only dean. The purpose of this division is to foster improvement in all aspects of the University's undergraduate program: in the preparation of entering students, study conditions and academic atmosphere throughout the campus, the educational aspects of campus activities, curriculum, and the faculty and facilities that help students learn.

Engaged in carrying out these purposes are the various offices in the division, the Junior Division, the Registrar's office, the Office of the Dean of Students, the Health Center, the Honors Program, and the Office of Women's Educational Programs. Equally important are the deans and faculties of the undergraduate schools, for whose activities the Office of Undergraduate Development has an advisory relationship.

Recent developments illustrate the work of this division. Incoming freshmen will meet new deadlines for applying for admission in 1962, and new standards of preparation for 1964. In that year, all freshmen will have completed a college preparatory curriculum and, by class standing or test scores, will have demonstrated their willingness and ability to do college work.

As a part of a move to revamp the record keeping and grade processing in the Registrar's Office, the University changed from a three point "A" to a four point "A" in October. This move eliminates the need to subtract points for an "F" and simplifies the change over to greater efficiency in keeping records.

The Honors Program has been greatly expanded and is now housed in its own suite of offices and study rooms in the east wing of the Student Building.

Dean John W. Ashton

Vice-President for Graduate Development and Dean of the Graduate School

Indiana University's Graduate School is growing at a faster rate than any other school on campus, with an increasing proportion of these graduate students seeking doctoral degrees. Surpassing all previous records, the Graduate School enrollment for the fall semester of 1961 was 2,030.

Ranked today as one of the top 22 graduate schools in the United States, the I. U. Graduate School is directed by John W. Ashton, Vice-President for Graduate Development and Dean of the Graduate School.

The chief responsibility of the Division of Graduate Development is to counsel graduate students by discussing course changes, new curricula, and programs of study. The division works closely with Dean Ashton and his staff to co-ordinate graduate programing.

The Graduate School was formally initiated at Indiana University in 1904; the office of dean was created four years later. Dean Ashton has served Indiana University for 16 years, the past four at his present position as Dean of the Graduate School, and the previous 12 as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Joseph A. Franklin, Vice-President and Treasurer

Vice-President and Treasurer

Selling concessions and erecting multi-million dollar buildings are representative of the wide range of functions administered by the Indiana University business offices. Headed by Joseph A. Franklin, Vice-President and Treasurer, the business offices manage the University's overall budget after it has been approved by the Board of Trustees.

Included in the office's overall administration of financial affairs are the construction and maintenance of all campus buildings, real estate transactions, the Indiana Memorial Union, the University printing plant, and the Ticket Office. Also under the office's control are funds and grants for research.

Indiana University is financed through state support, general University income, student fees, gifts, and grants, and the business offices must tabulate and account for all this money.

Dean Ralph L. Collins

Vice-President and Dean of Faculties

Established in 1940, the Office of the Dean of Faculties serves as a channel from the academic divisions to the President and the Board of Trustees. Under the direction of Ralph L. Collins, who became Vice-President and Dean of Faculties in 1959, the office supervises all faculty and personnel associated with Indiana University and the I. U. Centers.

Among the office's main responsibilities in connection with academic personnel are making faculty appointments, making faculty promotions and salary increases, and planning detailed budgets with the deans of the various schools.

Working with committees on campus such as space assignment, academic equipment, improvement of teaching, and schedule of classes adds to the office's responsibilities.

The Office of the Dean of Faculties also represents Indiana University in such organizations as the Committee for Institutional Co-operation of Big Ten Universities and the Commission on Colleges and Universities of the North Central Conference.

Four Faculty Members Named Distinguished Service Professors

Indiana University's highest honor to a faculty member, Distinguished Service Professor, was given in 1961-1962 to Hubert C. Heffner, Charles S. Hyneman, Robert C. Turner, and Henry B. Veatch.

Dr. Heffner, speech and theatre, was previously associated with Stanford University as head of the department of speech and drama. A member of the famed Author's Club of London, he has written A Guide for the Director of Amateur Plays.

Dr. Hyneman, government, has a distinguished record of service to the national government, including assistance in the Bureau of the Budget, office of Provost Marshal General, and the FCC. His publications include Bureaucracy in a Democracy.

One of the country's outstanding economists, Dr. Turner, business economics and public policy, was granted leave from I. U. to serve as assistant director of budget in 1961. He has served as economic adviser to the White House and on President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers.

A native Hoosier, Dr. Veatch, philosophy, received the first Frederic Bachman Lieber Award for Distinguished Teaching in 1954 and received the Sigma Delta Chi "Brown Derby" as the most popular professor at I. U. in 1952. He has published Intentional Logic.

At Founders' Day ceremonies, several faculty members and graduate assistants received awards for outstanding teaching.

Four Administrators and Faculty Members Die

Four distinguished Indiana University administrators and faculty members died during 1961-1962.

Dr. Wendell W. Wright, former Vice-President and Dean of the School of Education, became a member of the University faculty in 1925. Dr. Wright was appointed Dean of the Junior Division in 1942, Education in 1946, and Vice-President in 1952. He retired in 1959.

Former Dean of the School of Medicine, Dr. Willis D. Gatch has been called "Indiana's foremost surgeon." From 1931 to 1946 Dr. Gatch directed both the Indianapolis and Bloomington medical divisions.

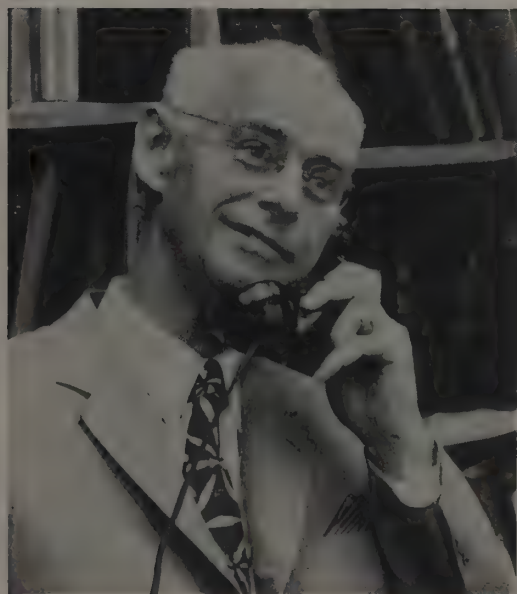

Recipient of the Frederic Bachman Lieber Award for distinguished teaching in 1961, Dr. Marjorie P. Phillips had been honored nationally for her work in women's physical education. She joined the I. U. faculty in 1941.

Dr. Richard L. Webb served as chairman of the Department of Anatomy from 1948 to 1958. His research on regulation of blood flow through microscopic blood vessels brought him national notice.

Educational Opportunities in Every Section of State

Indiana University Centers offer educational opportunities to students in every section of the state. At present there are centers at Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, East Chicago, South Bend-Mishawaka, Kokomo, and Gary. In addition, there are two co-operative centers, one with Earlham College at Richmond and the other at Vincennes in co-operation with Vincennes University. A Bloomington Center conducts classes in nearby towns and offers graduate programs in education and health, physical education, and recreation at Evansville College.

The first extension program was established at the Downtown Center in Indianapolis in 1916. In addition to the usual courses offered at extension centers, the Downtown Center provides liberal arts courses for freshman nursing students of Marion County General Hospital and courses required for upperclassmen at the Indianapolis Medical Center.

Organized in 1917, the Fort Wayne Center was enlarged in 1937 and is now awaiting the completion in 1963-1964 of a combined Indiana-Purdue center.

Calumet Center at East Chicago was established in 1932. Students may study under 12 full-time professors or under a number of part-time faculty members.

In May, 1959, a new campus was completed for the Gary Center, which was established in 1948.

Administrative officials at the Gary Center are proud that they provide as much as possible a miniaturization of the Bloomington campus in the development of both academic and cultural pursuits. A student community theatrical program, musical concerts, and art exhibits are co-ordinated with the center's activities.

Students may also participate in Student Council, service organizations, a marksmanship club, and a Scholarship Achievement Society.

The South Bend-Mishawaka Center has added a new building with a 900-seat auditorium and 23 classrooms in addition to laboratories, offices, a bookstore, a library, and student-faculty lounges. The center, which has been offering classes since 1922, had a 20 per cent increase in enrollment over the last year. There are about 60 faculty members teaching credit courses and an extensive adult education non-credit program.

Four buildings make up the Kokomo Center, housing classrooms, administrative offices, science facilities, and an art studio, Carriage House. Established in 1945, the center has eight full-time and about 30 part-time faculty members. Plans are underway for a new center building.

Earlham Center, one of the smallest extensions, is jointly operated by I. U. and a private institution, Earlham College. At Richmond, Earlham operates in two buildings. The center was established in 1946.

The Vincennes Co-operative Center, set up in 1950, utilizes the campus of Vincennes University. A new gymnasium has recently been added to the campus. All faculty members are part-time educators.

Life at University Centers Varies Little From Student Life at the Bloomington Campus

The quest for knowledge is common to all divisions of the University.

I. U. sweatshirts are as popular at the centers as they are at the Bloomington campus.

Most education courses, except methods, are offered at the University's centers.

Ford Grants Aid Arts and Sciences Advancement

Dean Frank T. Gucker.

According to Dean Frank T. Gucker, the biggest developments in the College of Arts and Sciences in 1961 were a result of Ford Foundation grants. With the aid of these grants, the college has developed work in non-Western studies, concentrating on the Asian study development and the new African study program.

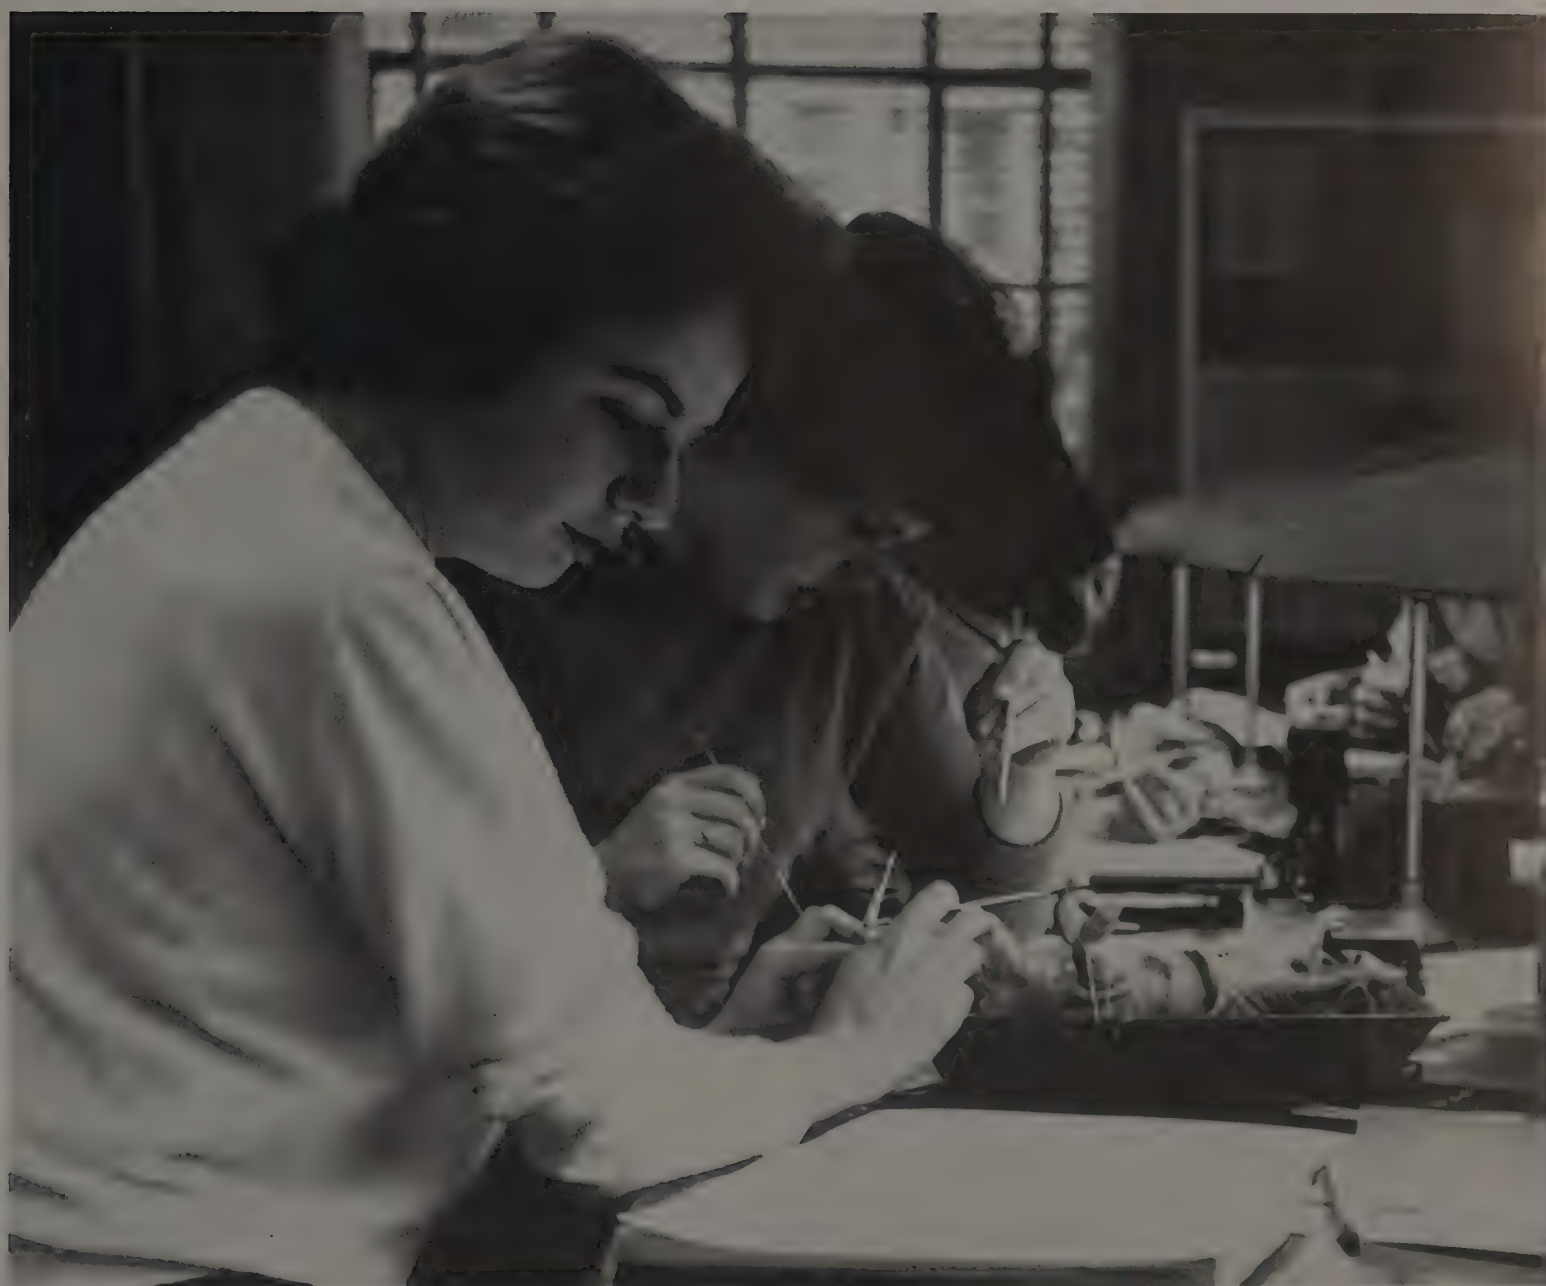

The grants have also helped the college add new faculty fellowships for graduate study, send faculty members abroad, bring visiting scholars to I. U., improve the library series, and develop training in modern foreign languages.

With the hope that more fully qualified language students will be attending the University, the College of Arts and Sciences is initiating a new honors program for high school students. Under the plan, 40 or 50 advanced students planning to take four years of language in high school will be sent abroad to study during their junior year.

The College of Arts and Sciences, founded in 1820, is the original Indiana University. Now one of the more than 20 divisions of the University, the college offers a rich program in literature, philosophy, the arts, the social sciences, and the natural sciences; it has one of the largest enrollments and faculties of any college in Indiana.

New Building for School of Business May Be at Tenth Street and Fee Lane

Aspirations for a new building for the School of Business have now become a reality. The new fully-equipped edifice may be located on Tenth Street and Fee Lane.

Along with the construction plans other activities and projects were initiated during the year. On December 8 the School of Business, in accordance with the Indiana Bankers Association, conducted a career conference to acclimate I. U. students who are interested in the banking profession. Earlier in the year a convocation was given for all undergraduate students in business. The students became familiar with the physical aspects and curriculum of the school.

The spring advisory committee presented a seminar to supplement the previously existing summer program for undergraduates and to orient students to new business developments.

The school's extra curricular programs are supported by the Senior Board of Directors. The group reviews the suggestions of the students for consideration by the faculty. All programs and activities are considered and directed by Dean Arthur M. Weimer.

School of Education Plans New Lab School

The biggest advancement made in the School of Education, according to Dean Harold G. Shane, is the plans for the new laboratory school to be erected just south of the golf course driving range. The new school will provide facilities for grades one through twelve as well as facilities for educable and trainable emotionally disturbed children. The new lab school will also provide for nearly 100 positions for student teachers, nearly twice the number now available. The school should be finished by 1963 or 1964.

I. U.'s School of Education is believed now to be the largest in the country with instructional staffs in Korea, Nigeria, and other outlying areas.

In co-ordination with the School of Education is the Division of Library Science. The range of curricula offered to graduates in library science has grown in the last three years; particular effort is now being made toward the training of college and university bibliographers and cataloguers in Slavic-language and Asian-language materials. Miss Margaret Irene Rufsvold is director of the Division of Library Science.

New HPER Building Dedicated in December, 1961

Possession of the basketball isn't too desirable when three opponents are closing in.

Dedication of the new Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Building took place December 8, 1961. The annual Big Ten Conference was on the Indiana University campus in conjunction with the dedication. The new building, an annex of the old fieldhouse, houses an Olympic swimming pool, a diving pool, three large gymnasiums, classrooms, and laboratories.

Plans for further improvement include remodeling the old fieldhouse and the men's gymnasium this summer. After remodeling, the old fieldhouse will be used as a center for an expanded intramural program.

Included in the School of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation are seven departments offering service programs and graduate professional curriculums in these fields. Along with the new building and the remodeling programs, the school's staff, headed by Dean Arthur S. Daniels, has begun revamping the undergraduate curriculum to allow majors a broader study of the arts and sciences. In addition, long-range planning for the development of the school has resulted in more emphasis on research in the reorganized graduate program.

School of Law Initiates Comparative Law Program

With a modest approach consisting of individual lectures, the School of Law has begun working toward a development program in comparative law. According to Leon H. Wallace, Dean of the School of Law, the program gives recognition to systems of law developed in other countries and world areas.

Law students and faculty members moved into the Law Building on Indiana Avenue near Third Street in September, 1956; the building was dedicated in October, 1957.

In 1944 the University took over the privately-owned Indiana Law School in Indianapolis. Although there are law school divisions in both Bloomington and Indianapolis, they compose only one school. The Bloomington school is for full-time students living on campus; the Indianapolis division conducts only evening classes.

In addition to acquiring the new division, the Law School faculty has tripled in the last twenty-five years. It has risen from eight to 14 faculty members on campus, and 10 members were added when the Indianapolis division was acquired.

The School of Law has no departments such as are found in other schools of the University, although there have been a number of courses added to the school's curriculum. Some of these courses are in the fields of federal income and estate taxation, administrative law, labor law, and trade regulation.

Music Building Annex Dedicated in March, 1962

Dean Wilfred C. Bain

Under the direction of Wilfred C. Bain, who became dean in 1947, the School of Music realized one of its major goals when the new annex to the Music Building was dedicated on March 18, 1962. The annex houses a recital hall and practice rooms. Even as this phase of development was being completed, the staff was planning a new wing of classrooms and a new opera house.

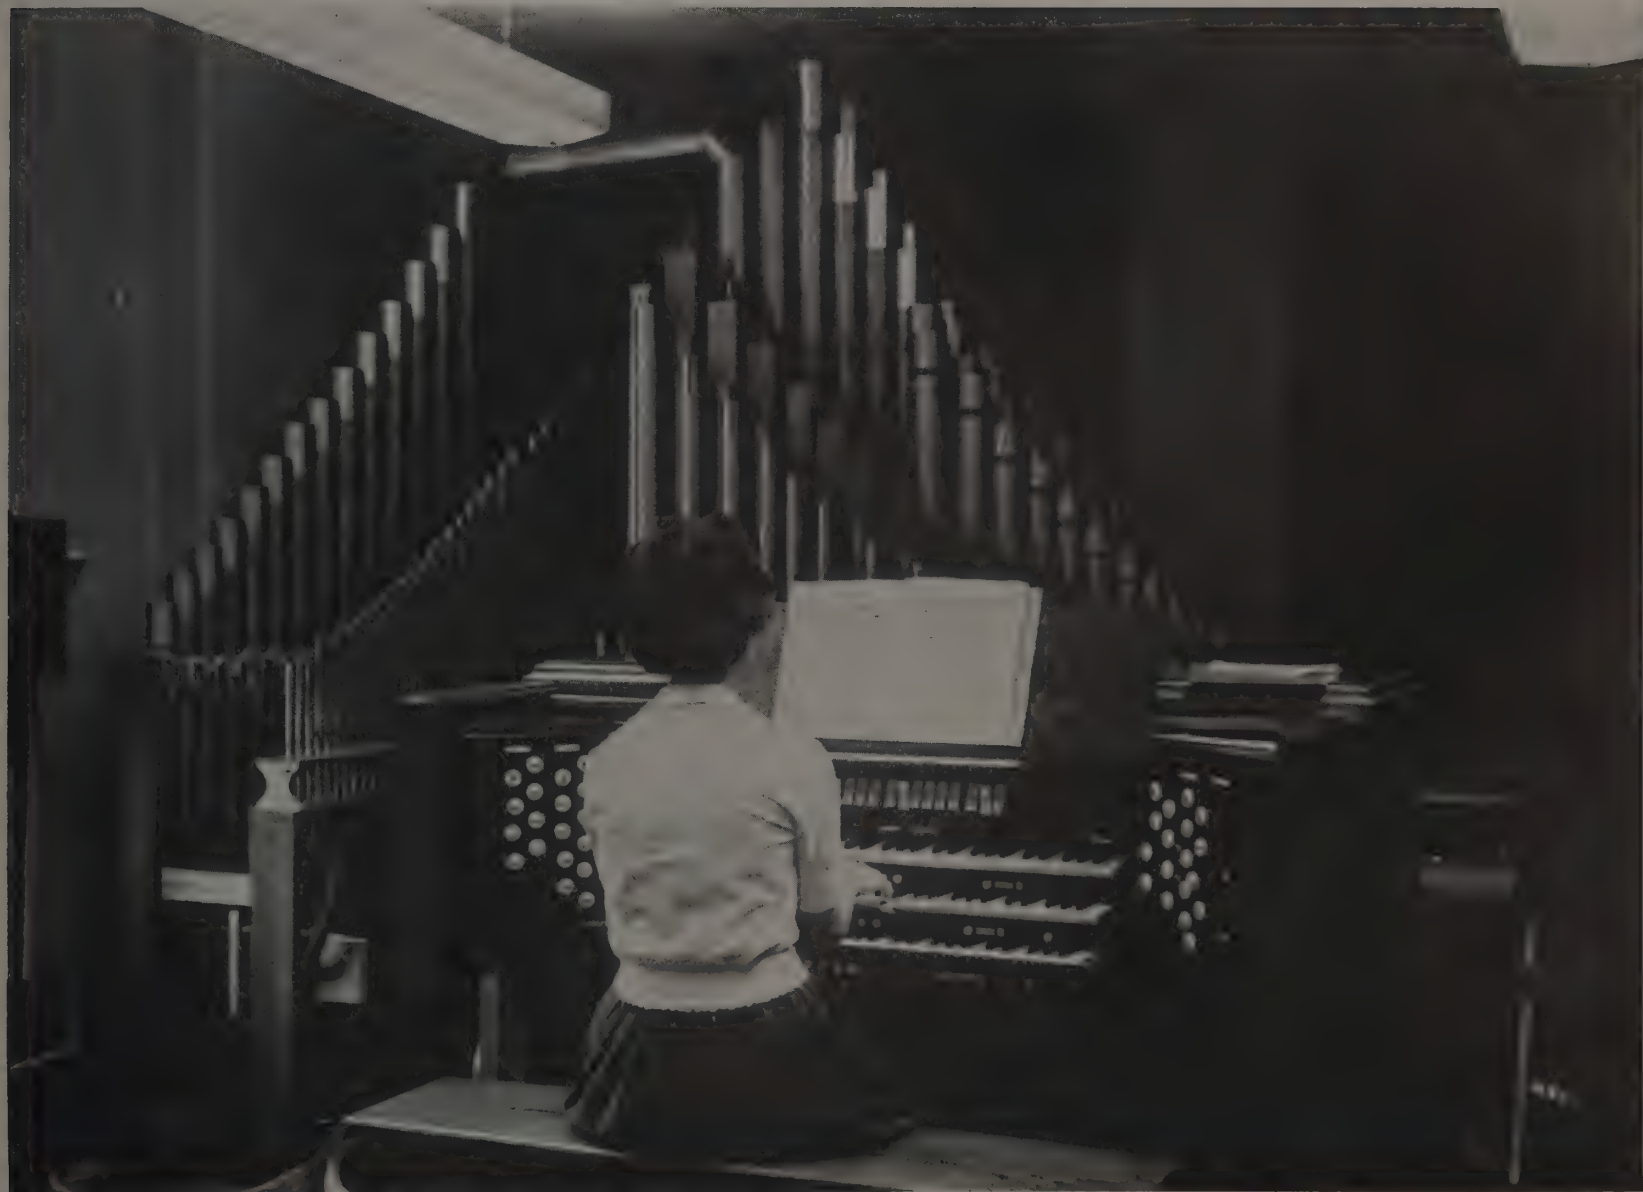

The music school is one of the leading institutions of its kind. It offers the student rich experiences in every field of music. Outstanding musicians and renowned guest artists are available to the music student, and the Berkshire Quartet has been in residence on the Indiana University campus since 1947.

Student participation is encouraged, and any musical interest can be satisfied. The school has a large number of orchestras, bands, ensembles, and singing groups, many of whom are well known.

For the student wishing to teach music, requirements in both graduate and undergraduate programs meet those of almost any state, so that the student may teach immediately upon graduation.

The School of Music's new building is complemented by the new organ.

Division of Optometry in Tenth Year at I. U.

In 1951 a mandate from the state legislature created the Indiana University Division of Optometry. The division's program was begun in 1952 with one faculty member. Having grown rapidly in its nine years on campus, the division now occupies space in six buildings and has 22 persons serving on the research, clinic, and office staffs. Plans are underway to construct an optometry building.

It is estimated that the optometry clinic in Foley House serves 1,200 persons yearly with orders for glasses, orthoptics, special visual tests, and contact lens fittings. One interesting trend in the clinical program has been the remarkable increase in contact lens usage. In the last three years, 600 patients have been fitted.

The first optometry class was graduated in June 1956. To date about 120 students have received degrees through the Division of Optometry. Of these graduates, about half are now practicing in Indiana while the remainder are engaged in practice in the military service, in other states, and sundry appointments.

University's Medical Center

"OK, boys! get the eggs ready! Here they come." The time was 1957, the last of the Med-Law boresses. The next fall, all freshmen medical students joined their upperclassmen at the newly expanded Medical Center in Indianapolis.

The I. U. School of Medicine was established on the Bloomington campus in 1903; but in 1909, the school and a number of other colleges in Indianapolis combined under one name to form the I. U. Medical Center.

In 1947 John D. Van Nuys became Dean of the School of Medicine, after the retirement of Dean Willis D. Gatch. Dr. Gatch, who had been dean of the Indianapolis division since 1931, assumed the additional guidance of the Bloomington branch during the 1940's in order to assure continuity of training. During his career, he invented a number of medical aids, such as the adjustable hospital bed. In January, 1962, death came to a man often called, "Indiana's foremost surgeon."

During the summer of 1961, the School of Medicine received the largest grant in Indiana University history. The grant of over four million dollars, given by the National Heart Institute, will be used to study prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of major types of heart diseases and their related disorders. The school also received two other grants: one to study heart and lung stresses in space travel, and the other for research on early childhood schizophrenia.

Three years ago, an experimental program in medical education was launched on the Bloomington campus. This is a graduate-level program designed to interest people in, and train them for, a career in medical teaching. However, the program is set up so that a student can get a degree in pure medicine if he wishes.

In 1914 the I. U. Training School for Nurses was established as part of the Medical Center. In 1950 the School of Nursing began its switch from a three-year preparatory program to a four-year collegiate program. Under the direction of Miss Emily Holmquist, dean since 1957, the school recently received accreditation for this program from the National League for Nursing.

Indiana University bought the Indiana Dental College in 1925, and, in 1934, it was moved to the Medical Center. Since then, it has been growing constantly. In the spring of 1962, dedication ceremonies were held for the school's new building.

Under the guidance of Dean Maynard K. Hine since 1945, the School of Dentistry has had one of the most active and wide-spread research programs in the University. It has been instrumental in the development of such things as a new filling material and several oral hygiene products.

The Division of Allied Health Sciences, directed by Aaron Louis Andrews, was formed in 1959. Undergraduates study at Bloomington—graduates at Indianapolis—in preparation for careers in physical and occupational therapy, dental hygiene, and other fields closely related to medicine.

The Division of Social Service is the only school in Indiana to offer professional education in social work. The two-year, graduate program involves both classroom and field work. Under the directorship of Miss Mary Houk, the school gives preparation for work in both public and voluntary social services.

In September, 1953, the Student Union and Food Service building was dedicated. Its director, Raymond A. Dault, presides over the complex of housing, cafeterias, conference and recreation rooms, and swimming pool. Most activities center around the Union and the Union Board, which is made up of two representatives from each of the Indiana University schools at Indianapolis. The group sponsors dances, intramural sports, a concert series, and an International Relations Lecture Series featuring guest speakers from the American University Field Staff, Inc.

1150 Men Enrolled in 1961-1962 Program Of Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps

Advanced cadets were taught methods of survival in water on a hot summer day.

It is the purpose of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps to develop leadership qualities in the college men who participate in the program. In 1961-1962, there were 1,150 men enrolled in the AFROTC program at I. U. Qualified students who participate in the two-year advanced program are commissioned as second lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve upon graduation.

Cadets in AFROTC study military courtesy, air science, including aerospace power, and the organization and operation of the military arm of the United States Government. These courses combine drill, laboratory periods, and classroom instruction. Flight training is part of the advanced program.

A number of trophies, awards, and decorations are presented each year to outstanding cadets. The awards are presented during a suitable military ceremony and are often given by noted military and civilian leaders.

Extracurricular activities of the Air Force ROTC program include a band, a basketball team, and a precision drill team.

Classroom knowledge of communication methods is tested during summer maneuvers.

Interest in Army ROTC Runs High As Military Crises Arise Around World

During simulated battle operations, cadets practiced the use of mortar fire to support the attacking troops.

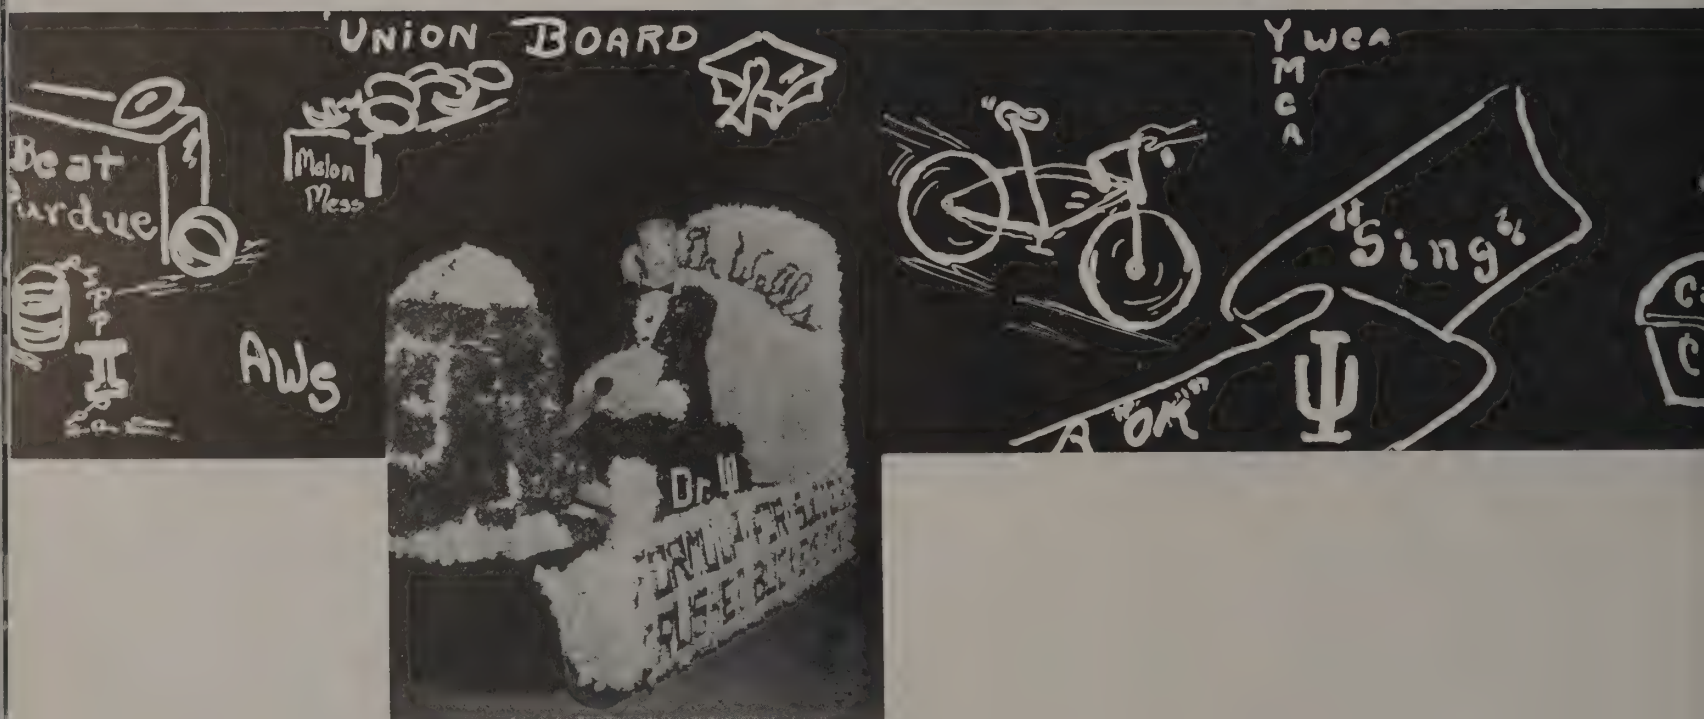

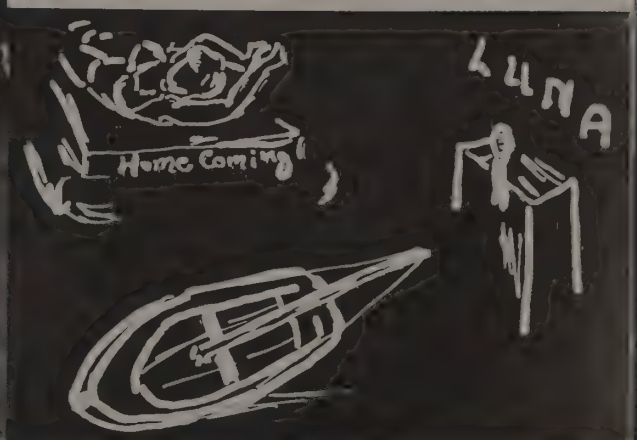

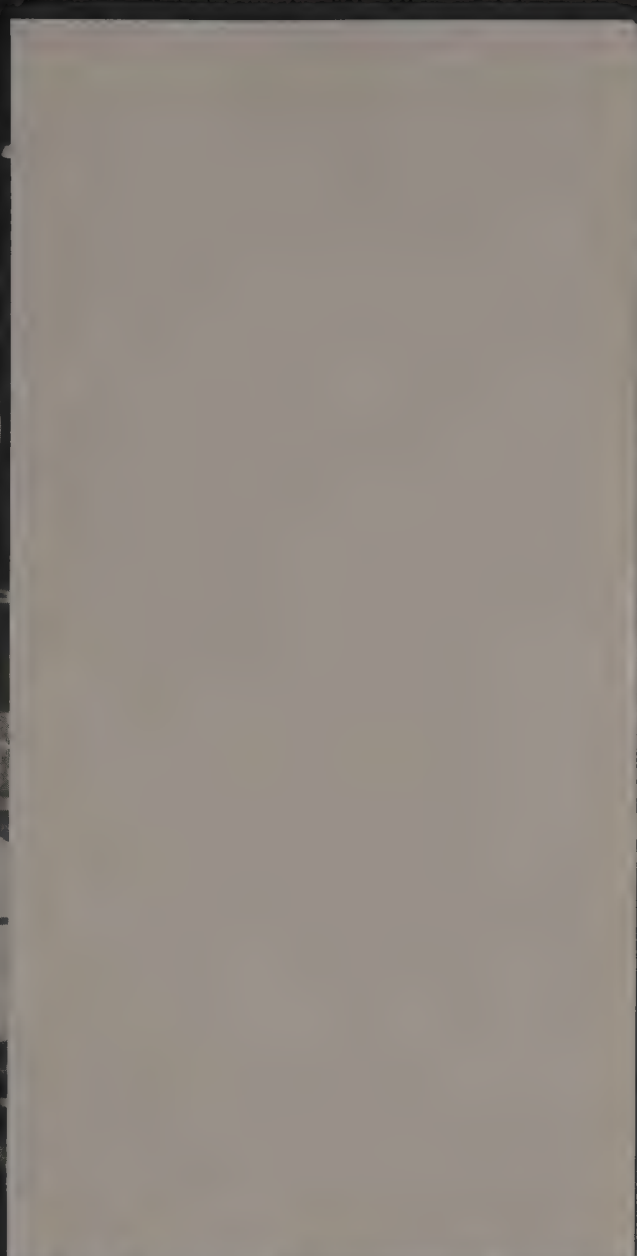

Interest in military affairs ran high this year in Army ROTC primarily due to the unsettled world affairs and the Berlin situation. As a result of the crisis in Germany, Army Reserve forces were partially mobilized.

As the training program for reserve officers has become more established, the Indiana plan has come into increasing use as witnessed by the Department of History assuming responsibility for a former ROTC subject, American Military History.

Another new facet of the training program this year was reducing contact hours for freshmen cadets from three hours to two hours each week.

With each ROTC cadet on the drill field for 30 hours in leadership laboratory, competence in basic military concepts and procedures will be developed to a fuller extent. Through this combination of military training with academic emphasis, our student citizens of today will be better prepared for tomorrow's military affairs.

Orientation Week Activities of 1961 Make Yesterday's Do-It-Yourself System Passe

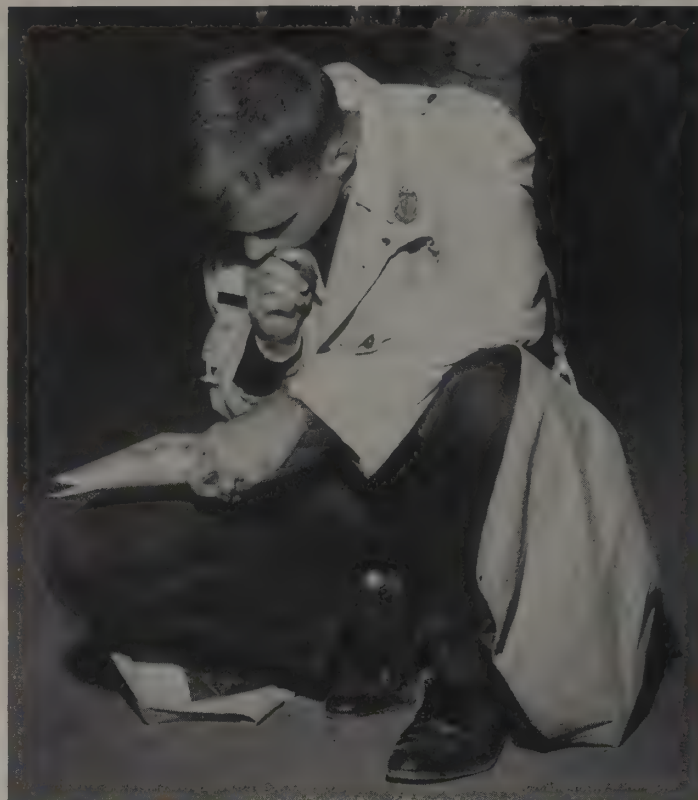

Signs, student leaders, registration workers, and friendly upperclassmen point the way for the newcomer at Indiana University.

In the early days of the University, the new student was left to orientate himself to I. U. as best he could. But today's Orientation Week activities are a far cry from the old do-it-yourself system.

The University itself conducts a combined testing and counselling program; the YWCA and YMCA co-sponsor a student leader program, and the Y's and Junior Division offer 200 freshmen an opportunity to attend Freshman Camp and get a preview of academic, social, and cultural life at I. U.

On Wednesday evening of Orientation Week, Union Board and Student Government present Activities Night, when students can learn about the various student clubs and organizations on campus.

After registration on Friday and Saturday, the new student gets into full swing as he starts his first semester of classes at I. U.

How did I get three classes at the same time?

It's the end of the line, but . . .

New students learn about extracurricular activities during Activities Night.

The Kappa Pickers provided the entertainment and the Sigma Chis contributed the melons for the year's first social event.

Melon Mess Starts Year With Seeds and Music

Cars move, a crowd collects, and the fun begins each fall when the Sigma Chi sponsor their campus and community Watermelon Mess. Bright, Greek-lettered sweatshirts dart through the milling hundreds. Sorority pledges are on the job.

The sleepy little street corner at Indiana and Kirkwood, ablaze with lights and slippery with seeds, set the stage for an all-campus talent show. Don Scott introduced entertainment to eat watermelon by—the homegrown arrangements of the Kappa Pickers and his own brand of humor. Wanda Wallace's flaming batons lit up the sky, and Lou Ann Cochran, the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, charmed her audience.

A few adventurous dancers performed the twist to the music of Vic Knight's Combo. Miss Cochran joined VIP's in the traditional melon eating contest.

Seeds flew and onlookers cheered while watermelons disappeared inside Robert H. Shaffer, Dean of Students; President Herman B Wells; Claude Rich, Alumni Secretary; Mayor Thomas L. Lemon; Phil Dickens, head football coach, and Branch McCracken, head basketball coach. Miss Cochran was named winner.

Sigma Chi pledges dissected more than 1,000 melons for students, faculty, and townspeople. It was the first week of classes. Everybody ate. They had fun.

Street Dance Draws 3000 for Back to School Fling

Crowded conditions at the Delt Street Dance gave students ample opportunity to practice the twist.

The glow of street lights, a backdrop of brilliant foliage shadowed in the twilight, and music that shouted "Let's dance!" invited students to the annual Delt Street Dance on Friday, September 22.

The return to school became a reason for fun and frolic, and Delta Tau Delta fraternity roped off the block from the corner of Eighth and Indiana to Fess for the twelfth annual celebration. For 3,000 students it was back to campus, back to fun, back to dancing.

Arnie Goldberg's Band played the gamut from "Peanut Butter" to "The Saints," and the crowd applauded. They appreciated. They learned the twist.

Curbs became sidewalk resting places, and during intermissions visitors toured the Delt house. A new season had begun. It was fall on campus, time for new friendships, picnics in Brown County. A time for a new beginning, for dancing in the streets.

Intermission found groups getting together to rehash the summer's events.

Arnie and His Soul Brothers introduced their recording of "The Prune."

The plans, preparations, and final countdown included a bit of monkey business.

'Hi VIP' Echoes Over Campus for Dad's Weekend

"Hi VIP!" echoed through dormitories, fraternities, and sororities alike when students welcomed their fathers to Indiana University September 22 for Dad's Weekend. Dads joined thousands of cheering Hoosiers and the Marching Hundred at the first pep rally of the season on Friday evening. Later, the University Theatre's opening performance of "Three Men on a Horse" lived up to its reputation established at the Brown County Playhouse in the summer and delighted dads and students.

During the opening ceremonies of the Indiana-Wisconsin game, fathers of the football players were introduced and all fathers were officially welcomed to the campus festivities. Food, handshakes, and decorations created an atmosphere of Hoosier hospitality during the open houses in the student residences.

Pinmen were ignored Saturday night when coeds escorted their favorite dates, their fathers, to the Buddy Hackett show, one of the programs in the Pop Concert series. A grande finale of hayrides, dances, and exchange teas sent the dads away smiling and the students back to their textbooks.

Looks like more kibitzers than workers, but it all got done on time.

Carnival Lives Up to Predictions as Record-Breaker

In a serious moment at the carnival two coeds sign the gigantic birthday greeting for Ray Pavy.

"Come one, come all to the 1961 Fall Carnival! I tell you true, Ladies and Gents, this year's Fall Carnival is going to break all records!" And true to predictions, Fall Carnival broke records not only in profits, but in attendance, participation, and solicitations as well.

The once barren fieldhouse was animated with all the gala trimmings of a spectacular jubilee. The bright lights, games of chance, cotton candy, college Joes as carnival barkers, and coeds as dance hall girls were all a part of the carnival fairy land.

The crowd was tense as it awaited the midnight announcement of the trophy winners. New carnival champions were: Alpha Chi Omega and Phi Delta Theta, best show; Chi Omega and Chi Phi, best game of chance; Kappa Alpha Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, originality and design for show; Landis House and Dodds House, originality and design for game of chance; and Alpha Epsilon Phi and Sigma Nu, best pre-publicity among all entries.

"Maybe if I stay up here everyone will think I'm busy."

Cheerleaders, Coach Dickens, and the Marching Hundred whipped up Homecoming enthusiasm.

Myriad Activities Make Homecoming Outstanding

"Touchdown!" screamed cream and crimson clad cheerleaders. "Touchdown!" was the excited echo from thousands of alumni attending the Indiana-Ohio State football game, the high point of the 1961-1962 Homecoming Weekend.

Convertibles rolled around the grassy football field, and fans cheered as Governor Matthew E. Welsh stepped to the 50-yard line. Bright sweaters sparkled. A chosen few smiled at the audience. One smile glowed brighter than the rest, and a queen was crowned.

Textbooks were traded for hammers and crepe paper weeks before the command performance. And there were results. Decorated lawns and a parade of Homecoming floats welcomed the alumni to a campus they hardly recognized. To win is everything to the housing units. To enjoy is the intent of returning alumni.

Energy is not solely possessed by the young. The alumni danced at a blanket hop, visited the variety show. They toured their University, stopped at familiar landmarks and remembered. They came home.

Furious line play kept the scoring down in the Ohio State game.

President Wells was presented a copy of a song dedicated to him by the Marching Hundred.

Lambda Chis made use of the historic date in their float.

Members of former years' squads were honored at Homecoming festivities.

Winter Outside and 'Autumn Gold' Inside Set the Scene for Freshman Tyronian Dance

Winter's touch—a leaf-shaped carving of ice—gave "Autumn Gold," the Freshman Tyronian dance, an extra touch of glamour November 17 in Alumni Hall. A latticed arch woven with colored leaves served as the entrance to the dance; students strolled under the arch and voted for king and queen candidates before the dancing began.

Diana Ballenger, Read Center, and Randy Roberts, Beta Theta Pi, the royal victors, received their crowns from Mike Cooper and Priscilla Logan, freshmen. Escorting the royalty during the fall frolic were members of the court—Lynn Alexander, Morrison Hall and Wells Quad; Leslie Armstrong, and Alice Camplejohn, Read Center; Suzanne Shott, Tower Center; Dennis Krueger, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Donald Pletcher, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Rich Burns, Phi Kappa Psi, and Marty Lebowitz, Zeta Beta Tau.

The voice of soloist Ann Houston and the music of Al Cobine's 14-piece band buoyed the freshman enthusiasm during the first class dance.

Diana Ballenger and Randy Roberts reigned over Tyronian festivities.

Though Jawn Purdue Goes Up in Flames, His Ghost Comes Back to Claim the Bucket

Jawn Purdue writhed in agony at his annual cremation Tuesday night before the annual Old Oaken Bucket football game. University students were going home to Thanksgiving turkey. He had to die.

Jawn's ghost enjoyed the battle Saturday when his Boilermakers spoiled Hoosier appetites for the rest of the semester. The Bucket went back to Purdue. Jawn yawned peacefully in his grave. And the University thought hopefully of its powers with spherical weapons.

The Oaken Bucket, which has swung up the Monon 25 times, was rescued from an old Indiana well 37 years ago when the battle first began. School rivalry, manifested in the alumni, first burst onto the gridiron in 1925 when alumni groups concocted the series.

Fightin' Hoosiers fought. Ox encouraged them from the sidelines. The cream and crimson clan had its own six-feet-ten-inch Winston-Fairfield style "Golden Girl." But the Hoosiers were forced to retreat, and they lost.

Dizzy from the battle, fans saw double when Purdue's band appeared in twin formations during half-time. But the Marching Hundred rallied and launched a rocket in its cold war attack set aflame. Music blared a challenge. Onlookers knew the glory of war.

Tension relaxed to formal cordiality at the open house for diplomats sponsored by junior classes of the two universities. It was a time for talk, a time for debate. Representatives of the two wings laughed, chatted, pretended. The flames receded. Cold war reigned again.

Unfortunately Bob Cook's story of the massacre of Ole Jawn Purdue proved to be a fairy tale.

Jim Helminiak and Woody Moore combine to pull down Purdue's piledriving Roy Walker.

Post-game tension eased during a reception given by the junior classes from I. U. and Purdue.

The Purdue game was highlighted by the appearance of I. U.'s version of the Golden Girl and a friend.

The discussion of national affairs has widened the scope of the Student Senate.

Student Government Comes Long Way Since First Student Council of 1942

Student government at Indiana University was begun in 1942 with the establishment of a Student Council. Composed of 12 persons, the group was set up to maintain arbitrary equality between men and women and organized and independent students. Members of the governing board were elected by the entire student body, and, in turn, the 12 representatives elected student officers from their own number.

In 1944, the Student Council organized the first class governments for the purpose of promoting unity and spirit within the classes. In general, however, the Student Council did not achieve as much as was expected. The forced equality of its organizational form would not allow it to act as decisively and effectively as was sometimes necessary. Final proof of the perils of its equal representation came in 1947. That year the Student Council president was elected by the flip of a coin, since the vote remained split along the line of social affiliation.

Students also decided that the 12-man board was too small to operate effectively and that one of the major goals of the Student Council, student representation on University committees, was not likely to be soon accomplished.

A group of students gained permission to formulate plans for a new form of student government. In 1948 a University-approved constitution was presented to the Student Council at a mass meeting of students who formally accepted it.

The new system of student government, was based on the Federal and Indiana State Legislatures, following their three-part system of legislative, judicial, and executive divisions. The present form of student government is essentially the same as in 1949 when Bill Powell was elected the first student government president.

The Student Senate, especially, has widened in scope since its beginnings. From problems of student representation on the Faculty Council, development of an honor system, and solution of the ever-present parking problem, it has moved on to considerations of national affairs. One of the longest and most bitter battles was waged over the question of Indiana University's entrance into the National Students Association.

In December, 1960, a long-standing need for co-ordination of student activities was fulfilled with the creation of the Committee for Student Activities. The University committee is composed of 13 student, 6 faculty, and 7 administration members who are entrusted with maintaining a balanced activities program.

Throughout its existence, the Senate has had three major purposes: to represent student thought and opinion to University officials about student-concerned matters, to train students in the techniques of democratic leadership, and to bring improved conditions to students through Senate legislation. Its members have accomplished this so well that President Wells ranked it with the Faculty Council, the Staff Council, and the Board of Trustees as one of the four major groups contributing to University policy.

The efforts of campaigning are judged as the ballot is cast.

The State of the Campus Address was delivered to the Student Senate by the President of the Student Body, Jim Taylor.

'Long Ago and Far Away' Medieval Life Recreated for Opening of Formal Dance

"Long Ago and Far Away" there prevailed a legendary land of kings, queens, crusades, and dragons. The Age of Chivalry was recreated for the Opening of Formal dance in Alumni Hall complete with a tapestry of valiant King Arthur's era.

Kings and queens, princes and princesses entered the courtyard of the palace over a medieval moat. Maidens of the court admitted the guests and gave rose corsages to the ladies. The gala ball, held in the courtyard, assumed the magical atmosphere of gaiety and festivity. Banners bearing the royal coat of arms decorated the court walls in colorful profusion. Entertainment was furnished, not by the court jester, but by the voices and orchestra of Peter Palmer.

Even in the days of King Arthur parties ended, music stopped, and merry-makers left. But it was more than a party ending, it was a land of "Long Ago and Far Away" drifting back into the pages of history.

Formal or not, the twist is here.

Peter Palmer's orchestra played for the Opening of Formal Dance.

Christmas Season Brings Flurry of Activities

The refrain of "Peace on earth, good will to men" echoed across the world, the country, the state, the campus. Once again tensions eased and smiles brightened as Christmas came to Indiana University.

Observances of the Christmas holidays have grown from small groups of carolers who alerted the campus with cheerful songs in the early part of the century to well-organized celebrations in 1961.

In 1939 the YWCA and the YMCA combined with other groups to herald the Christmas season, and today the Chimes of Christmas is presented annually under direction of the Y's. Christmas Eve on Campus includes the Chimes program and a campus-wide dance with Santa Claus Herman B Wells as special guest.

Among the many traditional musical productions of the campus holiday season are the "Nutcracker Ballet" and "The Messiah," both presented by the School of Music.

Parties for Exchange Home children demonstrate the students' holiday spirit.

I. U. 'Finals' Performance Shows Proof Of Increased Work and Concentration

"Hey, Sally, how about a coke break?"

"Are you joking? I have to reread my entire psychology book! Finals are next week!"

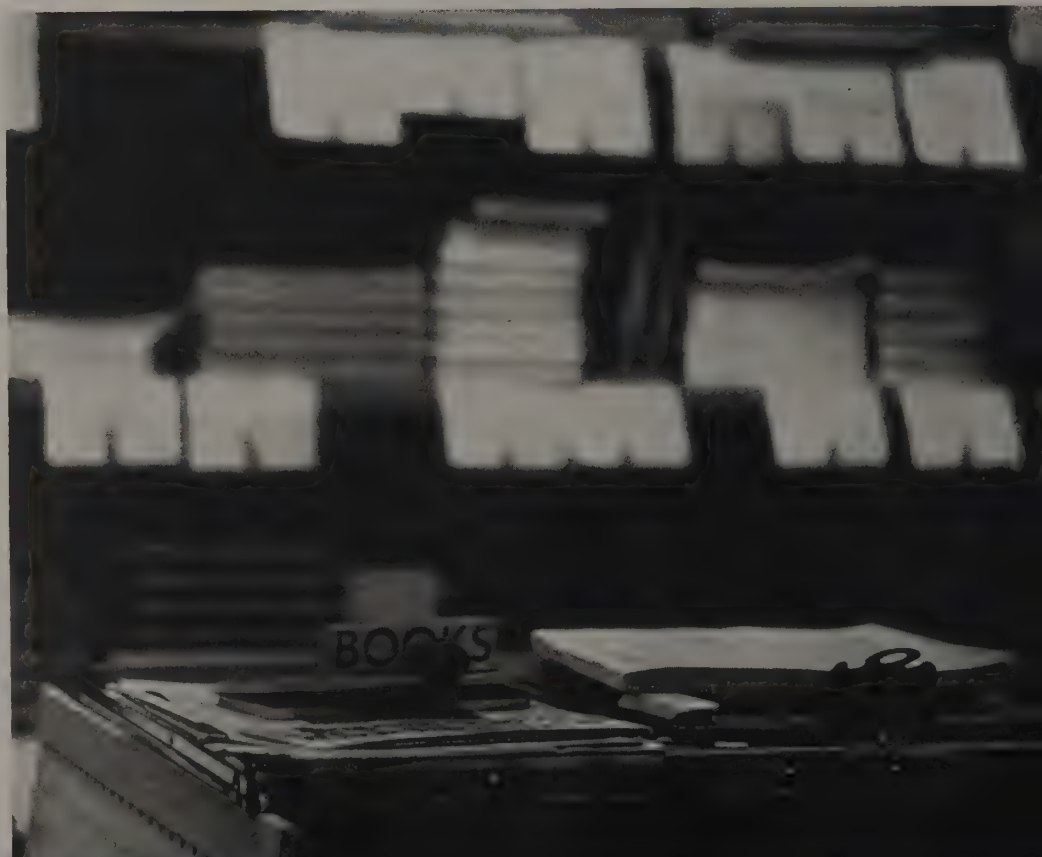

Yes, finals. After months of coaching and directing, the players are on their own. The last curtain call has been given and the players are nervously awaiting the opening curtain for the semester's grand finale.

Even the stage itself has changed in the immediate weeks of preparation before the last act. The library buses as well as the libraries are overflowing with conscientious actors studying their lines. Every quiet or even noisy corner is filled with thespians memorizing their part or intently devising illegal prompting sheets.

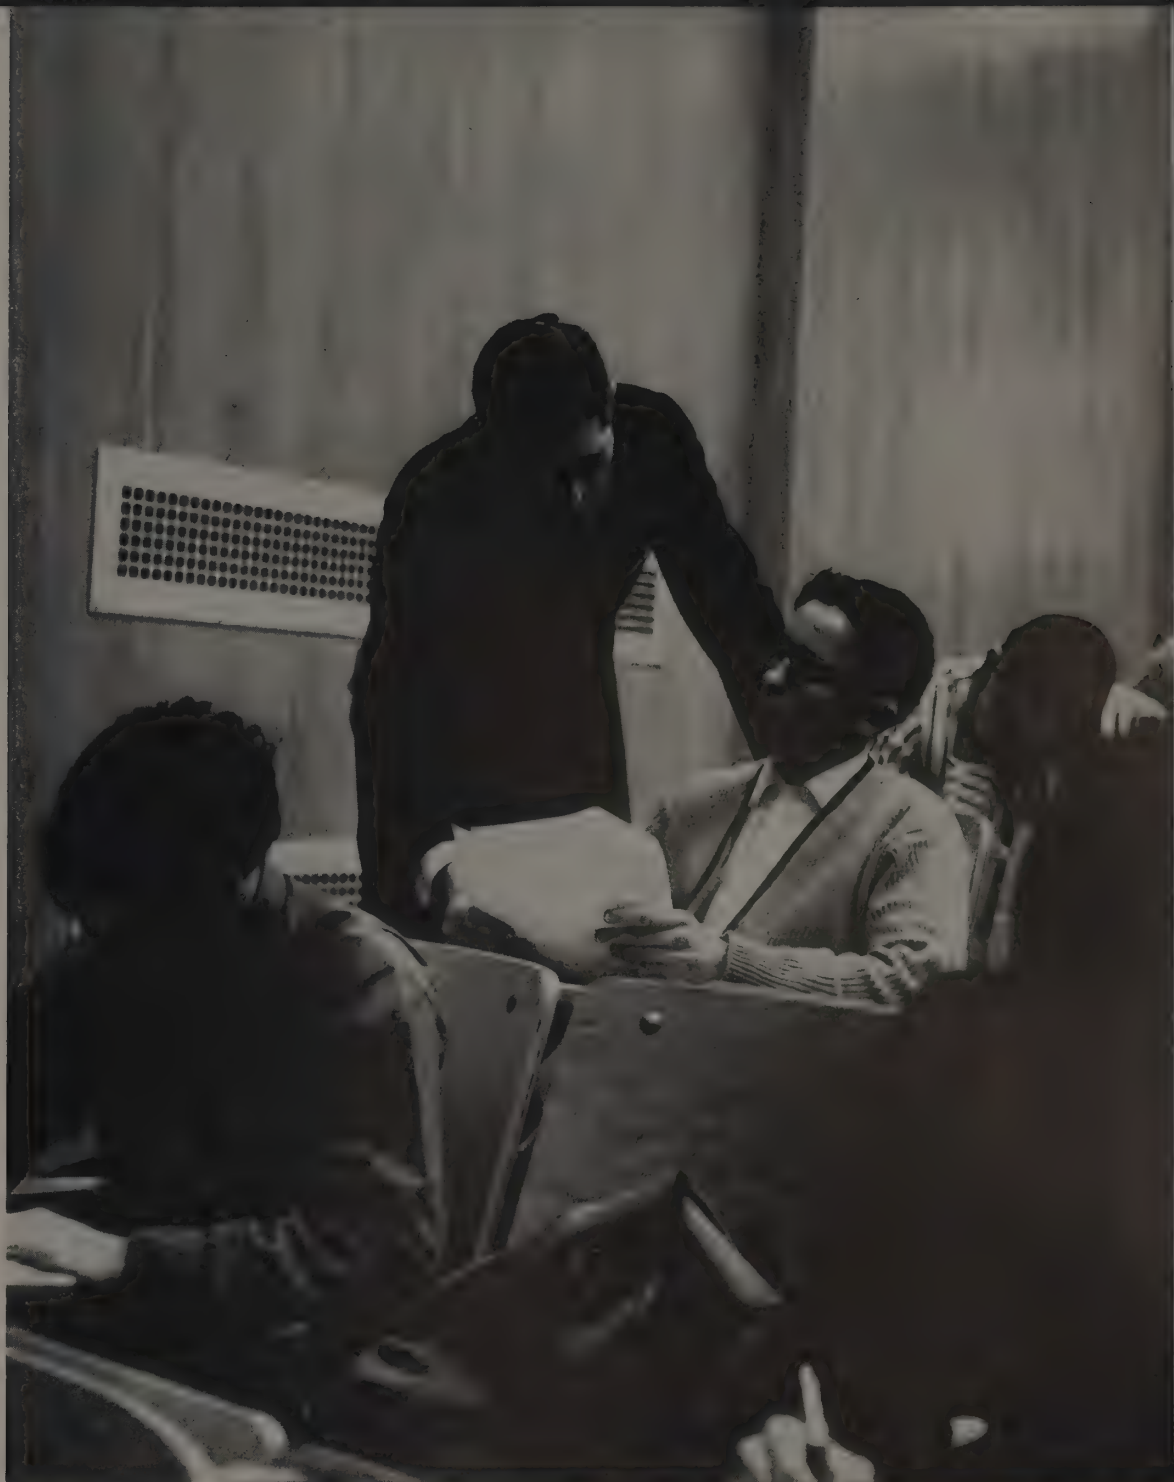

Each trouper assumes a role. The comedian, who breaks up the troupe, plays his role by ear, but makes work hard for the others. The dramatist is, as always, overplaying his part with the usual coffee and all-night stands. The ingenue is not quite familiar with the routines and is taken in by every new method.

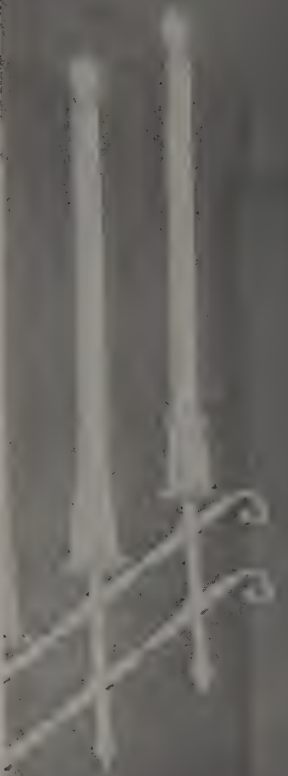

The final act is given. The reviews show failure for some, success for others. "The play's the thing . . ." during final week on campus.

Informal chats serve to give the lowdown at rush parties.

Methods of Rushing Changed Since 1916

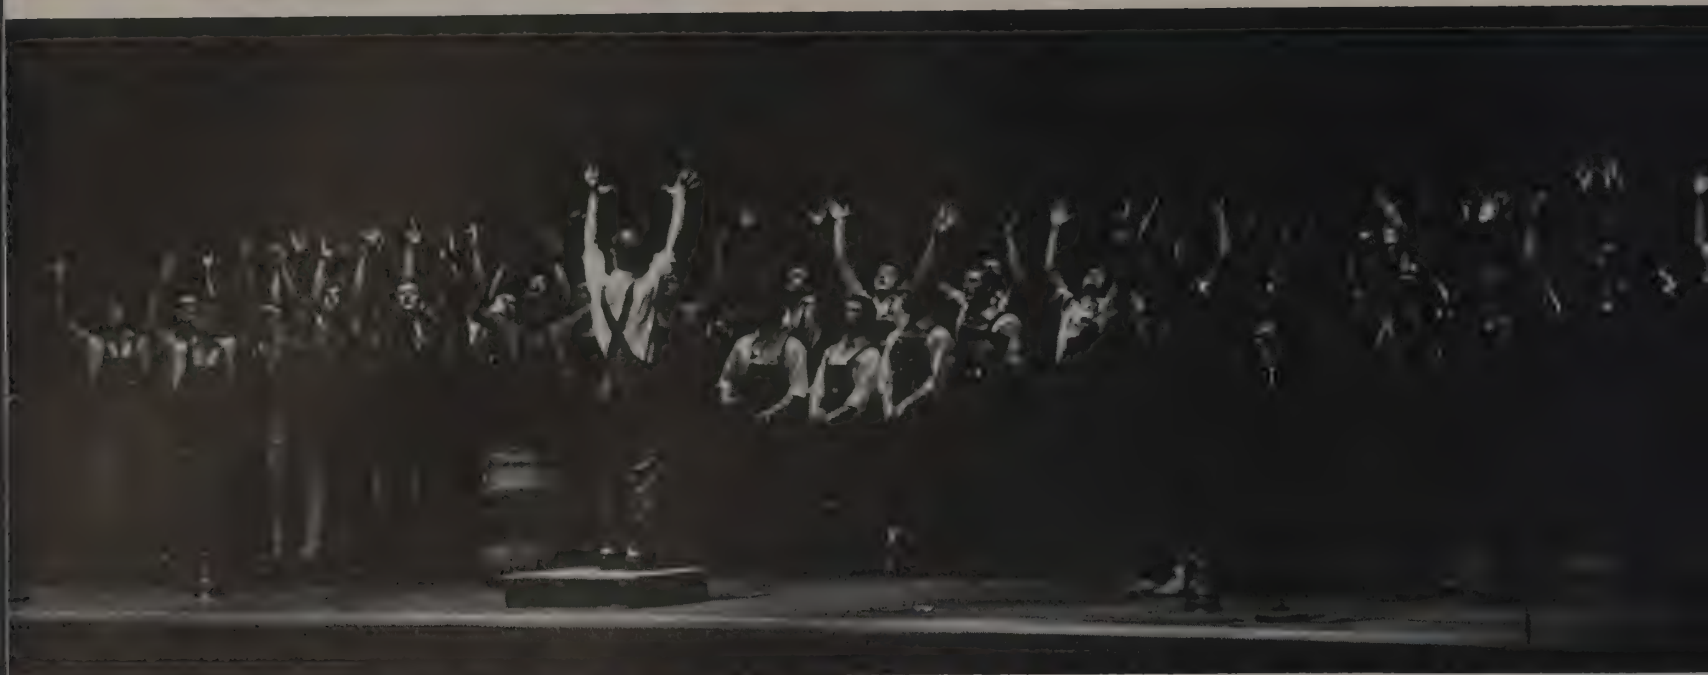

Sorority rush has changed a lot since 1916 when sorority actives met trains and buses coming into Bloomington, selected their rushees, and whisked them off to the Dean of Women's office to sign a pledge card.

Because Indiana University sororities operate on a deferred rushing system, freshman women cannot pledge until second semester. In 1961, however, rushees found themselves involved in preliminary rush activities which began in September and October.

Coke parties were next on the agenda. With a background of skits and refreshments, sorority women and rushees had a chance to become better acquainted.

On the heels of semester break came formal rush. During the four days of rush, coeds and sororities made their choices. Finally the day of silence ended as Panhellenic delivered final pairings and pledgship was begun for 419 coeds.

"Rural Rhythm," by the Lambda Chi Alphas, was acclaimed tops in the men's choral division as well as the best overall presentation of the 1962 I. U. Sing.

Memories burned anew as the Alpha Xis proved that "The Melodies Linger On."

'All on Key' Theme Followed Through As Lambda Chi Alphas Win I. U. Sing

Under the shadow of a space-age piano keyboard, housing groups sang "A-OK" at the I. U. Sing February 23 to 24, with all rockets firing "All On Key."

Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity opened the spaceman judges' eyes with their rollicking "Rural Rhythm" and won awards for men's choral and best overall performance. Peter Pan fluttered as high as the rocket in the winning production number, "Visions of Disney," staged by Alpha Phi sorority and Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Delta Delta Delta sorority and Sigma Nu fraternity sang a "Tribute to Indiana Songwriters" and won their own tribute, the trophy for mixed choral. Kappa Delta sorority rolled back a black curtain of time to the pre-space-age days of the Civil War with "Centennial Tribute" and earned the women's choral trophy. Tower Center won the small group award with "Purdue Enters the I. U. Sing."

And when the dust had settled and the rocket was safely back on its launching pad, the judges smiled; the audience clapped. I. U. was in harmony; the students were A-OK.

Lambda Chi Alpha copped the coveted travelling trophy for the best overall performance this year.

The Tri Delt-Sigma Nu "Tribute to Indiana Songwriters" won first in the mixed choral division.

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs gained the spotlight in the "Visions of Disney" that took top honors in the production category for Alpha Tau Omega and Alpha Phi.

"Purdue Enters the I. U. Sing" gave the trophy for first place in the small group division to Tower Center.

Alpha Chi Omega won second place in the small group division with "I've Got You Under My Skin."

The old Deep South came to life in the Kappa's production of "Minstrel Magic."

"Centennial Tribute" by the Kappa Deltas won first place in women's choral.

With "Songs of the South," Delta Zeta won second place in women's choral.

A swinging version of "Mitch Miller Goes Greek" won the Betas second place for men's choral.

Outstanding Coeds Honored at AWS Mass Meeting

The Auditorium was the scene of mixed emotions on March 20 during the AWS Mass Meeting that honored outstanding coeds for their services to the school and to various organizations.

Jane Marie Thompson, AWS; Caroly Clevenger, Panhellenic Council; Betty Beckort, IRHA; Pam Menke, YWCA, and Sue Hubbard, WRA, each told the functions of their organizations and either introduced the new officers or candidates for the offices.

The Kappa Pickers entertained while the women elected Ruth Silver for president of AWS. The latest pledges of Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Lambda Delta were read.

Later the presidents of the other honoraries—Angel Flight, Enomone, Pamarada, and Pleiades—announced their new members. Mortar Boards tapped 25 new members to the national honorary for senior women.

Faculty Members Let Down Their Hair As They Pay Tribute to President Wells

Coach Phil Dickens serves at a coffee break because "I need all the breaks I can get."

"Let down your hair," someone said. So they did! From vice-presidents impersonating janitors to a coach serving at a coffee break, the University Club enthralled both President Wells and other faculty members with a boress play in tribute to the retiring President.

"All's Wells That Ends Well," mocked the campus parking situation, poked a gentle jab at the athletic predicaments, and made fun of the elevator situation in Ballantine Hall.

The theme revolved around two Daily Student reporters who were sent off in search of the meaning of the "B" in Herman B (no period) Wells. Well entertained during their journey, the college "Joe" and "Jill" discovered eventually that the "B" meant "Be Yourself."

During the finale the University Club presented to Dr. Wells and his mother, Mrs. Granville Wells, honorary memberships to the club and gold keys to the clubrooms.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon Wins Teke Chariot Race

Campus Greeks returned to classic entertainment during the annually celebrated Greek Week when fraternity men plummeted toward a finish line dragging their chariots behind them. Grecian goddess Annette Denning of Kappa Delta piloted the winning "horses," members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, to victory.

During the week, originally planned to promote understanding and helpfulness among fraternities and sororities, Greek badges sparkled a little more than usual, and the Greek houses clung together. Working toward goals set by the founding Falcon Club, the Interfraternity Council sponsored a workshop for an exchange of ideas among the brothers . . . and the sisters.

And down on the Jordan, Delta Upsilon and Delta Tau Delta exchanged tugs and pulls in the first Grecian Pull. The DU's won the tug 'o war and hurried off to get ready for a dance where rhythm from the Leon "Blow Joe" Evans and Al Cobine bands rapped out the week's swan song.

With drawn sabers an honor guard salutes Barbara Einstead, Military Ball Queen.

Amid Military Might, Barbi Einsteadig Reigns as Queen of 1962 Military Ball

Pershing Rifles and the Air Force ROTC Drill Team saluted, but the Army got the girl when Cadet Col. John S. Gall, senior, Army ROTC, escorted the University's new Military Ball queen through a saber arch February 16. Barbi Einsteadig, freshman, who represented Alpha Epsilon Phi and Read Center, smiled at her uniformed subjects and led her court at Military Ball, the dance for royalty and regalia.

The future guardians of the nation stood in their shiny brass and admired while the crown was slipped onto her majesty's head, for the coronation was an all-woman affair. Members of the court—Leola Eklund, Libbie Gray, and Madelon Milhone, sophomores, and Sharon Brown, junior—appraised the symbol of authority as 1961 queen Jan Slagle, senior, granted it to the new ruler.

And the men in uniform stood taller, brass buttons gleaming obediently. They saluted, and they awaited orders. This was not the time for a leave of absence. Beautiful Barbi was the queen and the new C. O.

After Pledgeship 'Get That Phone!' Emerges Into a Hearty 'Welcome, Brother!'

The flame of the pledge pod burning brings a warm glow to the hearts of soon-to-be actives.

"Pledge! Get that phone! Pledge! Snap it up there! Pledge! Pledge." And the freshman tastes the first demands of a fraternity. Line-ups, dress-up days, a closely guarded study table, the wearing of the pod—yet a pledge must make his grades. He studies—a little—he works—a lot.

Dirty clothes, unshaven face, no dates, a week of hell—and the lowly pledge earns the greeting "Welcome, brother!" He is an equal now, and the pledgeship seems a small price for the fun and friendship.

Together the brothers train a team for the Little 500, cram for finals, back a beauty for campus queen. They plan political strategy—for men must learn for the future—and they go singing in the rain to greet a new pinwoman and her sorority. Joined by a common bond, they solve the world's worries together, and laugh together, and go TGIFing. The new initiate, the new brother laughs, and helps plan a rushee smoker. Soon he will be shouting, "Pledge! Get that phone! Pledge! Snap it up there! Pledge! Pledge!"

Organized life has its advantages, but getting pinned sometimes proves hazardous!

Grades, Research, Educational Progress Share Recognition Spotlight on Founder's Day

Scholastic achievement, progressive research, and educational endeavor share the spotlight on the day of recognition—Founder's Day.

An address by Dr. Maynard K. Hine, Dean of the School of Dentistry, reviewed the progress of the research program of his school and its importance in medical science to the student body, the state, and the nation. Then the audience dismissed thoughts of research and scholarship as they heard a premiere performance of Act III from "The Scarlet Letter."

Honor students and members of honorary scholastic organizations were introduced by Dr. Ralph L. Collins, Vice-President and Dean of Faculties. Presentation of the Frederic Bachman Lieber Memorial Award for distinguished teaching to Professor Marjorie Phillips, Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, bestowed recognition upon Professor Phillips for her dedication to teaching and concern with research.

Indiana University Foundation awards for distinguished teaching were presented to Professor Charles M. Hewitt, business, and Professor Frederick C. Schmidt, chemistry, in acknowledgement of outstanding classroom teaching.

Wreaths were placed on former President Wylie's grave on Founder's Day.

1961 Little 500 a Record-Breaker In Qualifications and Scholarships

Records snapped from start to finish of the 1961 Little 500. On the first day of qualifications the Sigma Nus took the inside front row and a record as well by setting the fastest time ever for the pole position. Not to be surpassed, the women of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority won the "Minnie" and the Alpha Gamma Deltas took first place in the costume contest.

Race day was filled with edge-of-the-seat excitement. The Acacia riders met the challenge, and, cheered on by their Alpha Phi sponsors, peddled their way to victory and a kiss from the "500" Sweetheart, Joanie Summers.

The Little 500 Variety Show, with Miss Summers, Pat Boone, and the Four Freshmen, was a complete sellout. Fun and frolic capped the weekend with the Acacia Ice Cream Social and the Wright Quad Sprocket Hop.

On October 31, 1961, the last unyielding barrier to progress shattered when the Student Foundation awarded more scholarships than ever before from proceeds of "The World's Greatest College Weekend."

A new Little 500 champion is declared as an Acacia rider crosses the finish line.

Final Week Finds Students Caught Between Spring's Lures and Books

Spring is here! Tennis racquets, golf clubs, and picnic baskets are hurriedly snatched from musty corners as Brown County presents a campus-wide distraction.

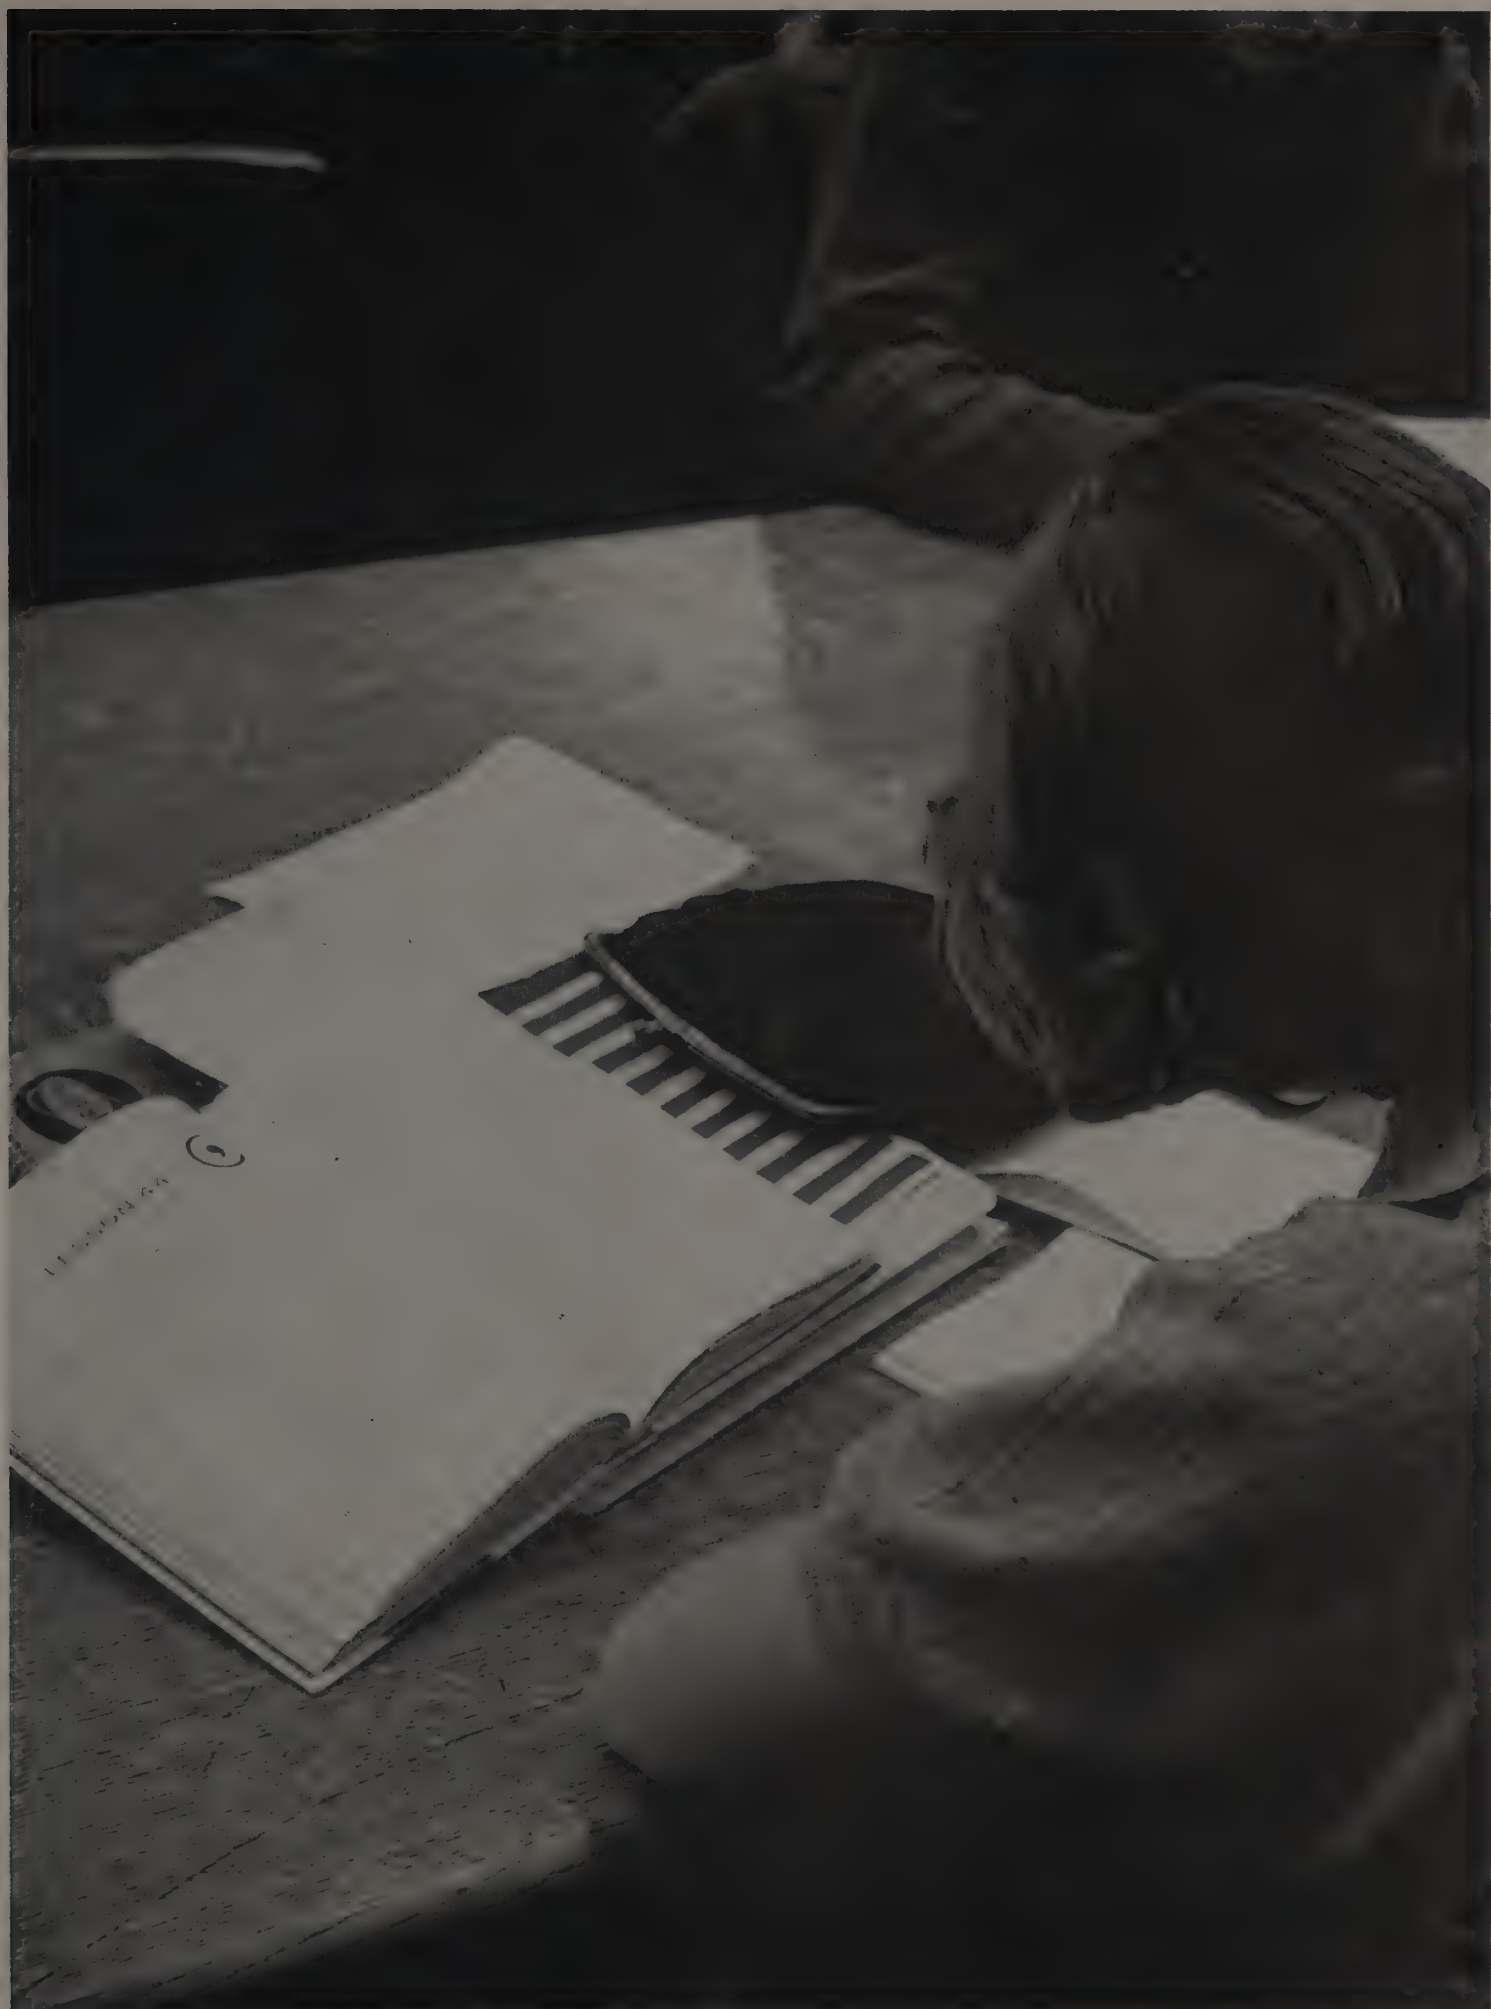

But! Finals are also here. The outlook is gray, blue books are multiplying, and the library fights a losing battle.

It is a beautiful Saturday afternoon before a more beautiful Sunday. The convertible sitting in the parking lot, the tennis court's invitation, the insistent ringing of the phone make concentration difficult.

It is also the final Saturday afternoon before a more final Sunday. There are books laying on the desk, a Monday French final is threatening, and you have to study.

Caught between spring fever and final delirium, the student finds himself facing many hard decisions. Accept a date, or study? Make a date, or study? Refuse a date and sleep, or study? The largest percentage of the student body is usually reasonable and succeeds in making the wisest choice—they merely try doing them all.

The tension increases during final week as drugstores run out of No-Doze and coffee pots boil into the early hours. The tension finally is eased, books are dropped, and summer begins.

'Pomp and Circumstance' Brings Contemplation, Congratulations, and a New Beginning

As the majestic strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" commence, the graduating class of 1961 slowly proceeds. Each graduate is in a world of his own. Each is obsessed with deep contemplation . . . contemplation about the future, past, and only a dim awareness of the present.

An invocation induces meditation. Each graduate realizes the world is ready, but wonders if he is ready to meet its challenge. For some the challenge is to complete a degree . . . others face a job, marriage, raising a family.

Greetings from the State conveyed by Governor Matthew E. Welsh sharpen each graduate's awareness of the ever-present challenge. Thoughts of the future are dismissed for warm memories of the past as the graduates rise to sing "Hail to Old I. U." A few warm tears come with reminiscence, for these memorable years can never be relived.

After the inspiring charge to the class by President Wells, degrees and honorary degrees are conferred. As the tassels turn, history changes. Footsteps from the trek across the plain echo in the distance . . . then cease. The mountain remains to be conquered.

A handshake between Governor Welsh and President Wells signifies the binding between society and the student.

Spirited discussion and friendly conversation prevail at the Emeritus Club barbeque preceding graduation ceremonies.

Suntans, surfboards, and studies comprised a summer's day at Beechwood Heights.

Slower Pace of Summer Session Allows Students

The walk to classes seemed especially long on sunny, inviting days.

The summer sky was ablaze with an Independence Day fireworks display.

Time for Lake Lemon and Bridge Games as Well as Classes

"Come on! Let's go for a swim!" is the cry that clears the Commons and sends half the campus out for a welcome study break. It's summer, and life sets its favorite pace. Classes, assignments, term papers remind the student that school is in session, but there is time for relaxation, too.

Ballantine Hall seems a little closer to the Education Building, and students don't have to hurry between classes. Sun-spangled walks become the library halls, and trees offer nature's lighting effects for studious adventurers.

Conventions, clinics, the lure of graduate degrees or extra credit hours draw students to the campus. The Hoosier sun invites them to bring along bermudas and sunglasses; Hoosier cloudbursts demand a raincoat. A blur of color in sunshine, a mass of khaki in rain, the students travel their campus walks, a little more relaxed, a little friendlier, a little happier. They dream a little more, hope a little higher. It's summer!

The audience recalls the golden days of the river boat.

'Showboat's a Comin'

Cast members apply final touches before lights go off and curtain goes up.

Echoes Up and Down the Ohio River

Shrill music from a steam-powered calliope was a familiar sound in towns along the Ohio River last summer, as Indiana University's Showboat Majestic presented its second season of floating summer stock.

The Majestic opened the season at Madison, Indiana, on June 8 with a performance of "Peg Of My Heart," chugged up the river to Cincinnati, and then played one-night stands in Ohio River towns down to Shawneetown, Illinois.

Productions on the Majestic, sponsored by the Department of Speech and Theatre, were directed by Professor William E. Kinzer. In addition to the eight staff and crew members, thirteen I. U. students lived on board the Majestic to earn six hours academic credit through lectures and the productions. Besides acting, the students sold tickets, prepared meals, washed decks, and did the numerous other jobs necessary to keep the showboat running.

Capacity crowds attended most of the performances in the 423-seat floating theatre. After each performance of "Peg" or "The Old Soak," the cast presented a variety show and an old-fashioned candy sale.

After Labor Day performances in Louisville, the Majestic and its tugboat, "The I. U.," went into dry dock at Jeffersonville, Indiana, their winter home; and the students returned to a rather staid life after their summer on the showboat.

The stage was set for a fateful singing contest.

Faculty and students alike combined to delight the audience with Wagner's comedy opera "Maestersingers."

Opera Theatre Debuts Wagner's 'Maestersingers'

Musical history was made at the University on July 29 and August 5 when "The Maestersingers of Nuremberg," Wagner's comedy opera, made its debut on campus. This was the first time the opera had been presented by any university group.

"Maestersingers" was directed by Tibor Kozma, conductor of the University Philharmonic Orchestra and the Opera Theatre. Both students and faculty members participated in what Prof. Kozma termed "Wagner's most difficult opera to perform."

In this opera Wagner turned from the gods and heroes of his earlier works to flesh-and-blood people of 16th Century Nuremberg, with the characteristics of real people in any era.

The story of "Maestersingers" is Wagner's own. It tells the story of the young knight who had fallen in love with the daughter of the richest member of Nuremberg's guild. The smitten young man must win a singing contest to have his lover.

This he does. Love conquered, the audience smiled, applauded, and approved.

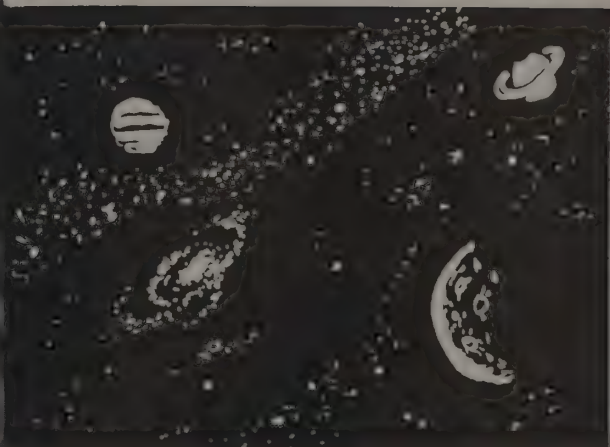

Tibor Kozma directed the Opera Theatre's production of "Maestersingers."

The setting of Wagner's difficult "Maestersingers" was sixteenth century Germany.

Karen Kline

Sophomore Karen Kline won the title of Queen of Indiana University when she was chosen 1962 Arbutus Queen. A member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, Miss Kline was named Miss Fascination last year at the annual dance sponsored by Skull and Crescent, activities honorary for organized sophomore men. Miss Kline was crowned at Christmas Eve on Campus.

A junior representing Chi Omega social sorority, Charlene Sarka is majoring in speech and hearing therapy and is president of her sorority.

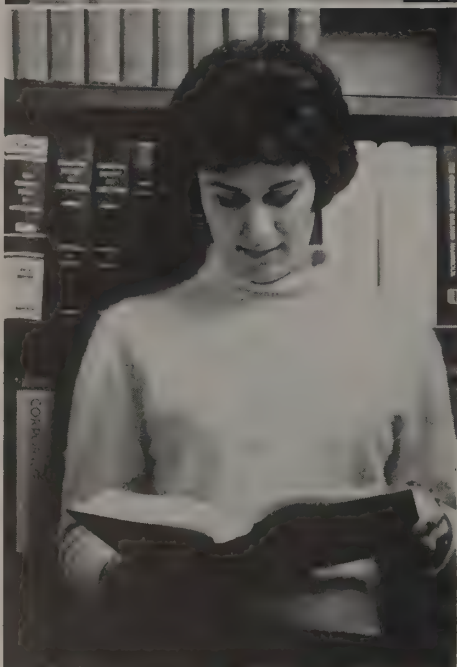

Charlene Greenberger

A member of Sigma Delta Tau sorority, Charlene Greenberger is an elementary education major who was active in the Panhel-IFC Big Ten Conference.

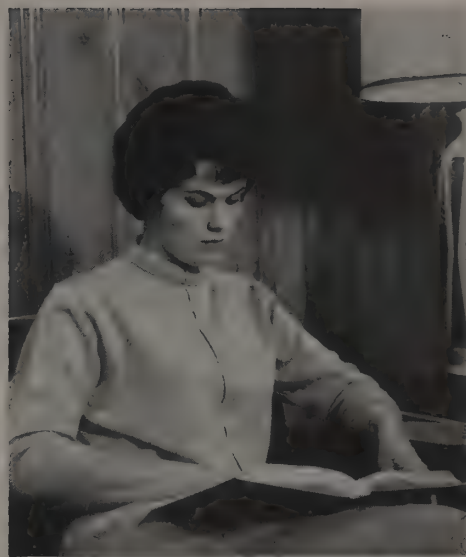

Sally Carmichael

A former Cream and Crimson queen, senior Sally Carmichael is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is majoring in merchandising.

"An Evening of Ballet" was presented in the form of a modern ballet concert by the I. U. Ballet.

Tragic emotions ran high when Tosca murdered the tyrant Baron Scarpia in the Opera Theater's presentation of Puccini's Tosca.

The native dances of the Ceylon National Dancers offered a glimpse of a far away culture.

The San Francisco Ballet gave a graceful performance to an enthralled audience.

In their show to liven up the snowbound scene, the characters of Bus Stop found some unsuspected talent.

Light Up the Sky, a rollicking slapstick comedy centering on the volcanic ups and downs of "show biz," proved that there's still no business like show business.

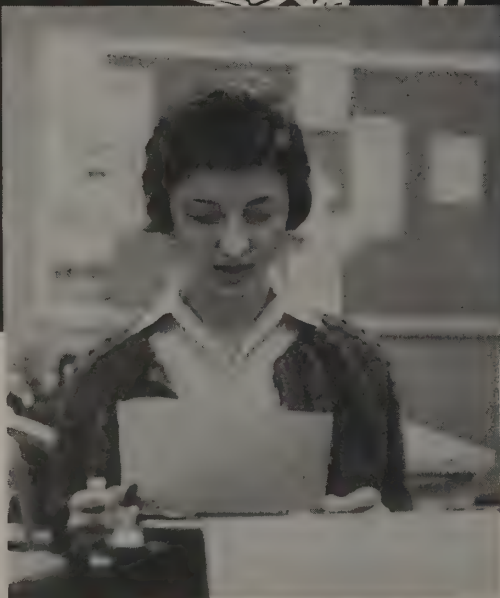

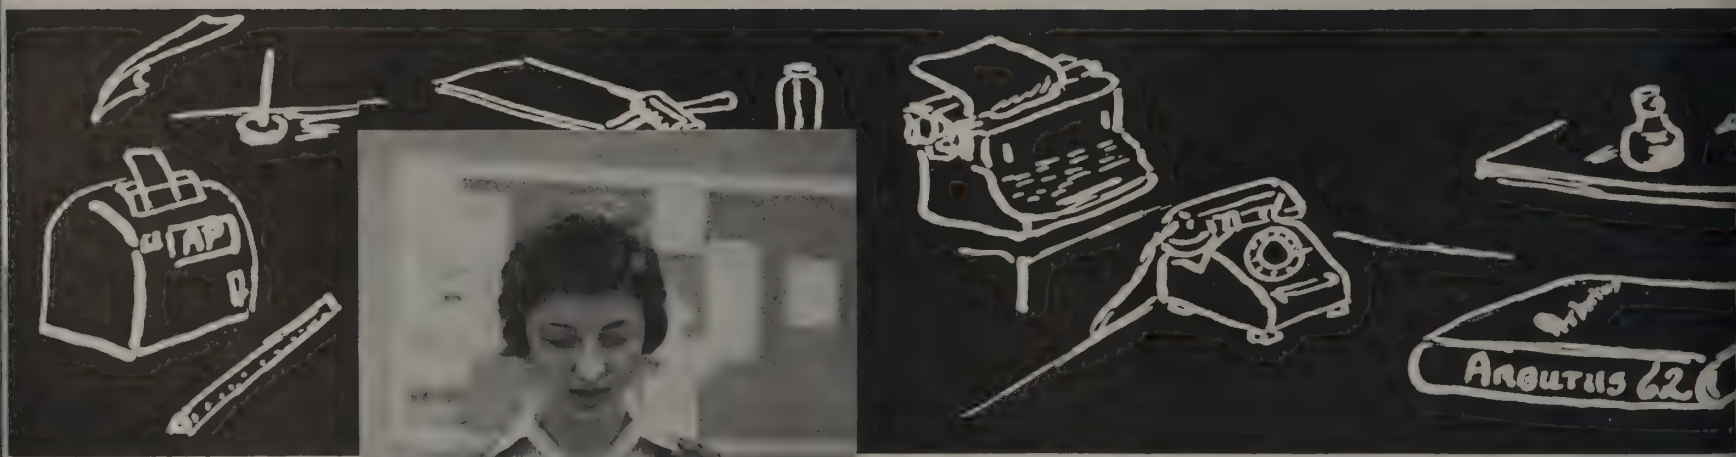

An atmosphere of gloom prevailed with the recreation of the Salem witch hunts in Arthur Miller's play The Crucible.

The well-travelled Singing Hoosiers of I. U. have sparked many social occasions with a merry chorus.

Stories in, copy edited, reporters gone—it's time for a night editor to decide on front page makeup.

Lee Wotherspoon suffered through the late hours with the night editors as he checked proof for The Daily Student.

Daily Student Keeps Campus Informed In Spite of Late Hours, Hectic Schedules

A bleary-eyed night editor trudges into French class ten minutes late. Another editor buried his alarm clock under a pillow and forgot about his psychology lecture. Late hours again take their toll, but The Indiana Daily Student is in the hands of its readers.

Produced by a staff that seldom sleeps, the campus newspaper relates the news of a nation, a city, the outside world. A giant fed by effort, it demands, and it receives.

When classmates turn toward the Commons after a day's classes, IDS reporters heed the constant order, "Cover your beat!" Information in hand, they converge on the City Room, and there is action. A report to the city editor, the click of a typewriter, and there is news.

Here in the City Room the dream of reporting, of writing, of seeing for the world, grows. And for some, it dies.

The city room is a laboratory, The Student, an experiment. Here writers develop. Editors learn. Mistakes are made, but everyone gives, and their brain-child informs. The Student serves the community that is the campus.

The first copy off the press gets close scrutiny for typography.

When a photographer needs assistance, there's always a reporter around to help on cutlines.

Amid coke bottles, cigarettes, and used layout sheets, staff members "shoveled" out their cubby holes.

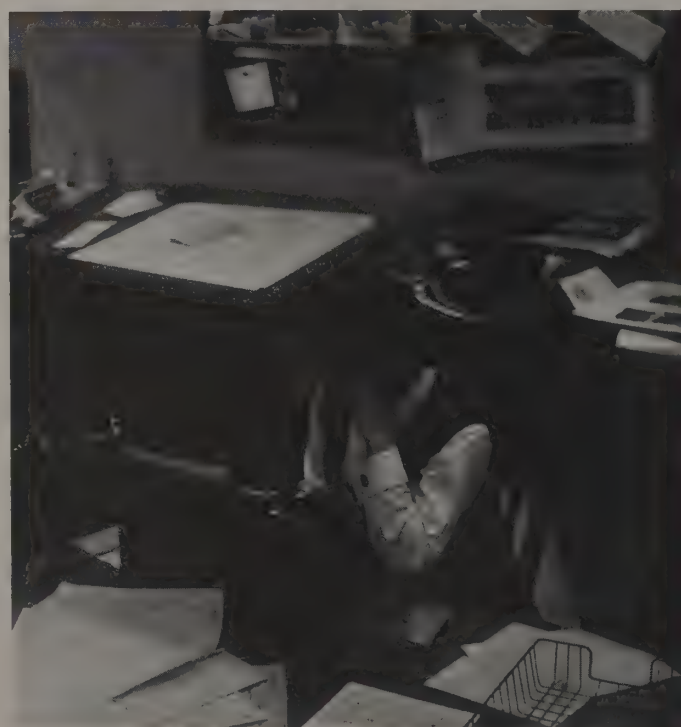

More Than 200 Students Work to Create Arbutus

A coffee cup marked with lipstick, a smouldering cigarette, and a weary "Try another lead" set the mid-night scene in an office on campus where more than 200 minds work for "the cause."

Members of the general staff, major staff, and the Big Four join in the attempt to capture in words and pictures the people, the events, and the spirit of a college year. They contribute, they create. Inevitably, they capture.

Rated All-American by the Associated Collegiate Press three years in a row, the Arbutus has become a record of the campus, preserving its people, its setting, its events.

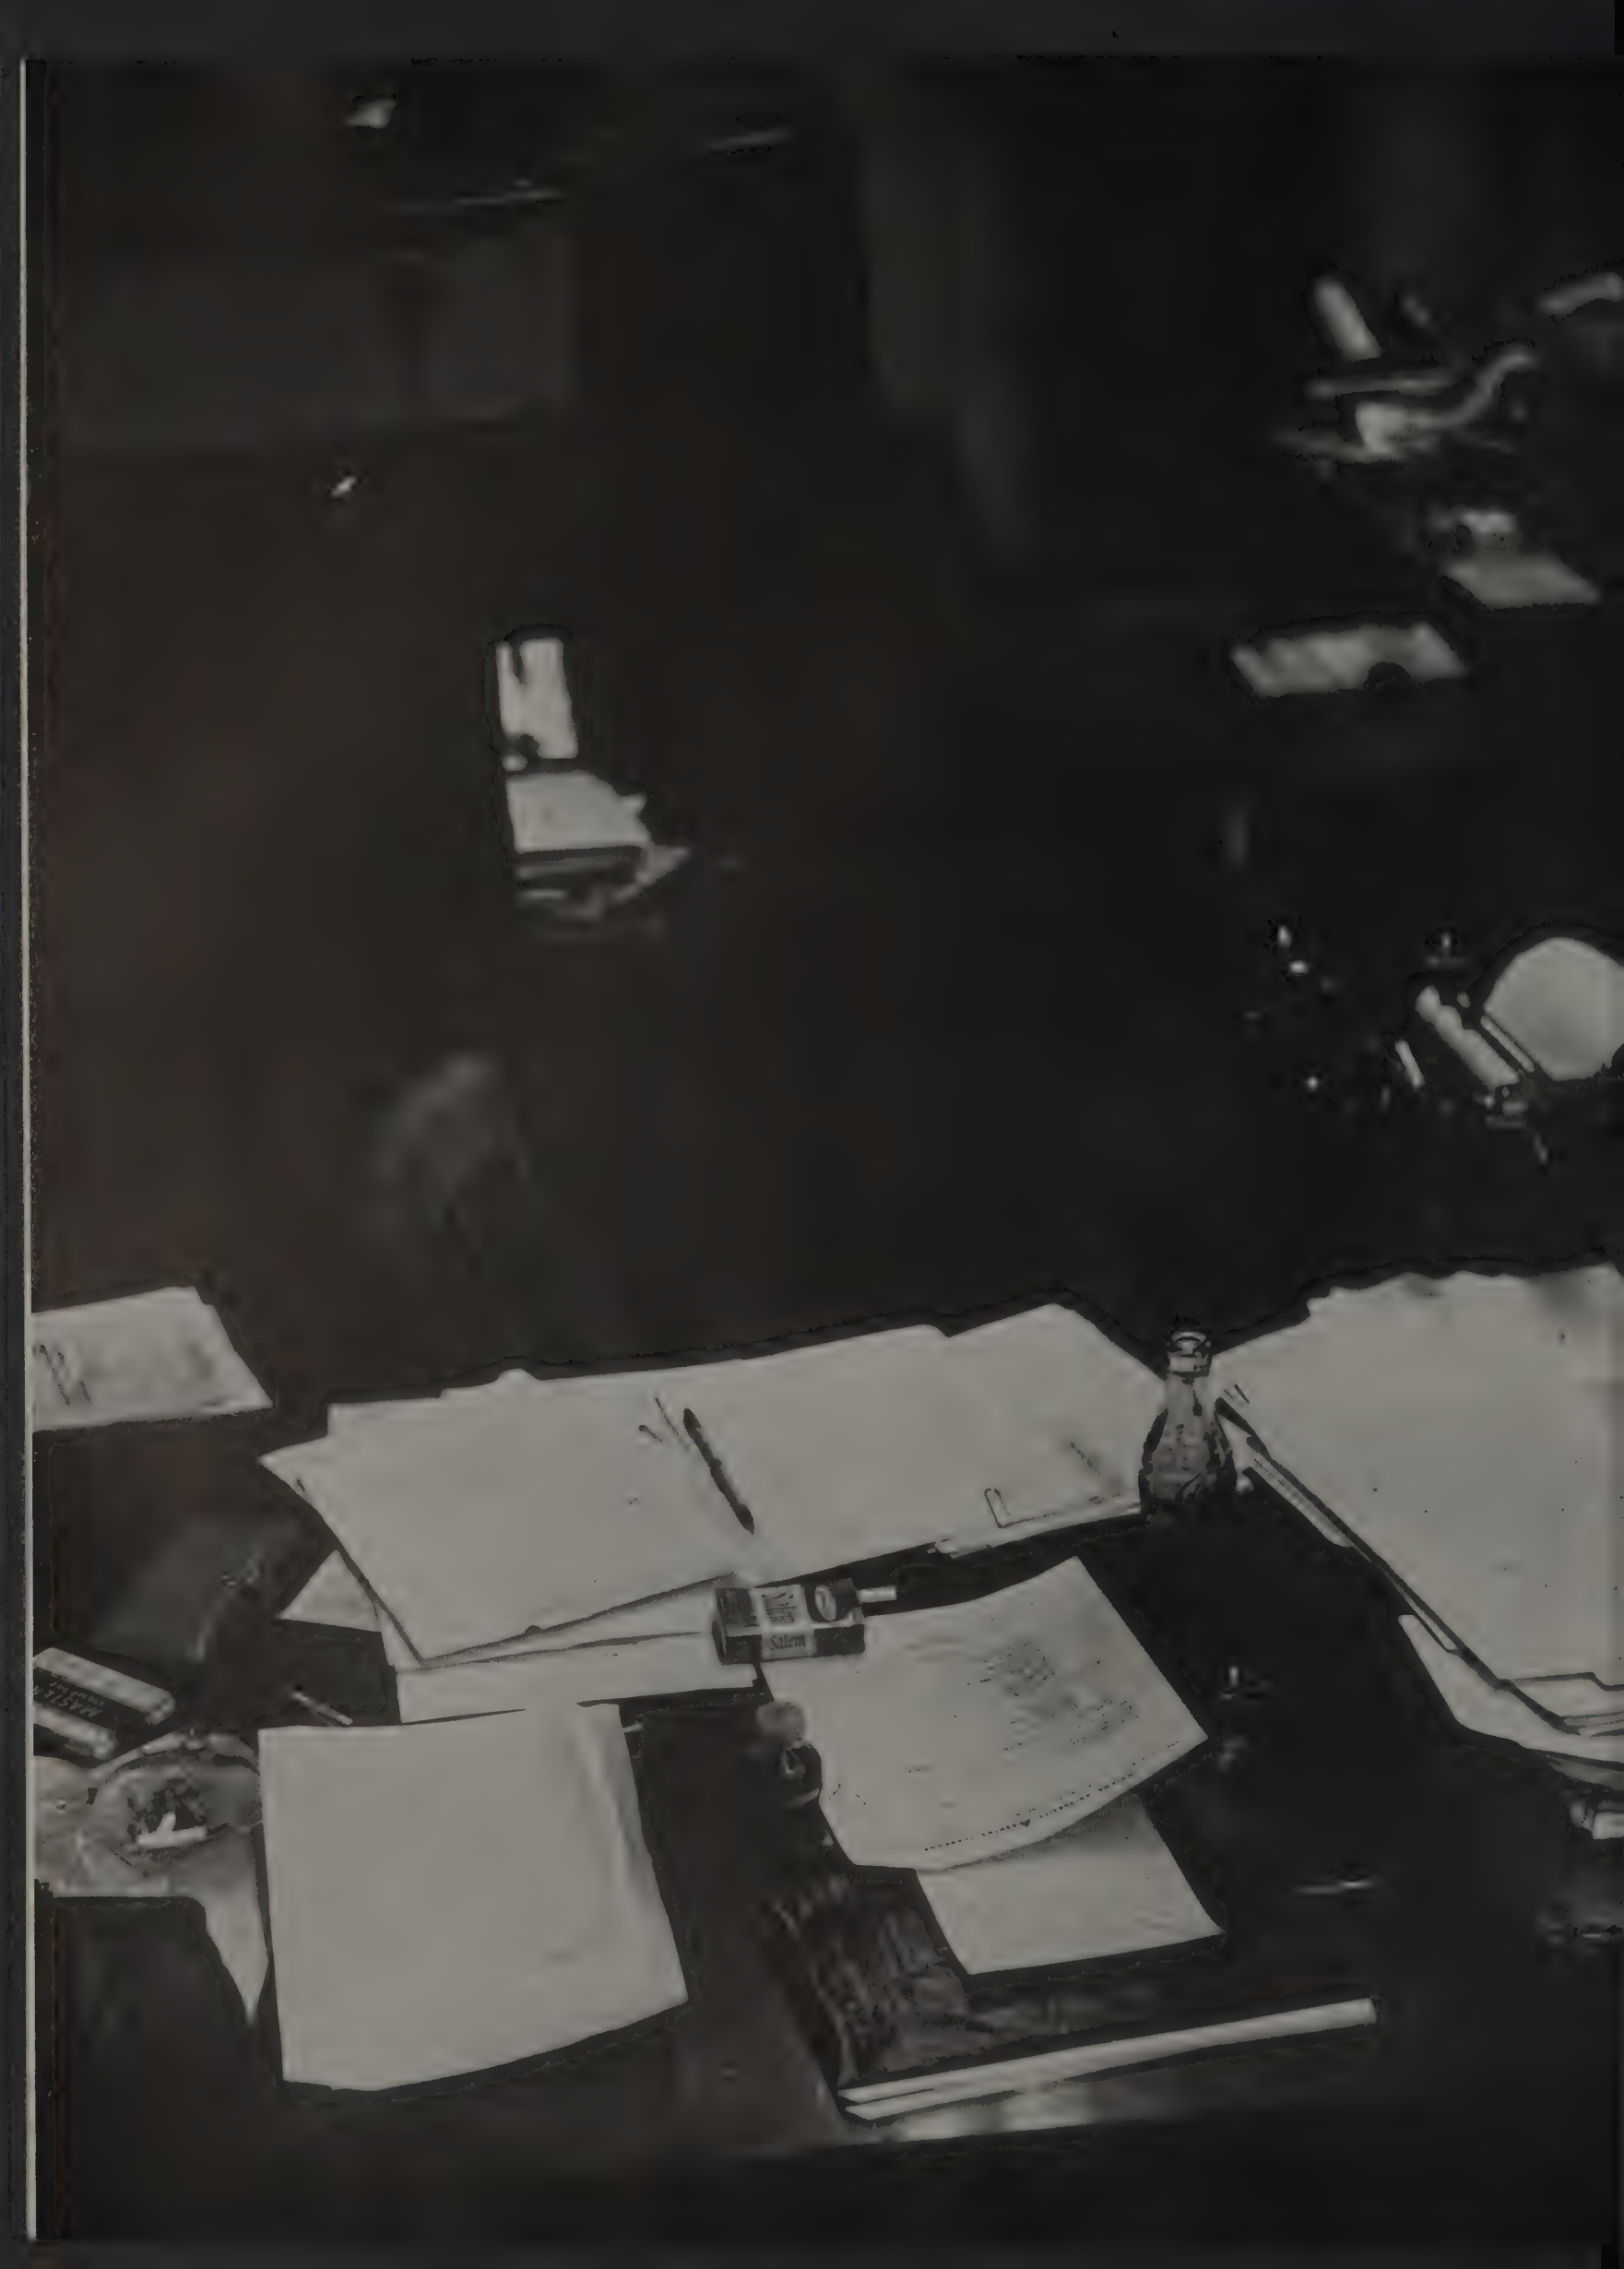

The family album of more than 15,000 students, the Arbutus is the product of a staff's late hours, of a business manager's headaches, and of an editor's elation when the telegram arrives—it's another All-American book, an All-American year.

After the presentation of the 1961 Arbutus, the personalized Arbustus made its debut at the annual awards banquet.

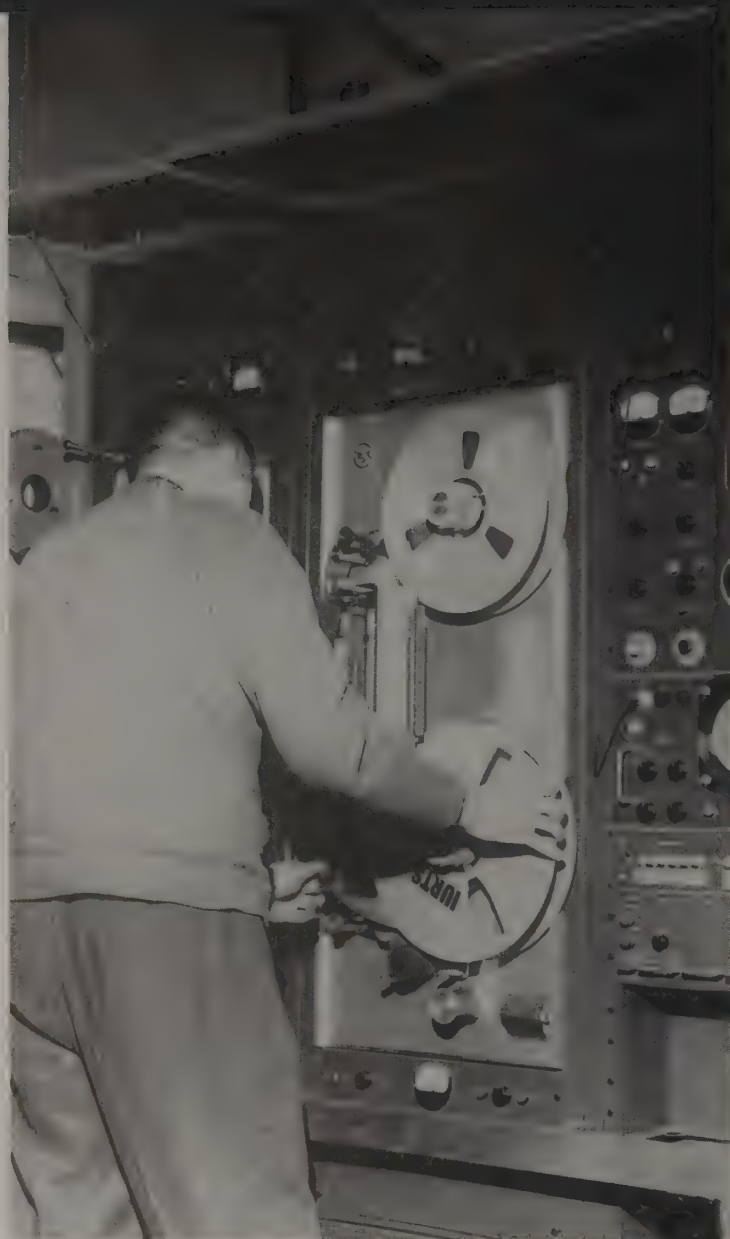

Deep concentration and a makeshift typing table produce WGCY (World's Greatest College Yearbook).

... a view that doesn't easily slip from an Arbutus worker's memory ...

Department of Radio and Television Operates Full Broadcast Schedule Over WTTV and WFIU

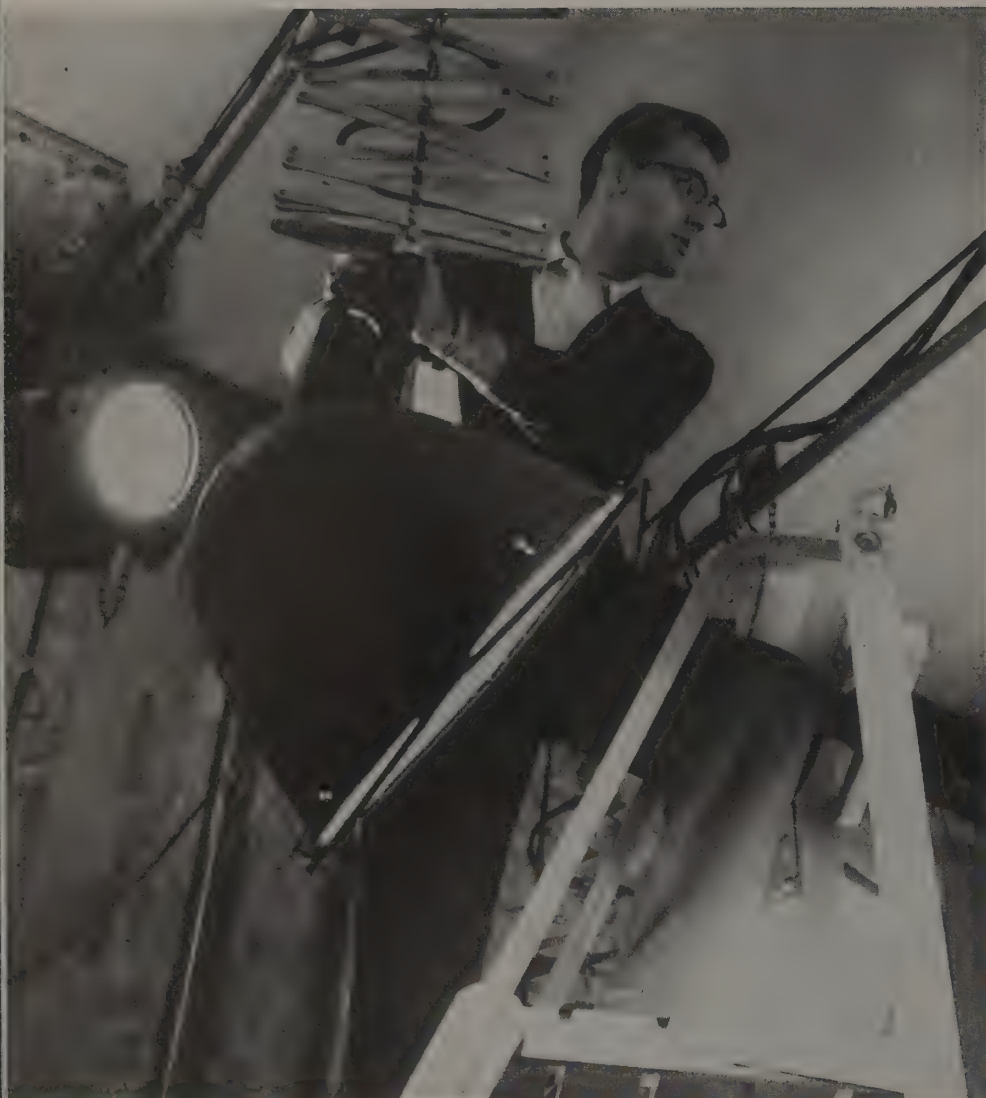

A long, low-slung building, bordering on the meandering Jordan, is the base of operations for the Department of Radio and Television and the Indiana University Radio and Television Service. From here the department operates a full broadcast schedule, including seven half-hour television shows, seen weekly over WTTV, Channel 4, Indianapolis, and ten and one-half hours of radio, heard daily over one of the most powerful educational FM stations in the State. The department also operates the Indiana University Sports Network, which feeds over 20 radio stations during the football and basketball seasons.

Students take an important part in the broadcast operations, gaining rewarding though nerve-wracking experience in television directing and valuable on-the-air experience in announcing and newscasting over WFIU. They also work in the areas of radio production, newfilm, and engineering.

This year the Indiana University Radio and Television Service has taken on a new job—broadcasting classroom lectures via closed circuit. The professor, lecturing to students in Studio B of the Radio-TV building, simultaneously is able to teach groups in Ballantine Hall and the Indianapolis extension. Another impressive undertaking has been televising operas as they are performed on the Indiana University campus.

Good lighting techniques are essential to good programming.

A sea of black swaying to the song of a graduation . . .

and so it goes year by year:

always the same—and yet a little different.

For the sea is an individual thing,

formed of separate waves:

waves born in the depths of learning,

nurtured by a friendly moon . . .

waves which must disintegrate the sea of black to beat the rocks of life:

and so it goes year by year.

I. U.'s assistant and head athletic directors, Robert Dro and Bill Orwig, were pleased that the Big Ten probation was lifted this year.

Athletic Department Has Successful Year

J. W. (Bill) Orwig, who took over as athletic director in June, 1961, from retiring Frank Allen, has had an eventful first year at the helm of the I. U. Athletic Department.

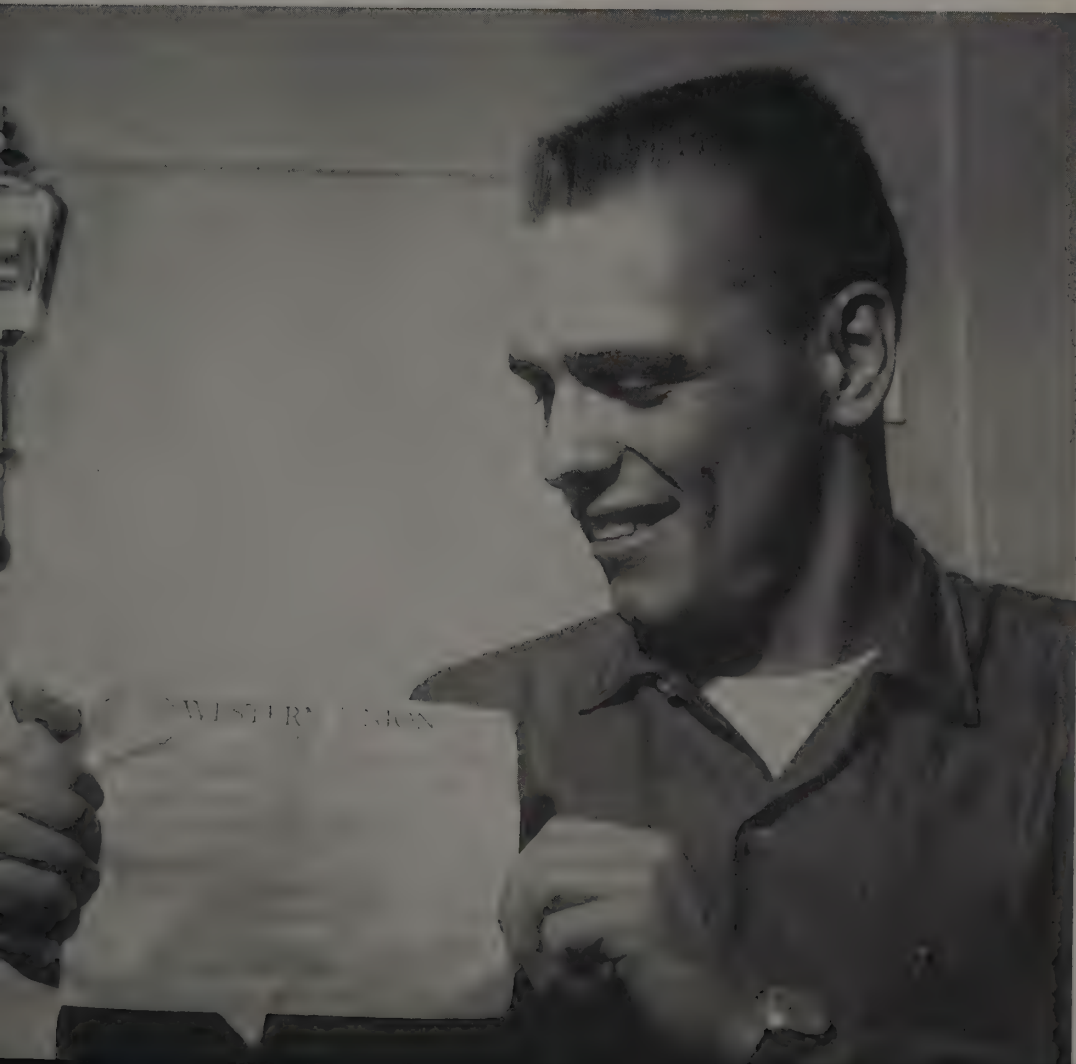

Robert Royer Pool, the HPER Building's olympic pool, was dedicated in March in honor of the former head swimming coach at I. U. At the same time, I. U.'s hustling swimming team won the Big Ten championship for the second consecutive year to climax a perfect record for the 1961-1962 season.

Coach Gordon Fisher, head track coach for 18 years, announced his retirement. Jim Lavery, assistant coach, was named to fill the vacancy.

And, a bright spot on the year's record books, the big Ten probation imposed on I. U. in 1960 was lifted.

Gordon Fisher, who retired after 18 years as head track coach at I. U., was honored at a banquet.

Hoosier swimming speedster Chet Jastremski at Christmas received an unusual telegram greeting from the editor of the Moscow newspaper, Soviet Sport.

Athletic Board Purchases "Crimson Crate"

Reorganization of the football card section into an effective all-freshman project and the acquisition of a rally wagon to lead parades—appropriately named the "Crimson Crate"—and prefootball game pep sessions highlighted the operations of the Student Athletic Board in 1961-1962.

The Student Athletic Board co-ordinates the activities of the pom pon girls, the Hoosier Hostesses, the Card Section, the cheerleaders, and the Marching Hundred.

Serving as a liasion between the Athletic Department and the Student Body, the board also recommends ticket policies and other ideas pertaining to sports, students, and school spirit to the department.

The nine members of the Student Athletic Board are appointed each spring by President Herman B Wells on recommendations from the Athletic Department. Students are chosen on the basis of leadership.

Athletes Become I-Men at May Banquet

At the Cream and Crimson Day banquet in May, Indiana University athletes proudly accepted their varsity letters and became members of I-Men's Club. United by a common goal—to encourage unity among athletes and promote school spirit—they represent I. U. in varsity competition and sponsor several spirited and worthwhile campus events.

I-Men's major project, Cream and Crimson Day, provides funds for the organization and previews the coming fall's football team in a varsity intrasquad game. In addition, underclassmen challenge the varsity teams to contests in all major sports, and queens are chosen by each varsity team. Climaxing this busy day, more than 200 I-Men and their dates attend the annual I-Men's Dance.

Assisting the I-Men with Cream and Crimson Day, the I-Men's Dance, and other projects is Robert C. Dro, faculty adviser and assistant director of athletics.

Hoosiers Improve Despite Weak Record

Hoosier Captain Bill Olsavsky drags his opponent to the dirt with a mighty bear hug.

The Fighting Hoosiers of 1961 showed a great improvement on the gridiron and against their opponents over their 1960 showing. Although the 2-7 record was a disappointment, there were bright spots throughout the season.

Overall the Hoosiers scored more points and held their opponents to fewer than in the 1960 season. Indiana improved their total offense by 500 yards and reduced their opponents' total by about 700 yards.

In the season opener at Kansas State, the Hoosiers just couldn't get the offense rolling and lost, 14-8.

Against Wisconsin, the Hoosiers' first Big Ten opponent and the home opening game, Indiana showed a lot of improvement and played a bruising, hard-fought defensive battle in the first half. Marv Woodson kicked a field goal as the gun sounded to end the first half in a 3-3 deadlock. The second half was practically a repeat of the first. But in the fourth quarter the Badgers penetrated deep into Hoosier territory. Indiana's defense held, and Wisconsin was forced to kick a field goal which proved to be the margin of victory.

Iowa's experienced Hawkeyes had too much class for the Hoosiers and won, 28-7. Undefeated when they met I. U., Michigan State's Spartans showed the Hoosiers how they maintained their record by trouncing the crimson-clad team, 35-0.

At home against Washington State for Band Day, the Hoosiers' offense clicked to pull off a 33-7 victory. Behind at the half, Indiana came back to run over West Virginia's Mountaineers, 17-9.

A heart-breaking loss was dealt the Hoosiers by Northwestern's Wildcats. I. U. fumbled on the Wildcats' 10-yard line and had a touchdown called back which certainly would have produced a different score. As it was, the Hoosiers lost, 14-8. Although the Hoosiers lost 16-7 to Ohio State, I. U. played a good game against the nationally ranked Buckeyes.

In the final game of the season, I. U. and arch rival Purdue tangled for the Old Oaken Bucket. Hoosier effort was useless, and Purdue completely routed the Cream and Crimson, 34-12.

"I want to go that way, Bill," Nate Ramsey seems to say as he points the way to teammate Bill Olsavsky.

Indiana's cross-country team turned in a record identical to last season's successful squad. Despite the loss of Captain Bob Fell because of a pre-season knee operation, the harriers won three of four dual meets, captured first place in the Big State Meet, and third place in the Big Ten Meet.

Led by the "Big C's"—sophomore Charley Umbarger and senior Charley Harris—Coach Gordon Fisher's men romped over Miami of Ohio, Notre Dame, and Ohio State before losing to Western Michigan. Umbarger and Harris finished one-two against Miami and Ohio State. In the latter meet, the Hoosiers missed a perfect score by only one point.

I. U. also dominated the Big State meet, as all five of its performers finished in the top ten. Besides Umbarger and Harris, sophomore Art Campbell finished fourth, and seniors Russ Lash and Bill Landon were fifth and seventh, respectively. These five runners formed the nucleus of the 1961 squad.

Indiana finally met its match against Big Ten competition in the last meet of the year. The Hoosiers battled hard but had to settle for third place behind Iowa and Michigan State.

Jimmy Rayl is all smiles after scoring 56 points against Minnesota.

Jimmy Rayl Leads Hurryin' Hoosiers To Record-Shattering 1961-1962 Season

Indiana's basketball record book got one of its most sweeping revisions this past season at the hands of high-scoring Jimmy Rayl and his Hoosier teammates.

Rayl accounted for nine new all-time Indiana records, four for single games and five for season play, and the team established four.

The Kokomo junior's 39 shot attempts, 56 points and 20 field goals against Minnesota were all new Indiana records, as well as setting new Big Ten records for scoring in one game and tying the field goal mark for a single game. His 15-for-15 free-throw shooting against Michigan tied the Indiana high.

Over the season, Jimmy erased Don Schlundt's 661-point season record with 714 points, although he had two less games in which to do it; set a new high in season field goals with 254 and Big Ten field goals with 152, and took a total of 580 shots, also a new Indiana University mark.

The 454 points Rayl scored in Big Ten play, only five short of the Conference leadership, also was tops for any Indiana player for the 14-game season. Schlundt scored 459 in 1953 but accomplished it over an 18-game Conference schedule.

The Hoosiers were the highest scorers in school history, totaling 2,089 points for an 87-point per-game average. On their way to that total they scored 51 field goals against Notre Dame, a one-game record; hit 810 times from the field, a season record, and connected on free throws at a .732 rate, another season record.

Indiana's Big Ten record was 7-7, while the Hoosiers were 13-11 in overall competition.

The .418 shooting performance for the season was the second-best ever achieved, being surpassed only by the .444 mark of the 1960 outfit.

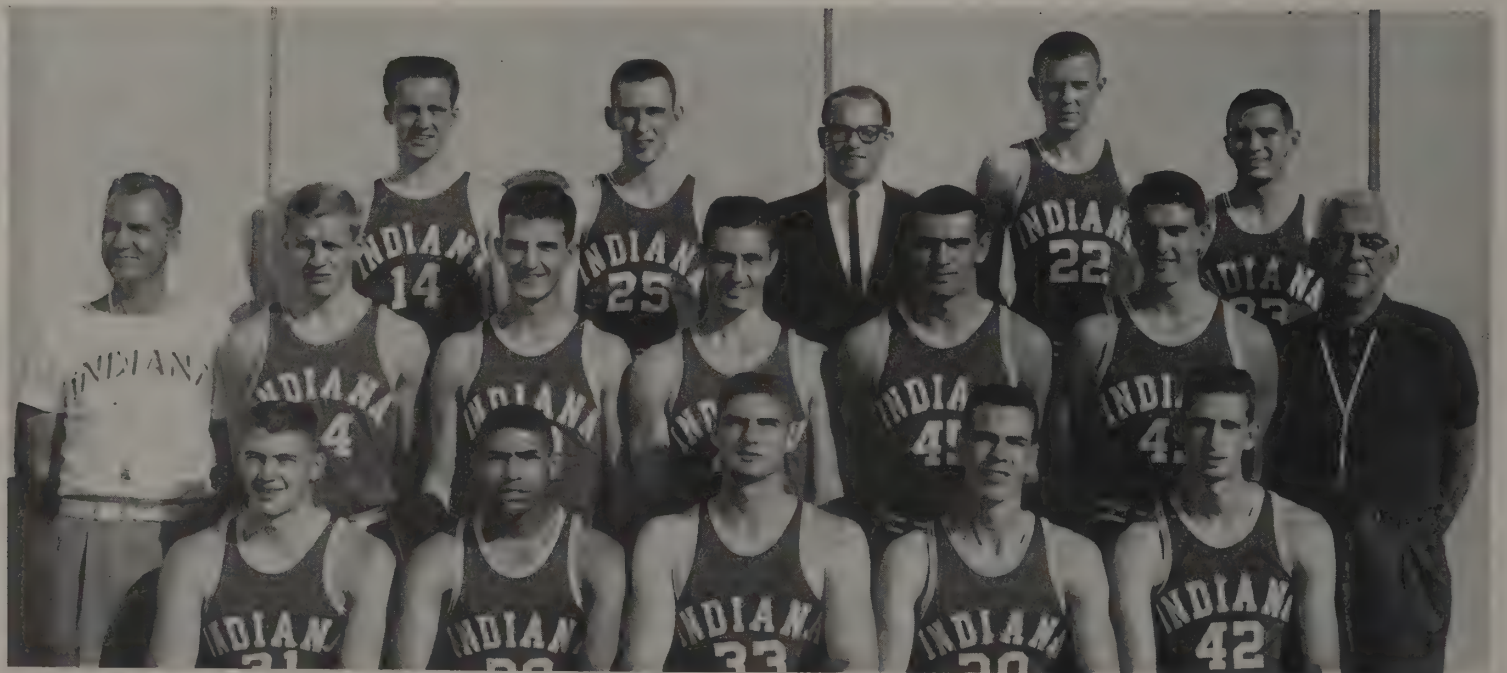

A final tribute should be given to the five graduating seniors: Charlie Hall, Jerry Bass, Gordon Mickey, Ernie Wilhoit, and Bill Altman.

"Wait here, I'll go get it," says Jerry Bass to Charlie Hall.

The new Fieldhouse echoes with the assurance "Indiana, we're all for you."

Tankmen Smash Eight Conference Records To Repeat as Big Ten Title Holders

I. U.'s swimming team, under the guidance of Coach Jim (Doc) Counsilman, proved their 7-0 season record wasn't any quirk of fate when they captured the Big Ten championship in March.

In one of the top performances of the year, I. U. swimmers easily outdistanced the field to win nine of a possible 16 first places in the Big Ten Meet. Hoosier tankmen broke eight Big Ten records to score 213¼ points to runner-up Michigan's 146.

Alan Somers, Mike Troy, and Chet Jastremski each scored two first places in the meet, and the three swimmers accounted for five of the record breaking times turned in by the Hoosiers. Tom Stock, Ted Stickles, and the medley relay team—Stock, Ken Nakasone, Lary Schulhof, and Pete Sintz—smashed other records.

Climaxing the Big Ten Meet for Indiana was the dedication on March 3 of Robert Royer Pool. In the new HPER Building, the pool is named in memory of the former I. U. swimming coach. This was the first time in the 52-year history of the Big Ten Meet that it met at I. U.

Maroni Shines for McDaniel's Wrestling Squad

John Maroni became the first Hoosier wrestler to go undefeated since Charlie Pancou turned the trick in 1953. Maroni finished the season with a 12-0 dual meet record. In addition to this he won the Big Ten meet in the 177-pound weight.

Coach Charlie McDaniel's grapplers compiled a 4-7-2 dual record and placed seventh in the Conference meet.

Lack of depth and injuries to an already undermanned staff seriously hurt the Hoosiers throughout the campaign. Ralph Carlino and Don Schultz were both plagued by knee injuries shortly before the Conference meet. Ron Hutcherson, one of the better performer this year, tore a knee cartilage in the Conference meet.

In addition to Maroni and Hutcherson, Randy Galvin also proved to be a capable Big Ten wrestler. Tom Marvin improved tremendously toward the end of the season's campaign.

Gymnastics Team Turns in 3-9 Dual Record

Flying through his routine on the horizontal bar is John Burkel.

Despite what Coach Otto Ryser calls the greatest team to represent Indiana, the Hoosier gymnastics team could only manage a 3-9 dual record and a seventh place finish in the Big Ten Meet.

Most of the gymnastics praise this year went to Jim Woodward. Woody set the all-time single-season scoring record for I. U. as he tallied 256½ points. He surpassed the previous record of 215½ points held by Ron Walden.

Woodward, as did the other members of the numerically light I. U. team, performed in several events. Both he and Virgil Ecton participated in six of the seven events on the schedule on many occasions.

Injuries and bad breaks hurt the Hoosiers during the year. Ecton's contribution was severely curtailed near mid-season when he injured a knee. Nevertheless he finished second to Woodward in total points. He totaled 117½ points, just barely edging out John Burkel with 115½.

Tumbling demands skill, co-ordination, and strength.

Golfers Upset Big Ten Champ Ohio State

The Indiana University golf team, under the able guidance of Coach Robert Fitch, compiled a record of 4 victories and 10 losses during the the 1961 season. Led by Jim Vitou, with an average of 74.4 strokes per round, and Forrest Jones, with a 77.4 average, the Hoosier linksmen make a commendable showing in the always-tough Big Ten Conference.

The big victory of the regular season came early in the season when the Hoosiers upset powerful Ohio State. OSU went on to win the 1961 Big Ten Championship, which took place on the I. U. course. The home squad, paced by fourth-place winner Jim Vitou in the individual ratings, finished a firm fifth in the tournament. I. U.'s Forrest Jones and Dave Pelz tied for 17th place.

Chipping out of the rough is I. U. linksman Jerry Williams.

Rifle Team Could Take Big Ten Championship

When the 1962 Arbutus went to press, the I. U. rifle team had completed two of its three regional matches. A victory over Michigan State, Wisconsin, and Iowa preceded a third-place finish behind Ohio State and Michigan State. The combined record placed Indiana second in the Big Ten ranks at that time.

Under the direction of Captain Robert Leach of the Army ROTC Department, the 1961-1962 marksmen exhibited balance and consistency during the first two contests. With only one regional meet and the Big Ten finals remaining, the Hoosiers have a good chance of placing well in the conference championship battle.

Cindermen, Undefeated in Outdoor Meets, Turn in 2-2 Record in Indoor Competition

Coach Gordon Fisher, who retired this year as head track coach, saw his cindermen turn in a fine outdoor record, 5-0, and a fair indoor record, 2-2.

The trackmen placed second in the Big Ten championships in outdoor performances and seventh on indoor work.

Eddie Miles, Reggie Sheppard, Reggie Laconi, Larry Clinton, Gene Graham, Ray Spivey, and Ted Jackson were standouts for the outdoor team. And Clinton pulled an indoor victory through for the Hoosiers when he crossed the line one step ahead of the Ohio State runner in the last event of the meet.

Graham placed first in the Big Ten outdoor meet in the 660, and Cornelius Miller brought home I. U.'s only first place in the indoor meet. Miller is a high jumper.

Hampered by the flu epidemic and injuries, the indoor team won their triangular meet with Purdue and Notre Dame by a half-point margin. Again, the last event—mile relay—gave winning honors to I. U. as well as setting a Fieldhouse record.

I. U. Netmen Place Second in Big Ten Ranks

Indiana University's tennis team posted a 13-3 record in the 1961 season. An 8-1 mark in Big Ten competition placed the squad in the runner-up spot, their only loss coming at the hands of champion Michigan.

Early in the year Indiana competed in the Cherry Blossom Tournament in Washington, D. C., and was edged out in the final round by The Citadel, 5-4. Conference competition started shortly after the tournament, and the Hoosiers ended the Big Ten season with a five-match winning streak. In the post-season Big Ten Meet at East Lansing, Coach Bill Landin's men placed third.

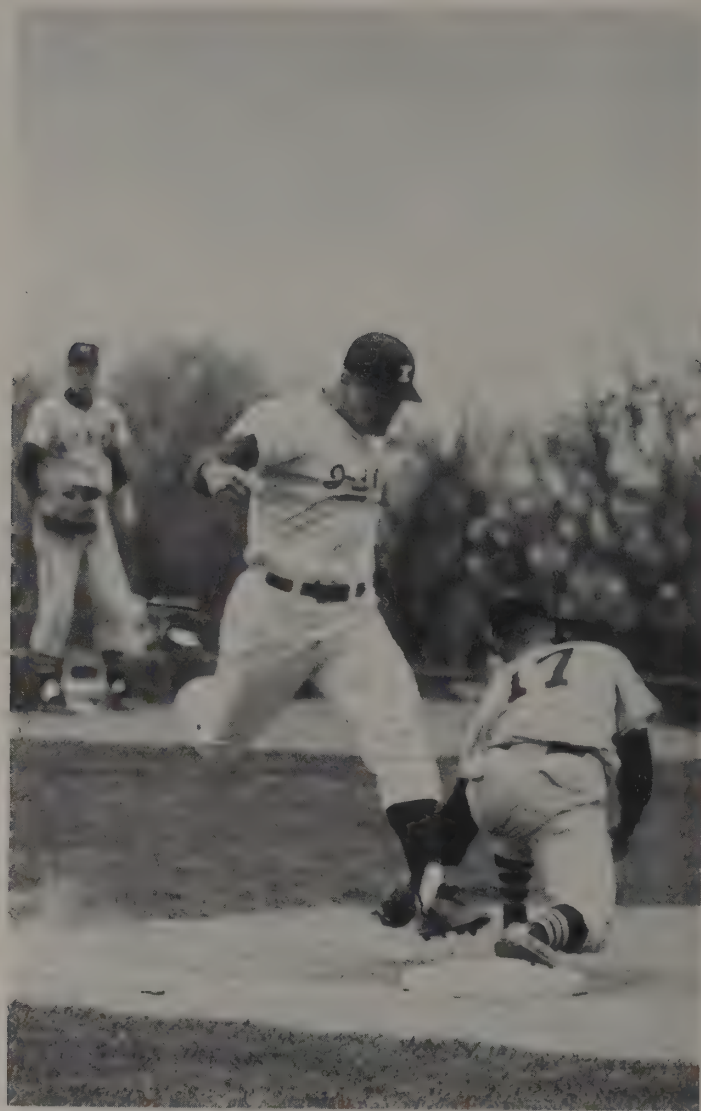

Don Thorne's steady and aggressive style helped him win consistently at the number one singles spot. Other outstanding underclassmen were Gary Baxter, Stu Cohen, and Dick Martin, who held down the second, third, and fourth positions, respectively. Thorne, Baxter, Cohen, and Chuck Jenness also performed ably in the doubles. These men, along with reserves Fred Wenstrom, Bernie Stein, and Mike Gordon, provide the nucleus of next year's team.

Second man on the Hoosier squad, Gary Baxter displays his forehand form.

Displaying the form that kept him undefeated in Big Ten play, Paul Deem fires a fastball to a Michigan hitter.

I. U. Baseball Squad Ranked 11th in Nation

Indiana's baseball squad amassed its finest record in the last 13 years with 21 victories against only 5 defeats and one tie in 1961. An 11-3 mark in Big Ten competition gave the Hoosiers a third-place conference finish and a respectable rank as 11th in the nation.

In nonconference action, the team won 10 of 12 games. A seven-game winning streak early in the season accounted for most of the victories. Inability to beat the top teams hindered Coach Ernie Andres' men in the Big Ten as the first and second-place teams, Michigan and Minnesota, dealt I. U. two of their three conference losses.

Several players on the squad turned in outstanding performances throughout the year. Senior pitcher Paul Deem had a 6-1 overall record and won four while losing none in Big Ten games. Junior outfielder Bart Kaufman placed second in the Big Ten in batting with a .452 average. First baseman Max Bailey and outfielder Jim McMillan led the Big Ten in fielding in their respective positions. Sophomore pitcher Bobby Marr topped the team's hurlers in innings pitched with 66 and in the earned runs department with a 1.50 average.

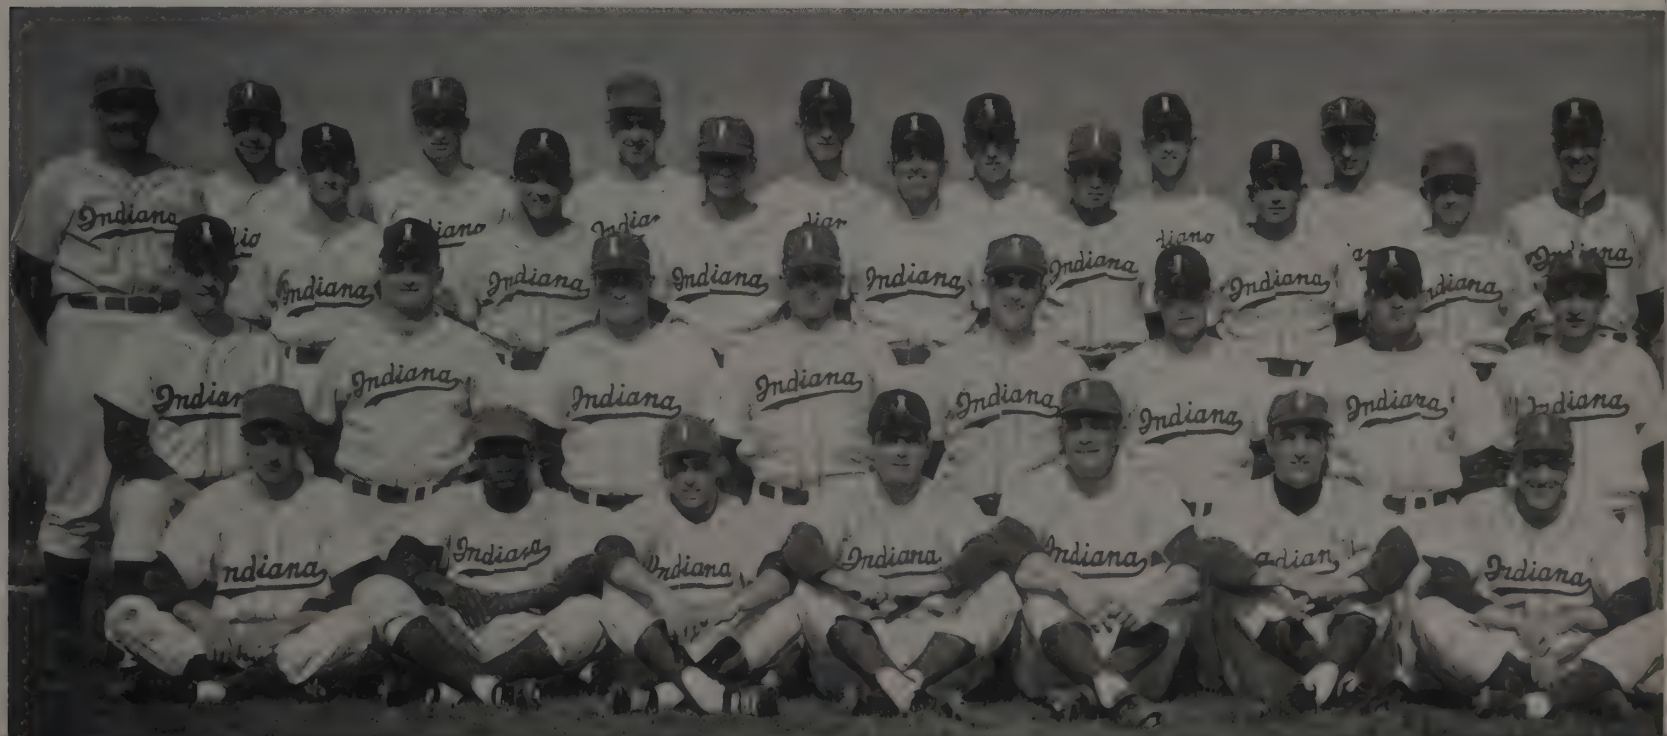

The team itself had several firsts in Big Ten averages, including a first place in hitting with a .322 average and a tie for first in fielding with a .960 average.

Intramurals Provide Needed Diversion

Indiana University's complete intramural program, under the direction of Robert Stumpner, provides a needed diversion from the scholastic "grind."

Competition is keen among the various fraternities and housing units as they strive to win the all-campus sports trophy. The trophy is awarded annually to the unit that acquires the most points over the entire school year. Last year Sigma Alpha Epsilon finished first in the race for the trophy with Sigma Nu second.

The participants in intramurals are fortunate enough to be provided with excellent facilities, and the events are played under official game conditions and rules.

About 25 sports are offered. Highlights of the year included touch football, with 93 teams participating; a pre-holiday basketball tournament, including 120 teams; fall and spring golf meets; a swimming meet; softball leagues, with about 100 teams, and a track meet.

Jackson Coaches Soccer Club in First Season

In its first season under Coach Terry Jackson, the soccer club finished strongly, winning two of its last three contests.

While only a club sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Men, it is nevertheless run in the same manner as any of the school's other athletic teams.

Led by the play of senior Ridha Zoubedi, who displayed both excellent dribbling and shooting, the team won over Calvin, Ohio State, and Illinois.

Zoubedi was named to both the Mid-Western Conference all-star team and the all-midwest all-star team. Three other I. U. players were named to the all-midwest team—Niki Diamandouros, Peter Tagalakis, and Blair LeRoux.

Fencing Team Places Sixth in Big Ten Meet

Indiana's fencing team had an unsuccessful season, but placed sixth in Big Ten competition. Although not winning any meets, the team is expected to do much better next year, because of the experience gained this season.

Fencing is not recognized as a varsity sport at I. U., but it is sponsored by the Physical Education Department for Men. Graduate student Pandelis Halamandaris served as coach this season.

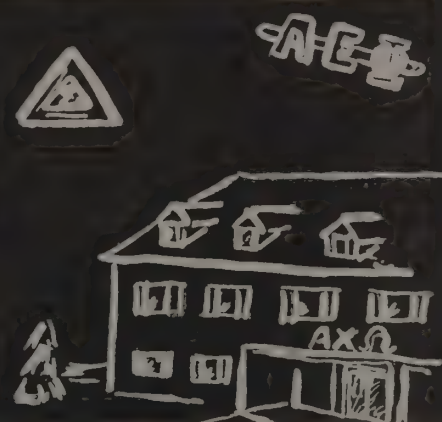

Rick Sweney captained this year's squad and was the team's most consistent point producer. Walter Hathaway, Bill Molland, and Dave Gage also spurred the team.

Panhellenic Hostess for Big Ten Conference

Indiana University's Panhellenic Association co-operated with Interfraternity Council to host the 1962 Big Ten Conference April 6, 7, and 8. At the conference, attended by fraternity delegations from all of the Big Ten schools, problems of the Greek system were discussed; outstanding speakers participated in the program.

Panhellenic, the governing body of all I. U. sororities, compiles rules pertaining to scholarship, rush, pledging, contest campaigning, and social activities. Sororities achieve general uniformity of policy through co-operation in workshops. These workshops better inter-sorority relations and raise standards in certain fields through discussion and recommendation.

Panhellenic of I. U. provides rush counselors who live in the dorms during rush week to inform women students about rushing regulations.

Junior Panbel Hears University Speakers

The Junior Panhellenic Council of Indiana University is a social and philanthropic group composed of the pledge class presidents of all sororities on the campus. The local chapter of the national organization meets every two weeks when their discussions are guided by an adviser from the Panhellenic Council. Once each month, the program of the meeting includes a prominent guest speaker from the University faculty or staff.

Members of the council share and discuss ideas for the improvement of the pledge system and the maintenance of high scholastic standards, and they plan co-ordinated social programs in which all sorority pledges participate.

The council supports an "adopted" Greek orphan. Each fall, the sorority pledges contribute time to work in the Bloomington Cancer Drive, and at Christmas they give foodbaskets to the Senior Citizen House.

IFC Works to Better Fraternity System

Representatives from all fraternities on the I. U. campus compose the Interfraternity Council, a body in which organized men co-operate to better the fraternity system.

Among its duties are the resolution of inter-chapter problems, the maintenance of high scholastic standards and good University-fraternity relations, and the imposition of penalties for infractions of University or IFC rules.

Throughout the year, IFC undertakes various projects. The organization is responsible for rush registration. To all male applicants to Indiana University, IFC mails brochures containing information about the campus fraternity system. In addition, the council sponsors a smoker at which fraternity men meet members of the faculty and the school administration.

Junior IFC Serves as Training Ground

Serving as a training ground for future Interfraternity Council members, Junior Interfraternity Council, through both philanthropic and social activities, tries to improve relations between the pledges and the initiated members of the fraternities.

One of the main objectives of Junior IFC is to provide opportunities for the members of the pledge classes to become better acquainted. A smoker for the pledge classes is presented annually.

In the spring of the year, a tug of war across the Jordan River between pledges and fraternity sophomore actives decides the fate of the pledges' green pods. If the pledges win, the pods are burned that night, but if the sophomores triumph, the pledges must wear the pods longer.

Another of the aims of Junior IFC is to improve scholarship among the pledges and to improve the entire pledge program.

Victorious in the 1961 Little 500, the men of Acacia entertained more than 6,000 persons at their annual Little 500 Ice Cream Social after the race. Both Pat Boone and Joanie Summers, Little 500 Sweetheart, made appearances at the social after the variety show in the Auditorium.

"Roaring Twenties" was the theme of the Acacia fall pledge dance. The chief social function of the year, however, was the formal-dress event, "Spring Colonnade," which was based around life in the Old South. The event included lawn games, a dinner, and the dance.

As they have done in previous years, the men of Acacia honored foreign students at Indiana University by sponsoring their annual International Coffee Hour in December.

Even after a hard race, Acacia cyclists weren't too tired to celebrate their Little 500 victory.

The plans are drawn up and have been approved, the contract is let, and the men of Alpha Epsilon Pi social fraternity plan to move into their new house next fall.

This year Beta Iota Chapter entertained the AEPi chapter from Purdue during the annual Little Oaken Bucket Weekend. On Saturday afternoon the chapters participated in their own gridiron battle for the "Bucket," and later in the evening held a dance and a banquet. A miniature oaken bucket was presented to the winning team.

Other house activities included the fall Bohemian Dance, and a pledge dance, pajama dance, and Mardi Gras dance in the spring.

Among the alumni of Alpha Epsilon Pi's national organization are comedian Jerry Lewis and newspaper columnist Walter Winchell.

With the groundbreaking ceremonies completed, construction was begun on the new AEPi house.

Inside and out the appearance of the Alpha Phi house on East Third Street was changed this year. A dining hall and additional study rooms for the women are included in the house's new wing which was completed in September, 1961.

The sorority's major charitable activity of the year was the cardiac aid fund drive. The women conducted a door-to-door campaign to collect donations for the annual drive.

The Alpha Phis were the first sorority to request an intersorority conference which eventually became the National Panhellenic Conference.

Seasonal dances, I. U. Sing, and Fall Carnival, for which they worked with Beta Theta Pi fraternity, were among the year's campus activities for the women of Alpha Phi sorority.

Since the establishment of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity on the Indiana University campus, the members have been living in dormitories, private housing, and other rooming facilities. If their plans congeal, the Alpha Phi Alphas will be the second Negro fraternity to occupy a chapter house at I. U.

Alpha Phi Alpha was the first national social fraternity for Negroes in the United States.

For the past few years the local fraternity has attempted to place greater emphasis on academic achievement. Numerous dances, intramural activities, help week, and exchanges with sororities were on the chapter's social calendar for the year.

The ATO's received honorable mention for their prepublicity for their Fall Carnival booth which they created with the women of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Traditional events they participate in are the chapter's Mothers' Day and Fathers' Day, I. U. Sing, Little 500, and the annual Little 500 Brunch.

Setting the Christmas mood was "Snowflake Whirl," a dinner-dance at the Bloomington Country Club. The Alpha Xis also went caroling with the men of Phi Kappa Tau, and, in addition, they entertained the local Alpha Xi Delta alumnae chapter at the annual alumnae Christmas dinner.

A project initiated by Beta Pi Chapter this year was a weekly guest night at the sorority house, which consisted of dress-up dinners and some form of special entertainment, such as special music or skits.

A red firetruck loaded with couples, the house decorated to look as if it were on fire, a real blaze burning behind the house with a waterhose close by—these things are typical of Delta Upsilon's annual spring dance, Firemen's Fling.

The firetruck itself has become a tradition of Indiana Chapter of Delta Upsilon as it has with the other 91 DU chapters throughout the United States. The present truck is the third owned by Indiana Chapter and often is used to pick up the DU's dates for dances.

The men of Delta Upsilon entered the 1962 I. U. Sing with the women of Alpha Omicron Pi and the Little 500 with the women of Alpha Phi as cosponsors.

The only nonsecret fraternity in the National Interfraternity Council, Delta Upsilon counts Joseph P. Kennedy and Bob Hope among their membership.

The Kappa Sigs participated in I. U. Sing and Little 500 this year. Included on the fraternity's social calendar were the Grainery Ball, Underworld Ball, a costume dance, and the Stardust Ball, a spring formal named in honor of Hoosier songwriter Hoagy Carmichael, a Kappa Sig.

George Bernard Dog II, a playful St. Bernard puppy, moved into the Kappa Sig house this year.

Among the members of Kappa Sigma are Branch McCracken, I. U. basketball coach, and Edward R. Murrow, head of the U. S. Information Agency.

Both of the Kappa Sig mascots reflect attitudes of patient understanding.

The period between semesters was filled with excitement and anticipation as the members of Sigma Delta Tau moved into their new house on the North Jordan extension.

After maintaining the highest grade average among sororities at I. U. for three consecutive semesters, the SDT's retired the scholarship trophy in the fall. A scholarship banquet with faculty speakers was given each semester to honor members making a 3.0 or better.

Fall Carnival with the Phi Gamma Deltas, the "Witch of the Week" contest, the senior skit and banquet, and Little 500 with the Alpha Tau Omegas were some of the SDT's activities this year. The theme of the winter formal was appropriately titled "Arevederchi Homa," the last dance in the old house.

There's lots of space for bridge players and kibitzers in the Sigma Delta Taus' new house on North Jordan.

Sigma Kappas Entertain Borrowed Time Club

The glow of an open fire and the smell of freshly cut pine meant Christmas at the Sigma Kappa house.

Founded at Colby College—1874

Tau Chapter established at I. U.—1918

"The Littlest Angel" was the outstanding event of the year for the women of Sigma Kappa. The play was presented as Christmas entertainment for members of the Borrowed Time Club, an organization for older people in and around Bloomington. Other activities included the traditional faculty buffet, I. U. Sing, and the Minnie.

The sorority's national philanthropic project is the Maine Seacoast Mission, an organization designed to give aid to needy people living on islands off the coast of Maine.

Indiana University's Independent Literary Society petitioned the oldest panhellenic group which was not represented at I. U., and in 1918 Tau Chapter of Sigma Kappa social sorority was established at Bloomington.

Sigma Nus Take Carnival Prepublicity Prize

Herman B Wells, President of Indiana University, Dr. Frank Beck, I. U. religious adviser and one of Beta Eta Chapter's six charter members, and many other distinguished men have proudly displayed the crest of Sigma Nu fraternity.

Hours of hard work for their Fall Carnival booth brought the Sigma Nus and their cosponsors, Alpha Epsilon Phi sorority, a first place for prepublicity and a second place for the originality and design of their "Think Pink" booth. For weeks before the Carnival, Sigma Nu and AEPhi pledges paraded around campus wearing placards, and the groups had a pink submarine and a pink automobile touring campus.

The annual Barroom Brawl, foreign students' Christmas party, White Rose Formal, and Voo Doo Dance were sponsored again this year by the men of Sigma Nu.

A new record was set for Little 500 Qualifications in 1961 by the riders of Sigma Nu.

Sigma Phi Epsilons Compete for 'Scrub Bucket'

A Sig Ep chess player debates half-way through a move—should I? or shouldn't I?

Founded at Richmond College—1901

A parody game of the old oaken bucket contest was played the morning of November 25 as the Sigma Phi Epsilons of Indiana University matched the Purdue Sig Eps in the annual "scrub bucket" contest.

The Sig Eps participated in their annual Founder's Day Banquet, attended by many alumni and University officials, and the Queen of Hearts Dance in February, with the most popular pinwoman reigning.

Other activities for the men of Sigma Phi Epsilon included two pledge dances, the "limbo" at Fall Carnival, a pajama dance, and a Hawaiian luau.

Sigma Phi Epsilon is the second largest social fraternity in the United States, and the novel red door is a trademark of Sig Ep chapters throughout the nation.

Among members of the fraternity are Woody Herman, Ted Mack, and Tom Ewell.

Sigma Pi Founded at Vincennes College

Founded at Vincennes College—1897
Beta Chapter established at I. U.—1924
67 National Chapters

One of the few national social fraternal organizations founded in the state of Indiana, Sigma Pi is also one of the oldest national fraternities at Indiana University. Former President of Vincennes College, Walter A. Davis helped found the fraternity at the school in southern Indiana in 1897. Beta Chapter was not established at I. U., however, until May 31, 1924.

The Sig Pis are making plans for a new house on the North Jordan extension of Fraternity Row. The building should be completed and the men moved in within two years.

Activities of the year for the men of Sigma Pi included the Little 500 Race; Dad's Weekend; "Club 527," the pledge dance; the Orchid Formal, and a football homecoming and a basketball homecoming for alumni of Indiana's Beta Chapter.

Bright cards and carols brought the Christmas mood to the Sigma Pi house.

The Tekes participated in Fall Carnival, Little 500 with their coed sponsors, Delta Zeta, and I. U. Sing with Zeta Tau Alpha. Their pledge dances had themes of "Around the World" and "Polynesian Paradise."

Later in the year the annual Teke Chariot Race was given to raise funds for scholarships which are administered through the University's scholarship office. The race has become one of the major events of Interfraternity Council's Greek Week.

With the house magically transformed into a barn and everyone who attended dressed in appropriate attire, the men of Theta Chi social fraternity presented their traditional Barn Dance in the fall.

The Theta Chis and the women of Alpha Chi Omega cosponsored the Bicycle Bounce on the Friday evening before the Little 500 Race. The tennis courts adjacent to the Theta Chi house were the site for the free, campus-wide dance.

Competing in the University's intramural athletics program, the men of Alpha Iota Chapter won trophies for their records in football and bowling.

Theta Chi was the first national fraternity to include Mother's Day as part of its social calendar, and the fraternity also initiated the first organized observance of Greek Week at I. U.

Zeta Beta Tau to Build New House on Jordan

The Zeta Beta Taus unveiled plans for their new house.

Beta Gamma Chapter established at I. U.—1947

Groundbreaking ceremonies took place in April, 1962, for the new Zeta Beta Tau house to be located at the end of North Jordan Avenue. The fraternity's new home will house 80 men in rooms designed for two occupants. A special feature of the house will be a huge, round fireplace in the center of the living room.

Women invaded the ZBT house again this year for the traditional Big-Switch Weekend. The men let their dates have the house for one night, returning only for meals and the dance which the women gave for them.

In the spring the Zeta Beta Tau pledges converted the house into a Japanese garden for the pledge dance. Other social functions included the annual spring formal, centered around the groundbreaking ceremonies, a Civil War dance, and a hoedown.

Working with the men of Tau Kappa Epsilon social fraternity, the Zeta Tau Alphas presented a take-off on "West Side Story" for their entry in the production division of the 1962 I. U. Sing.

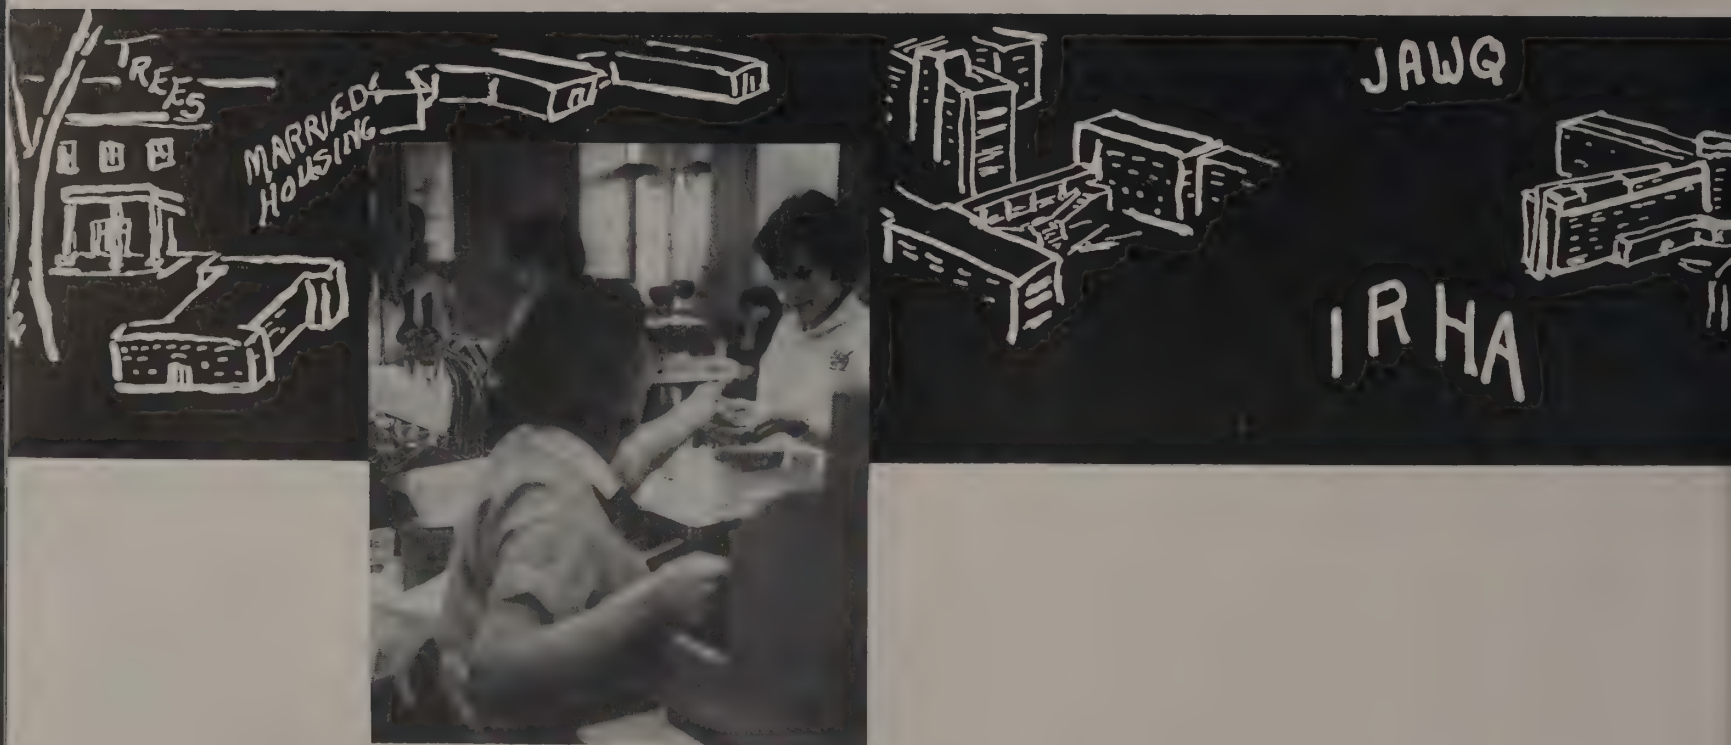

For Fall Carnival, the Zetas turned to another Broadway hit musical to present "The Fox." Based on "Gypsy," the Fall Carnival booth was cosponsored by the men of Theta Chi.

After the Minnie on Friday night, the Zeta Tau Alphas gathered at the old stadium Saturday to cheer on the men of Sigma Chi in the Little 500 Race.

Among the traditional events of Alpha Xi Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha are a Christmas tree trimming party and dance, a scholarship banquet, and a turnabout banquet for the waiters and members of the kitchen crew at the sorority's North Jordan Avenue house.

Greek-lettered sweatshirts and other gifts welcomed the new pledges of Zeta Tau Alpha.

IRHA System Rarity in American Universities

Indiana University has one of the few residence halls organizations in the U. S. that governs both women and men under one constitution with all undergraduates who live in university housing coming under the system.

Founded in the spring of 1960, the Inter-Residence Halls Association is a combination of the MRHA and the WRHA. IRHA contains three levels of government—hall, center, and inter-residence units.

The hall or unit serves to help build unity in the residence. Regular corridor meetings are designed so that problems can be discussed and residents can become acquainted with unit and campus activities.

Composed of an executive council and cabinet, the center government correlates the activities of individual units within the center.

The inter-residence unit contains a legislature and a Judicial Board.

Hummer House Paper Carries Full-Color Cartoon

"Build and improve" can be the motto for Hummer House this past year. Last year represented a new beginning for them as a house, and they have had to work hard, to build and improve. Thus far this motto has paid off. They have raised their scholastic standing in the Quad and are the authors of the famous newspaper, the Hummer House Hammer. This newspaper is the first unit paper to have a full-color cartoon on the front page. And at Christmas they sent 2,000 issues of the Hammer in the form of a Christmas card.

The activities of Hummer House include "The Spot" at Fall Carnival, Campus Quiz Bowl semi-finalists, exchange dinners, their April Fool's Frolic and other dances, dinners for such dignitaries as President Wells and Dean Samuel Braden, and intramurals with participation in football, basketball, baseball, and the league championship in bowling.

Dodds House men participated in and received honors from several other campus activities, including Fall Carnival. Working with Curry House, the men created the "Pink Garter Saloon," which was rated highest in originality and design in the game of chance category.

"Showwoody Fountain," the Dodds House entry in the Homecoming display contest, won a first prize. And one of the unit's teams advanced to the semi-finals in the Campus Quiz Bowl.

Unit social functions also kept Dodds House men busy during the year. Among the main events on their social calendar were the annual Harold's Club Casino, a picnic with the women of Read Center, and an informal Valentine's Day dance.

The all-Quad Christmas wreath put up annually on the south side of Wright Quadrangle is placed there through the efforts of the men of Lowe House. Hanging the wreath has become a tradition of the unit.

In Fall Carnival Lowe House's booth won second place for originality and design. Other honors included the JAWQ tug-of-war championship and a first place in intramural bowling.

The unit also participated in Little 500 and entered the Homecoming decorations competition, and they included open houses, date dinners, and dances on the social calendar. In regard to dances, the men of Lowe House sponsored more dances during the first semester of the 1961-1962 school year than during the entire preceding year.

On the sports scene, the men entered teams in intramural competition in basketball, football, handball, and softball, in addition to volleyball.

Read Center's Orientation Program Successful

"Four Queens and a King," standing for the four wings and Daniel Read, was the theme of a successful orientation week at Daniel Read Center, the largest dormitory for women at Indiana University. Included in the program was an out-of-doors mixer with the men of Wright Quadrangle. The mixer centered around a Japanese theme.

Tips from a model, a style show, and a panel discussion on morals and manners constituted social education week, which prepared the women for such formal occasions as their "Man of My Heart" Valentine's dance in the Frangipani Room of the Union Building.

Other activities of the center included Mothers' Weekend, a Homecoming float, and a spring open house.

The four houses of Read Center—Beck, Clark, Curry, and Landes—individually participated in exchange and scholarship dinners, intramural sports, choirs, Christmas parties, Pixie Week, Fall Carnival, and Little 500.

Men's Residence Center Reopened as Dormitory

Reopened this year as a residence center after use as an Air Force dorm, the Men's Residence Center is largely a freshman dormitory. There are three units in MRC, Smith, Cravens, and Edmondson Halls.

The MRC Executive Council spent much of its time first semester in writing a constitution, and now, a board of governors has been established as well as a judicial board and hall co-ordinators. A center newspaper, "The Tower," was also started, and, since the beginning of this year, the center has formed a library of about 5,000 books.

Men's Residence Center sponsored two dances, a Christmas dance and "The Roaring Twenties." On the unit level, the men joined with women's residences for mixers and exchange dinners.

Now working on plans for next fall's Orientation Week, the center is preparing a booklet to help acquaint new students with Indiana University and MRC.

Forest Hall Only Men's Unit in Wells Quadrangle

Memorial, Morrison, Sycamore, Forest, and Weatherwax Halls are the University dormitories making up the Wells Quadrangle housing unit. Except for Forest, which is a men's unit, all the housing units of Wells Quad are women's dormitories.

Seniors are honored annually when each hall sponsors a recognition banquet for their outstanding academic work and activity participation. All the units also participate in the Fall Carnival and Little 500, either as separate units or on a center basis. Intramural sports, such as swimming or basketball, take place among the women's dormitories.

The annual Christmas dance takes place in the Frangipangi Room of the Indiana Memorial Union. Other social activities in which the units participate together are exchange dinners and open houses.

An informal program is presented every Wednesday night for one half hour by the center. It consists of a student talent show, although sometimes faculty members participate.

Weatherwax Hall Once a Social Sorority House

Formerly a social sorority house, Weatherwax Hall is now a women's dormitory considered a part of Wells Center. Named after a former I. U. professor, the house provides living quarters for 31 undergraduate women.

The residents of the women's co-operative dormitory took time out from house work and classes to bring honors to their unit. The I. U. tennis trophy was won by one of the residents in the fall, and the unit worked together to donate the most blood from any one housing unit during the blood drive.

Women of Weatherwax live in a diversified atmosphere for the residents are from Great Britain, Yugoslavia, and Germany, as well as the United States.

Among the social events sponsored by the unit are a Valentine's Day dance and a Christmas party.

In the spring, the women of Weatherwax forgot about classes for a day when they gave a date-affair picnic at McCormick's Creek State Park.

Mason Hall Brings Trees Center Units to Eight

With the opening of Ruby Mason Hall in September, the facilities of Trees Center were expanded to include eight units. Planned as a co-operative unit, Mason has been operated this year as a regular women's dormitory. The new dorm on Seventh Street and Union Street houses about 80 women at present.

Although many of the units in Trees are scholarship halls—the residents have residence scholarships from the University—center-wide and unit activities throughout the year emphasize the social as well as academic side of university life. For example, in the fall the center presented the "Mid-term Bawl," and in the spring a center-wide dance was given.

Trees Center also participated in Fall Carnival with their game of chance, "Pillow Pitch."

The Trees Center Judicial Board, now in its second year of operation, makes all major decisions concerning center activities.

Tower Quadrangle—

A Successful Experiment for I. U.

Tower Quadrangle I. U.'s First Coed Dormitory

Indiana University's first experiment in coeducational living was Tower Quadrangle. Opened three years ago, Tower was intended to have four buildings for men and one unit for women. Because of the increased female enrollment, however, the University has altered the setup to maintain three units for women and one for men.

The Center Council, which provides over-all government for the center, co-ordinates the activities of the individual units and halls into an effective governing system for the center.

Facilities at Tower Quadrangle include both coed and non-coed recreation rooms, a center library, and a proctored study table system. The libraries contain reference books and recreational materials.

Starting second semester off right, Tower's entry in the small group division of I. U. Sing won first place for their presentation of "Purdue Enters the I. U. Sing."

The feet trample . . .

*on and on they go—to and fro;
a never-ending march keeps time.*

The feet:

*just count the steps,
an astounding number
on a purposeful journey.*

*Sometimes there is a reward;
sometimes not . . .*

But the faithful feet march on.

Board of Aeons Hand-Picked by President

A new breed of doctors?

Indiana University's Board of Aeons, the highest men's honorary service organization on the campus and the male counterpart of Mortar Board, is a select group of 12 junior and senior students who are chosen on the basis of scholarship and leadership by President Herman B Wells.

The organization of outstanding men serves as an advisory board to the President. Acting as a link between the University administration and the student body for more than 40 years, it considers and studies the problems and the needs of both the faculty and the students of the University.

The board is often called upon to voice its opinions and suggestions regarding all phases of campus life, from social to scholastic.

Being placed in the position of "go-between," the Board of Aeons can see both sides of important issues and thus can make its decisions fairly, with proper consideration given to all involved.

Mortar Board Taps 25 Women at AWS Meeting

Each year Mortar Board selects 25 outstanding junior women at the Association of Women Students' Mass Meeting in March. These women are chosen on the basis of their superior achievements in scholarship, leadership, and service to the University.

A retreat is planned each fall so the senior women's advisory board can meet to discuss projects and activities for the coming year.

A campus-wide candy sale and a flower sale during Mothers' Weekend are two of the annual projects. The proceeds from the sales are used for a scholarship which Mortar Board presents to a worthy student.

Special projects of Mortar Board conducted during the 1961-1962 academic year included a study of the honors program and the Great Issues Project.

Mortar Board also conducted research for Dean Eunice C. Roberts concerning the qualities of outstanding professors at Indiana University.

Accounting Club Supplements Theory With Contacts

About 165 graduate and undergraduate students make the Accounting Club one of the largest organizations in the School of Business. Outstanding businessmen who spoke at club meetings this year were C. C. Slain, head of the Auditing Department of International Harvester; John W. Hicks, Comptroller of I. U., and Raymond P. Snow Jr., certified public accountant with the firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell, & Company.

Through its monthly meetings and field trips to various business organizations, the club carries out its objective of supplementing classroom theory with actual business contacts. In addition, the club serves its members by acquainting prospective employers with the students in accounting at I. U.

Members must be at least sophomores and must have a minimum accumulative average of 2.0. All Accounting Club members becomes associate members of the American Accounting Association.

Sigma Theta Tau Established at I. U. in 1922

The nation's only national honorary society for women in nursing, Sigma Theta Tau was established at I. U. in 1922.

The honorary uses the proceeds from an annual card party to maintain a scholarship fund for students in the University's nursing programs.

Sigma Theta Tau initiates new members in May at a formal banquet. Prospective members are selected from students in the basic professional nursing program leading to a baccalaureate degree with a major in nursing—and from nurses enrolled in graduate study in nursing leading to the master's degree.

Since its founding, Sigma Theta Tau has designed all its programs, from its scholarship fund to its regular meetings, to promote high professional standards, to foster creative work, and, as much as possible, to emphasize the growing importance of research in nursing.

Delta Sigma Delta Has Dental Laboratory

One of the largest organized dental fraternities in the United States is Delta Sigma Delta. I. U.'s chapter, located at the Medical Center in Indianapolis, provides educational, laboratory, and social activities to further the dental student's scope of the dental profession and education.

Some of the various projects of the fraternity include monthly dances and the annual Christmas faculty reception at the fraternity house. In the spring Delta Sigma Delta holds its annual Golf Tournament. The wives of members are especially active during the Christmas season gathering baskets of toys and food for underprivileged children.

At Delta Sigma Delta meetings, special speakers are invited to discuss various topics. Speakers this year included Dr. George W. Crane, men from different branches of military service, and dental laboratory speakers from outside the University.

Psi Omega Largest Dental Fraternity in World

The largest Greek-letter dental fraternity in the world, Psi Omega now has 36 school chapters and 47 alumni chapters. The fraternity was founded in Baltimore, Maryland, by William Sprigg Hamilton in 1892 at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. Since then, more than 32,000 members have been initiated.

Providing living facilities for 20 students, the Psi Omega fraternity house is across from the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis.

The purpose of the organization is to provide a social as well as an educational medium for its members. The fraternity places emphasis on the welfare of the student and provides programs for the benefit of the brothers in the areas of chapter house loans, student loans, scholastic achievement, individual guidance and assistance, and insurance programs.

The social program of Psi Omega offers a variety of events for its 60 members.

Oceanides, Swim Honorary, Open to All Coeds

Any coed enrolled at Indiana University is eligible to try out for Oceanides, I. U.'s organization for female swimmers. Try-outs are held annually in the fall; girls are judged by the officers on skills of stunts and strokes and on basic knowledge of swimming.

During the school year the members meet weekly at Royer Pool. Meetings include current business and activities in the water, varying from water volleyball and speed races to individual groups practicing new skills.

This year the IAAA Conference will be held at I. U. in May. This conference will bring together members of girls' swimming clubs from colleges and universities all over the United States.

The most time-consuming and entertaining project of Oceanides each year is their water show, the 1962 version called "Water Words."

Business Executives Address Management Group

Upperclass men and women in business, economics, and engineering have an opportunity to meet and to learn from prominent business executives through membership in the Society for the Advancement of Management, for leaders in management frequently speak at the meetings of this group.

The program of the Indiana University chapter of SAM includes research and discussion by the members.
Thus the organization serves as a medium for an exchange of information concerning the problems and policies involved in industry and management. Community projects also are sponsored by SAM.

A further advantage which membership in SAM provides to students is the opportunity to participate in planning and directing the activities of an organization dedicated to the promotion of their chosen field.

The Indiana University Chapter of SAM is affiliated with the national association.

With over 180 members, the Marketing Club is one of the largest clubs in the School of Business. Its purposes are to concern itself with the individual welfare of its members; to acquaint them with practical situations in the marketing field; to encourage research in the areas of advertising retailing, and sales, and to promote fellowship among marketing students and the sponsors of the organization, the Department of Marketing faculty.

Meetings of the Marketing Club feature talks by distinguished representatives from the field of marketing such as Edward Bartley, Market Research Director for B. F. Goodrich Company, pertinent films, and discussions. This year, the club started a newsletter which is to be published once each semester and distributed to all club members.

Men and women in the Marketing Club become student members of the American Marketing Association.

Alpha Lambda Delta Chooses Members on Grades

Membership in Alpha Lambda Delta is based entirely upon scholastic achievement. Freshman women who obtain a 3.5 accumulative average in their first semester on campus or the entire year are offered the privilege of pledging. Pledging and initiation ceremonies are held in the fall and in the spring in conjunction with those of Phi Eta Sigma, the corresponding honorary for freshman men.

The program of Alpha Lambda Delta was begun this year with a reception, planned in co-operation with Phi Eta Sigma, for freshman scholarship holders. Dr. Gerking of the Department of Biology spoke.

This year Alpha Lambda Delta initiated a new philanthropy by sponsoring two $125 scholarships. The scholarships will be given to members of the group to be used in their junior year of study. The organization hopes that the giving of the scholarships will set a precedent for subsequent members of the group.

Phi Eta Sigma Convention Set for I. U.

Indiana University will be host for the 1962-1963 national convention of Phi Eta Sigma, national scholastic honorary for freshman men. This will be the second time the convention has met here. Men with a grade average of 3.5 or higher for the first semester or combined first and second semesters of their freshman year will attend the convention.

An annual service of Phi Eta Sigma is the reception for scholarship holders given each fall in the Union. At this event outstanding students become acquainted with University faculty members and the present Phi Eta Sigma members.

Another function is the distribution of study guides to freshmen. Through this service Phi Eta Sigma encourages scholarship and provides a goal for conscientious students.

At the spring initiation banquet, eligible freshmen join Phi Eta Sigma as old members become inactive.

This organization encourages higher scholastic attainments, fosters a feeling of understanding between students and faculty, and supports measures concerning the welfare of the student body. It also encourages active school spirit by cooperating with other organizations and individuals with these common goals, and aids all incoming freshmen in orienting themselves to college life.

Having a class standing of sophomore, being a member of a fraternity, and having an accumulative grade average of 2.0 after the first semester of the freshman year are requirements for membership.

The Indiana University chapter has 65 members and is sponsored by Professor G. W. Starr.

Each year Arnold Air Society, together with Scabbard and Blade of the Army ROTC, sponsors a formal dance, the Military Ball, at which a Military Queen is elected. She reigns over all social military activities for the following year.

Angel Flight is a national organization sponsored by the United States Air Force to advance and promote interest in the Air Force and to aid in the progress of Arnold Air Society. Membership is open to any interested women who have a two point grade average in a minimum of twelve semester hours.

Angel Flight and Arnold Air Society are brother-sister organizations, and they plan and conduct many activities jointly throughout the year.

IMU Insignia Represents Myriad Activities Designed for and by University Students

The IMU insignia on blazers, advertising, and posters has become the symbol of myriad activities presented for students by students.

Serving as the central activities organization of the Indiana Memorial Union, the Union Board of Directors sponsors and promotes about 600 activities annually, including such giants as Fall Carnival and the IMU Pop Concerts. The board also directs 11 clubs which appeal to smaller special interest groups.

During the 1961-1962 year the Union Board inaugurated the Invitational Dinners where students and faculty members met for dinner and to hear guest lecturers from the faculty.

Each member of Union Board must pass through an elaborate screening process. For appointment, he must have junior or senior standing, a 2.6 grade average, and at least 100 service hours for Union activities. The selection committee for the board includes, among others, the Dean of Students, Union Board chairman, President of the Student Body, and the president of AWS.

Union Board consists of seven appointed members one of whom must be a senior; two members must be elected by the Student Body. The Dean of Students and President of the University are also members of the Union Board of Directors.

Student Government Introduces Great Issues

A new phase of student government called the Great Issues Forum marched onto the campus this year and dedicated itself to stamping out student apathy toward world problems. Headed by Brad Mintener Jr., grad., the forum culminated in a model senate session May 4, 5, and 6.

One hundred students, designated as United States Senators and assigned to political parties and states, met in committee sessions during the spring to discuss issues which were later considered in the Senate session. The senators served on one of five committees, and some of them worked in one of two sub-committees.

In committee, they discussed issues of current importance in international headlines. The forum, designed as an educational project, was created by the Student Senate in the fall at the suggestion of Jim Taylor, senior, President of the Student Body.

On the international scene, 100 University students joined 200 others from Midwest colleges and universities to debate topics in the Little United Nations Assembly February 28 to March 3. Secretary-General in charge of supervisory headaches was Larry Frankel, senior.

In the area of student government, this has been one of the most exciting semesters since politics came to campus. The old system of separating political parties according to organized and independent housing units crashed. One party died, and two sprang to take its place. By the April 5 election, three parties—the Independence, United Students, and All Campus Party—were vying for votes.

The Student Senate during the year passed many bills which were passed on to the administration for consideration. The Senate also discussed the fate of the judicial branch of local government, the Student Supreme Court, and they participated in activities on a national scale in the National Student Association.

Seniors Seek I. U.'s Inclusion in 'Who's Who'

The Class of 1962 began the groundwork this year for having the National Who's Who of Colleges and Universities recognize outstanding students at I. U. The book is produced by a national organization of member colleges and universities; until now I. U. had no representation in it.

In the spring outstanding students were honored at a recognition banquet. With the assistance of the Alumni Association, the seniors chose their Baccalaureate speaker and planned their graduation ceremony.

In addition to carrying out new ideas and projects, the class sponsored traditional senior activities as well. Senior Class Day, in the spring, was a day when the graduating seniors were honored at a tea given by President Wells. Also in the spring was the Senior Class Picnic. As a farewell gift, the class presented shrubbery to the University.

Juniors Give Open House After Purdue Game

The Junior Class carried out a full and varied program of activities during the last year. In co-operation with the junior class at Purdue University, the class sponsored an all-campus open house after the I. U.-Purdue football game in November.

The class made a donation of $50 to the Ray Pavy Trust Fund to help defray medical expenses for the former I. U. varsity basketball player, who was injured in an automobile accident last year.

Three scholarships of $50 each were given by the class of 1963 to deserving juniors. The recipients were selected on the basis of high scholarship and need.

Legislation that was being discussed currently in the Student Senate was also discussed at the class executive council meetings in order to get the opinions of the juniors on various campus issues. In addition, the junior class officers also investigated the possibility of a new all-class Constitution.

Sophomores Establish Representatives Council

In addition to the executive cabinet, the Class of 1964 formed a council of representatives. The council, composed of 59 students from all housing units, voice opinions for their fellow class members, carry out class programs, and take back to their respective units information about class and Student Government activities. The council meets every other week with the members of the class cabinet.

The cabinet takes heed of council opinion from which it makes policy, implements programs which benefit class members, and carries on regular administrative tasks. The cabinet meets weekly.

Goals of the Sophomore Class executive group are to encourage and organize participation in campus activities and to co-ordinate class opinion so that it might be given due respect in the Student Senate and other representative campus groups.

Class of 1965 Largest Yet to Enter University

The Class of 1965 is the largest class to this date to enter Indiana University.

Ardee Helm, President of the Freshman Class, inaugurated and organized the first Freshmen Council. The advisory group meets every two weeks and consists of 40 members who represent the entire Freshman Class. The purposes of the council are to promote a better organization of the class and to discuss such topics as bills that are before the Student Senate and activities of the class as a whole.

The Class of 1965 sponsored the annual Freshman Tyronian and elected a Tyronian King and Queen.

In the spring the class presented the annual Honors Banquet where deserving students were recognized for their scholastic achievements and the spirit they had shown in campus activities and in athletics.

At the end of the year, the class published the Tyronian Newsletter.

I. U. Foundation Members Work 'To Help Those Who Help Themselves'

"To help those who help themselves" is the purpose of the I. U. Foundation. Two hundred seventy-five committee members, chosen for activities, scholarship, interest in the Foundation, and willingness to work, plan and present the Little 500 Weekend each year to provide scholarships for deserving students.

William S. Armstrong, in his tenth year as executive director of the Foundation, appoints the 275 members from the junior and senior classes. Together they direct 500 festivities, called "The World's Greatest College Weekend."

At 3:30 p.m. on May 12, festivities for 1962 started with the annual golf jamboree. That night women's housing units competed on tricycles in the colorful Mini. Climaxing a busy Friday, the Extravaganza drew a capacity crowd.

Saturday the big day officially began for race fans at 1 p.m. when the riders broke starting formation and began the exhausting 50 miles to the finish line.

After the race and a rest, students and visitors watched The Four Lads at the Variety Show. But the real benefit of Little 500 will come next fall when 132 outstanding students receive Foundation scholarships to help them further their education.

Directing activities for the 1962 Little 500 were Ronald Balsbaugh and Ann McGarvey, cochairmen, and William S. Armstrong, I. U. Foundation director.

The Coffeeorum, which provided an opportunity for informal discussion of such topics as current events, poetry, and folksinging, was one of the new activities sponsored this year by the Young Women's Christian Association. The Y also stressed work in the area of human relations, setting up a workshop on the inter-racial question.

A national and international organization boasting 200 members on campus, the Y strives to provide free discussion and to promote personal relationships. The Y encourages members to express their beliefs through action, as well as to take on activities of a less personal nature.

Among the better known activities of the YWCA are the I. U. Sing, the student leader program, Chimes of Christmas, and Freshman Camp, all of which are co-sponsored by the YMCA.

Although the Y cosponsors many activities with the YMCA, it is largely autonomous. Almost all of its committee work is carried out separately.

A program in the areas of Social Action, Community Service, Religious Emphasis, and Foreign Student Affairs is provided by the Young Men's Christian Association in order to promote personal development of the individual through rewarding fellowship and worthwhile service.

In addition to helping at the Exchange Home and co-operating with the Bloomington Hi-Y clubs, the Y expanded the community service program to include the Boys' Clubs and the Christian Center.

With the YWCA they co-sponsor I. U. Sing, Freshman Camp, Chimes of Christmas, the student leader program, and foreign student hospitality programs at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The Y handles the sales of Redbooks, makes solicitations for the Campus Chest, and publishes a complete Foreign Student Directory free of charge.

AWS Has Served Women at I. U. Since 1895

For more than 65 years, since its formation in 1895, the Association of Women Students has served the women of Indiana University.

AWS hopes to increase the I. U. coed's abilities and desires to fulfill the role of educated and competent women in a democratic society. The association also is responsible for rules and regulations in regard to conduct for all women students at the University. These rules and regulations include closing hours, signout procedures and special permissions, dress regulations on campus, social regulations, and rules with regard to serenades.

One of the most important jobs of AWS is orienting new and freshman students with University life. During Orientation Week, the president speaks to a mass meeting to explain the purposes of AWS. The association also publishes a freshman handbook which includes information on extracurricular activities open to freshmen, academic information, rules, information about the YWCA, AWS committees, and honoraries for freshman women.

Included in the structure of AWS are the executive board, composed of the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and judicial representative; the legislative board, which is made up of representatives from Panhellenic, Inter-Residence Halls Association, and town women, and the program board, including the campus contact committee, education and cultural committee, the social and recreational committee, town women committee, and publicity and public relations committee.

The judicial workshop steering committee is responsible for training members of standards or conduct boards of housing units with respect to handling various student conduct decisions.

AWS also sponsors a rush etiquette style show, several faculty teas, and a scholarship tea. At the annual AWS Mass Meeting campus honoraries announce their new pledges and AWS, YWCA, and Women's Recreation Association officers are elected.
